"We need to look at what the best way is to address the issue," said Walker, noting it is a complicated area.

Wollaston Beach, the major public beach, is owned and operated by the state, but the city oversees 13 public beaches, the public boat ramp, and miles of shoreline used for fishing and boating.

YOUNG SWIMMERS head down the ramp of the public landing in Houghs Neck. The walkway is solid despite its decayed underpinnings. Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest and other councillors said a citywide plan should be developed for the public landing and all of the city's 27 miles of waterfront by next spring.

ROTTED PILINGS support the public landing in Houghs Neck as shown by these posts decayed by insects and the ocean. A metal support was placed on the top of one and the buttress appears insufficient for the one in the foreground. Councillors called for a citywide plan for the city's coastline at their Aug. 16 meeting. Quincy Sun Photos/Laura Griffin

Major Changes For College Board Membership

Harris, should have 13 members.

Two other openings may occur as Chairman David Dennis and Jo-Ann Bragg's terms expire on Aug. 30, according to Harris.

Dennis and Bragg must chose to seek another term and, also, be voted another term by the college's 11-member appointing board.

The six members must be appointed or reappointed by the Board of Governor's appointing committee which has undergone its own reconfiguration this week.

As of Tuesday, there are five new members on the college's Appointing Committee.

Mayor Thomas Koch informed Harris on Tuesday that he has appointed Stephen McGrath, Director of Human Resources and City Solicitor Jim Timmins to the appointing committee.

The Appointing Committee's two School Committee members are now Emily Lebo and David McCarthy and the representatives from the City Council include Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest and Councillor Michael McFarland. McFarland currently serves on the committee.

According to Harris, the appointing committee also includes three active board members, one student and one alumnus appointed by the board's chairman.

All must now be appointed or reappointed.

Harris said the Appointing Board meets at the discretion of its chairman and is not subject to direction from the current governors.

While new members of the Board of Governors may be appointed in the near future, Chairman Dennis said he plans to call a meeting Monday.

The board has been unable to meet or postponed each meeting for the past three weeks and held an unofficial meeting in late July.

Despite the board's lack of success in the last four weeks, Dennis said, "We'll try once again. I guess we'll keep trying."

Both Dennis and Harris spoke highly of Bertman and his service on the board citing his contributions of time and experience.

"Mr. Bertman has been a fine member of the Board of Governors," said Dennis, adding that he "contributed a great deal to the college."

Harris also lamented Bertman's resignation. "I am very sad to have lost his leadership. He dedicated a lot of time and energy to the college during his term," she added.

Bertman, a Quincy businessman for 60 years, is the owner of Rogers Jewelry in Quincy Center and has been active in many of the city's business and charitable organizations, including the Salvation Army, Quincy Partnership, Rotary Club and the South Shore Big Brothers and Big Sisters.

During his tenure as a governor, he raised fund for the college's trust and it is the college's future that he addresses in his resignation letter when he wrote, "I hope that the board will come together and do what is right for the college, its students and administration."

However, Bertman, also, cited outside pressure on him as a member of the Board of Governors in his letter, "When I took this position I promised myself that I would do anything and everything to ensure the success of the school. I now find myself influenced by outside forces that have impacted correct decision on my part."

Bertman further states in his letter, "I now find I can not be true to my own standards and thus feel it would be advantageous to the college to remove myself from any decision making in its behalf."

Bertman is the third governor to resign from the Board this year. Peter Tsaffaras resigned in February and became a candidate for the presidency while Jerrell Riggins of Boston resigned in July when members' residency became a controversial issue.

Purchase Will Be Made Through $50,000 Community Preservation Grant

Timmins Says City Will Soon Buy 2.9-Acre Lot For Faxon Park Link

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Faxon Park will officially cover some 80 acres of open space in the near future as the city is about to purchase the 2.9-acre lot linking the original 57-acre Faxon Park to the city's 13-acre Avalon Estates parcel and adjoining open space of some 15 acres, according to City Solicitor Jim Timmins.

"We expect it to happen in the very near future," Timmins told city councillors on Aug. 16. "There's an agreement about the parcel."

Timmins said that some details must be clarified regarding "estate interests" in the property owned by the Bates Trust but that all parties are ready to finalize the purchase and sale.

JAMES TIMMINS

The purchase will be made through a $50,000 grant approved this year by the Community Preservation Committee (CPC).

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, also, asked Timmins to have the property inspected for possible contamination or hazardous waste prior to the purchase.

Following Timmins' report, councillors voted unanimously to rezone the Bates parcel as open space at the request of Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, a major supporter of Faxon Park.

The CPC, also, awarded a $200,000 grant this year for the repair of the park's stonewall.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Ready For Some Good News? Aren't We All!

I just read a press release from the State Fire Marshal's Office highlighting statistics compiled from fire incidents throughout Massachusetts in 2009.

The good news being, fire death numbers were down significantly for that year. There were 35 civilian fire deaths. "That's the lowest number of fire deaths on record since WWII," according to the State Fire Marshal. That's a 29% drop from the 49 deaths in 2008, and a 20% drop from the previous record low of 44 deaths in 2006.

The Fire Marshal added, "When I first started my career in the early 1970's, we lost between 150 and 180 people per year to fire... Changes such as smoke alarm requirements...and consistent fire education... have made a huge difference."

As I have highlighted so frequently, smoke alarms save lives. The statistics included here are a good indication of that fact. The presence of smoke alarms slowly emerged within residences in the late "60's", early "70's." Changes such as smoke alarm requirements that are enforced every time a house is sold have assured their increased presence over these most recent years.

Smoke alarms, if properly located and maintained, can provide the early notification needed to evacuate a home in a timely manner. Having time to do so is essential. The heat, smoke, noxious fumes, obscuration and confusion that can result from a smoke filled room or home can severely hamper timely evacuation decisions. Correct decisions are essential for survival. Smoke alarms can afford that time if properly located and maintained.

As the State Fire Marshal added, he believes that fire safety education initiatives go hand in hand with the lower fire death incidents we are now seeing. Programs such as E.D.I.T.H., Exit Drills in the Home, prompt homeowners to develop an evacuation plan with family members. Should a fire occur, especially during evening hours, a plan is in place to vacate the home with the designation of a meeting place to confirm all are outside and safe. Programs such as "Keep Warm, Keep Safe", focused on combating heating related fires when rising costs might persuade people to embrace unlawful and more hazardous means of heating a home. There have been many such educational initiatives over the years, too numerous to mention here.

My point being, embracing the fire prevention message, making it your own, works as well. How often have I highlighted that premise in this column? Where fire death rates have declined so, statistics validate the benefits of working smoke alarms and a basic fire prevention outlook. With relatively little effort, we can take steps to minimize the occurrence of fire within our homes and substantially increase our chances of survival in the event a fire occurs. I told you there was good news!

Thank you.

Scalloped Stuffed Haddock Fillets

I was thinking about making something entirely different for my turn cooking at my brother Phil's house. It wasn't until I was on my way to the supermarket that I decided to make some kind of a fish entrée.

Since the haddock fillets looked so good (and thick) I decided to stuff a couple of them, and to use scallops as one of the ingredients to the stuffing.

I added a few more things and the results got raves.

STUFFED HADDOCK FILLETS

2 medium sized fillets (about 1 ¾ to 2 pounds)
¼ pound of large scallops (cut up small)
½ cup broccoli florets (cut in small pieces) and cooked
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine
½ cup Panko breadcrumbs (seasoned)
2 tablespoons or so of tomato sauce
1-tablespoon fresh parsley (chopped fine)
3 tablespoons Parmesan cheese
Salt and pepper
Water if stuffing is dry

In a greased baking pan (I used some vegetable oil and a smidgen of water), place the fish fillets. Season with the salt and pepper and brush the olive oil on top.

In a bowl, add the scallops, the broccoli, and breadcrumbs. Add the tomato sauce, the parsley, and water if needed. Add the Parmesan cheese.

Place the stuffing evenly on each of the fillets and then add the melted butter on top.

Bake covered in a 350-degree oven for 30 minutes.

P.S. Each time I cook, as many do, I add ingredients as I go along, and do not always measure, so that sometime, any other ingredients can be added or subtracted. I try to get as close as I can as far as the amount is concerned.

ENC Choral Union Seeks Community Singers

The Eastern Nazarene College Choral Union is seeking new members to join its 70-member choir comprised of both ENC students and adult members of the community.

All adults are invited to experience the joy of choral singing through the Choral Union, which will present its annual free performance of Handel's Messiah in December. No musical auditions are required to participate.

"The Choral Union is a fun and relaxing opportunity for people to learn about music, develop their voices and experience the power of live music in an unforgettable way," said conductor Delvyn Case, who noted that participation in the choir is free. "All adults are welcome to join, regardless of experience or music-reading ability."

Choral Union rehearsals are held from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Tuesday evenings in the Cove Fine Arts Center on Eastern Nazarene's Wollaston campus. The group's first rehearsal will be held Tuesday Sep. 7; new members are welcome to join at that time, as well as at the following rehearsal (Sep. 14).

16 Elected Quincy Officials Endorse Keating For Congress

Citing his ability to get results for Quincy over the past 11 years as the Norfolk District Attorney and his commitment to create good paying jobs, protect Social Security, and help small businesses, 16 Quincy elected officials announced Monday their endorsement of Bill Keating for Massachusetts' 10th Congressional District seat.

Keating was elected Norfolk District Attorney in 1998.

Keating received endorsements from State Sen. Michael Morrissey, State Representatives Bruce Ayers and Stephen Tobin, Norfolk Sheriff Michael Bellotti, former Attorney General Frank Bellotti, County Commissioner John Gillis, and Registrar of Probate Patrick McDermott.

Keating was also endorsed by Council President Kevin Coughlin, City Councillors Joe Finn, Michael McFarland, Margaret Laforest and Brian Palmucci, and School Committee members Anne Mahoney, Jo-Ann Bragg, Elaine Dwyer, and David McCarthy.

"I am honored to receive the support of so many men and women chosen by the voters of Quincy to represent them," said Keating. "In Congress I will work closely with each and every one of these elected officials to create new jobs and ensure that all of our communities remain strong."

"There's no one better than Bill Keating to go to Washington and shake things up, fight to create new jobs, and to get the results our families deserve," Morrissey said. "I know Bill is going to work with small businesses to free up capital and provide tax credits so that they can start to hire again. He knows the needs of our communities in this district and he'll fight hard for them."

Bump Campaigns For Auditor In Ward 5

Suzanne Bump, a Democratic candidate for Massachusetts State Auditor, recently introduced herself to neighborhood residents by knocking on doors along with supporter and Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro.

Bump spent the afternoon going door to door in Ward 5, introducing herself to Quincy residents, asking for their support in the Sept. 14th primary and talking with attendees about her vision for State Auditor and how she plans to use the office to ensure taxpayer dollars are being well-spent.

Bump supporter Gutro accompanied Bump throughout the afternoon, speaking to residents why he is supporting her campaign.

If elected, Bump said she would use her experience to bring about the changes in state government and demand accountability from state agencies that will make government work better for all Massachusetts residents.

The Commonwealth's former Secretary of Labor and Workforce Development under Governor Deval Patrick, Bump has been endorsed by current Auditor Joe DeNucci, Congressmen Barney Frank and John Olver and numerous other state legislators and mayors.

Utility Workers Of America Local 369 Endorse Cahill For Governor

The membership of the Utility Workers Union of America Local 369, a 3300-plus member organization providing workers in the utility industry with service territory extending from Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard through the South Shore, Boston, North Shore, and Central and Western parts of Massachusetts, announces its endorsement of the independent candidacy of Tim Cahill for Governor.

In making the announcement, UWUA Local 369 President David Leonardi said, "This was an important decision for our membership. As we work across a number of geographic regions and in different industries, we believe we represent a true cross-section of the Massachusetts voter. Our workers are very conscientious, socially responsible and somewhat fiscally conservative and we believe that Tim Cahill represents the best choice for Massachusetts to grow and prosper."

Leonardi cited Cahill's record of accomplishment in overseeing record growth in the State Lottery under his tenure as Treasurer; his support of legislation that will create jobs in Massachusetts, and his independence.

"Treasurer Cahill is not beholden to any party or special interest group and we believe he is in a position to do the most for jobs and for the working middle class in this state," Leonardi said, adding, "Our union enthusiastically endorses him and we look forward to joining the tremendous team of supporters Treasurer Cahill already has in place.

"We are excited to be standing with the next Governor of Massachusetts, Treasurer Tim Cahill."

Keenan Supports Further Pension Reforms

Democratic candidate for State Senate John F. Keenan said more steps need to be taken to close loopholes that allow savvy and often politically-connected public employees to abuse state and local pension systems.

Keenan said his experience as Executive Director of the Norfolk County Retirement System has provided him with a first-hand look at how some employees are able to exploit loopholes in state pension rules and receive unfairly large retirement packages at a high cost to taxpayers.

"I know where the abuses are and as your state senator I will file legislation to close these holes," Keenan said. "We must strike a balance between providing a reasonable retirement benefit to public employees who play by the rules and effectively self-fund their own retirements, while at the same time not bankrupting taxpayers."

Keenan, a Quincy City Councilor-at-Large, said the pension reform packages adopted by the Legislature over the past two years only tackled the most egregious abuses and did not go far enough to result in real savings for taxpayers.

As an example, Keenan pointed to the case of former Brockton Police Lt. Charles Lincoln, who worked a second job for just a few years prior to retirement. He combined salaries from both jobs to grossly increase his retirement benefit. "The attempted fix by the Legislature did not completely solve the problem," said Keenan. "The Legislature left a gaping hole that would allow tens of thousands, if they had the opportunity, to take advantage of a similar situation, at a significant cost to taxpayers.".

Keenan also pledged to end the practice of allowing elected full-time town officials to retire, only to immediately run again in order to collect both a pension and a salary.

"For the vast majority of public employees who contribute throughout their public careers, the present system provides a fair and reasonable pension at the time of retirement. Those who don't pay what they should, those with inflated salaries, those who take advantage of loopholes, and those who take advantage of the disability process – they cost the taxpayers," said Keenan.

"I have a unique background relative to public pensions, and as a State Senator look forward to putting my experience to work to restore fiscal stability and trust in the pension system."

FOOT NOTES

by Joel Chariton, D.P.M.

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

TODAY'S TECHNIQUES

At one time, foot surgery involved, hospitalization and weeks or months off of work. That is no longer the case. With advances in technology and equipment, recovery is more rapid and less painful, and most foot surgery patients can be mobile within days. Many new techniques allow procedures to be performed on an out-patient basis. Hospitalization is rarely required. A local anesthetic helps patients avoid nausea and drowsiness. In some cases, the procedure is performed through tiny "keyhole" incisions. A specialized high-speed instrument is used, and any cuts necessary are made under X-ray control, providing a minimally invasive surgical option. Most minimally invasive techniques do not require the use of pins, screws, wires, casts, or crutches.

We sincerely hope you are not suffering with painful, nagging foot problems because you think treatment might involve surgery. Many foot surgeries are now performed right in the podiatrist's office, and today's advanced, conservative techniques can save you discomfort, recovery time, and cost. Please give us a call to see how our services can benefit you. We're located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER, with office hours also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221. You can reach us at 781-986-3668. I am affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

HINT: With modern foot surgery techniques, patients may walk in, have surgery, and walk out – that's why it is called ambulatory surgery.

Rain Can't Dampen Spirit At August Moon Festival various games and activities, all organized by the South Shore YMCA.

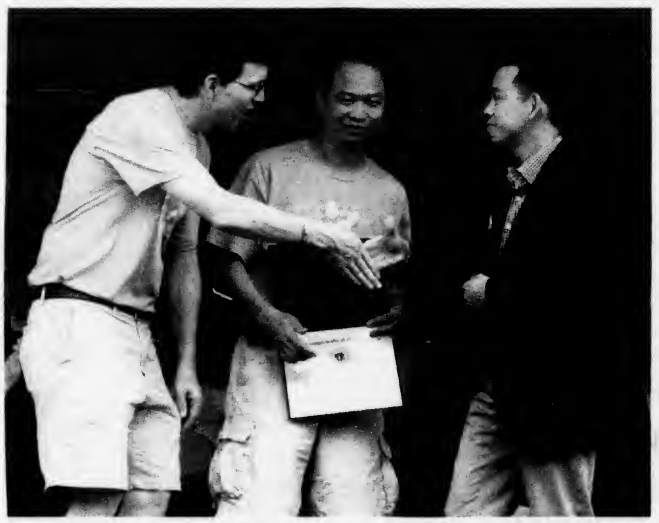
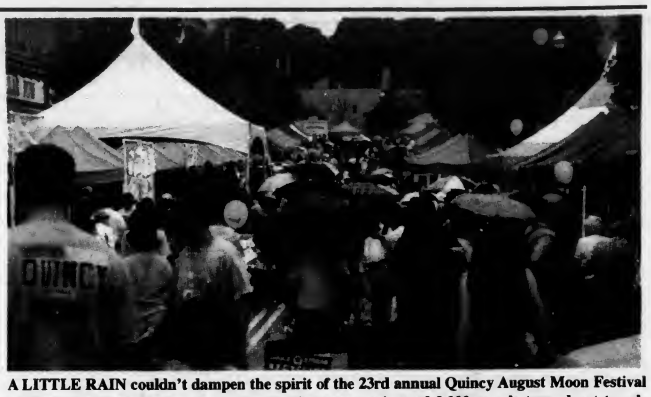
The event included more than 220 volunteers, 30 from the State Street bank alone. John Brothers, the Executive Director of Quincy Asian Resources said the turnout was tremendous given the rainy conditions. "We had a lot of people here, especially when the rain let up," said Brothers. "As Mayor (Thomas) Koch says, this is one of the city's premiere events."



The festival brings together Asians and non-Asians to celebrate the diversity and unity of the communities. Music and dance performances were staged, as well as a watermelon-eating contest. Local restaurants served up their international dishes and more than 100 vendors representing businesses and community organizations were on hand.

There was also a booth where Asian citizens could register to vote, along with mock ballots so they could get an idea what the voting process entailed.



Brothers said staging the event is a 12-month process and he will eventually address where the festival will be held next year with the Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Jr. Parkway being open and traffic flowing through Hancock Street from the Paul Harold Memorial Bridge to Revere Road.

"At some point we're going to have some discussions with the city," Brothers said.

The festival is made possible by Grand Sponsors State Street and the City of Quincy.

Deval Patrick to John Brothers (left), executive director of Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., and David Yi Zou, president of QARI. QARI collaborates with service agencies to provide free bilingual information and referral services, English and citizenship classes, translation and other services to the Asian community.

A LITTLE RAIN couldn't dampen the spirit of the 23rd annual Quincy August Moon Festival on Hancock Street in Quincy Center Sunday as an estimated 8,000 people turned out to celebrate this year's festival theme of love, family and community.

First-Time Homebuyers Tax Credit Expires Sept. 30

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reminds first-time homebuyers that properties under agreement by April 30 have until Sept. 30 to complete the closing.

This is an extension of the June deadline earlier set by Congress.

The Registry's website ww.norfolkdeeds.org provides resources for information regarding the First-Time Homebuyer Tax Credit.

"To take advantage of the tax credit the purchase and sale agreement must have been signed by April 30 and must close by Sept. 30, "O'Donnell said. "We have linked our website to important publications from the IRS which can assist our residents in locating this helpful information."

The website information compilation includes links to IRS postings on the new legislation for First-Time Homebuyer Credit: Overview; First-Time Homebuyer Credit Questions and Answers: Basic Information; First-Time Homebuyer Credit Questions and Answers: Homes Purchased in 2009; and, First-Time Homebuyer Credit: Scenarios.

The further extension legislation requires that the sale be completed by Sept. 30 of this year.

People with higher incomes also now qualify for the credit. For individual tax filers the phase out income minimum is $150,000 and for joint filers $225,000.

The credit is only available on homes that sell for $800,000 or less.

"I encourage anyone thinking of buying or selling a home to visit our website and review these important IRS publications," O'Donnell said.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is the basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information.

Hundreds of thousands of Registry land records back to 1793 are already available for on-line viewing. The Registry's on-line index is available from 1920 forward and continues to expand to include earlier records. Call 781-461-6101 for more information.

Hidden Risk For Eye Injuries At Home

(NAPS) – Homeowners are busy with home improvements year round, yet many people fail to take the proper precautions to protect their eyes from potential harm.

Nearly 1.5 million eye injuries in the United States occur annually in the home, despite the fact that 90 percent of these injuries could be prevented using protective eyewear. Eye injuries most often occur when people are in a hurry:

Eye injuries in the home can be prevented by taking the following steps:

• Remind family members to put on safety glasses when starting a project.

• Check the lawn for debris that could potentially become projectiles before starting yard work.

• Keep a pair or two of protective glasses around the house in places that will remind you to wear them.

For more information regarding eye safety, download The Vision Council's, Eye Safety At-a-Glance Protecting Your Vision at Home, available at www.thevisioncouncil.org/consumers.

SPOTLIGHT on HEALTH and FITNESS

24 Local Businesses Participate In Healthy Workplace Challenge

Team From Marina Bay Skilled Nursing, Rehabilitation Places First

Team "Five Alive!" from Marina Bay Skilled Nursing and Rehabilitation took top honors in the recent Healthy Workplace Challenge.

Coming in right on their heels was Team "Grouchy Girls" from the South Shore YMCA, who claimed the second place title.

There were 42 teams comprised of 204 employees who laced up their sneakers for the challenge which was a six-week fitness and wellness program that focused on developing a healthy lifestyle in the workplace. The Challenge began on June 21, 2010 and commenced on July 30, 2010 and was sponsored by the Quincy Health, Beauty & Wellness League (HBW League), a subcommittee of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

Each team was assigned a personal trainer from the Fitness Factor, South Shore YMCA or SuperFitness that coached participants during the six-week program. In addition to the fitness component, participants also received blood pressure, glucose and cholesterol screenings from Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates, Manet Community Health Center and Quincy Medical Center.

"The focus was not solely on weight loss. It was about increasing one's overall health and well-being," said Donna Mavromates, Director of Marketing for the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. "While we declared two teams the 'winners', in actuality every team won because its members made positive lifestyle changes during the program that they may not have done otherwise."

Participants checked in with their coaches at regular intervals and earned points for attaining certain criteria throughout the six-week program.

Prizes for the first place team included a month of personal training from Evolution Lifestyles/SuperFitness, an overnight stay at the Boston Marriott Quincy, a pair of sunglasses provided by Nielsen Eye Center and a restaurant gift certificate courtesy of the Quincy Restaurant League. Second place team members each received a gift certificate for either a facial or massage, courtesy of the Spa at Boncaldo's.

A celebration event was hosted by the South Shore YMCA and was sponsored by MFS, Keohane Funeral Home, Ten Faxon, and BJ's Wholesale Club.

For more information regarding the Quincy Health, Beauty & Wellness League, please contact Donna Mavromates, Director of Marketing, Quincy Chamber of Commerce, (617) 471-1700, www.quincyhbwleague.com, www.thequincychamber.com. The goal of the HBW League is to: provide educational services, programs, publications and community events to promote health, beauty and wellness practices for all ages in the community; create a healthier workforce by increasing awareness of the many benefits associated with the incorporation of health, beauty and wellness practices; create more visibility for League member businesses and the individual services, products and programs they provide; provide opportunities for League members to share resources and knowledge through the establishment of open lines of communication.

THE ROAD LESS TRAVELED

Reports of high rates of severe injury among children, including spinal injuries, have prompted many health professionals to voice concern about all-terrain vehicle (ATV) safety. According to one study, nearly 4,500 children in the United States were injured in ATV-related accidents during one recent year, at least a 140 percent increase in the overall number of children injured since a decade prior and a 467 percent increase in spinal injuries. While spinal injuries can be devastating for anyone, they can be particularly so for youngsters. Seventy percent of these injuries occurred in children under age 16, and spinal injuries were more common in older girls. No one wants to see these preventable injuries in anyone, let alone children.

Today's column has been brought to you as a public service. Your children need a healthy spine for a healthy life. Include chiropractic checkups as part of your family's healthcare routine. Give the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC a call at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We have the experience and expertise to give you the care you need. Let us make a difference for your good health and comfort right now and in the future. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. In 1985, there were about 400,000 ATVs in this country. Today, the number is an estimated 9.2 million.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century
by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

GETTING TO THE ROOT

In the event of a tooth becoming abscessed (due to infection) or traumatized (due to injury), it is often necessary to perform root canal therapy to remove the dead or damaged root pulp. The goal of the procedure is to save the crown (white outer portion of the tooth). The pulp is the area inside the crown that extends down into the gums with nerves and blood vessels. The dentist can check to see if they tooth is alive by testing whether the patient can feel cold on the tooth or reacts to an electrical stimulation on the tooth. The procedure involves removing the pulp from the non-vital tooth and filling and sealing the area and securing the crown.

Ask for more details about the specific restoration planned for your tooth. After restoration, the tooth continues to function like any other tooth. We believe it is our responsibility to share our acquired knowledge and understanding of oral health with each and every patient, one on one. All of our patients are individuals, and as such will achieve our goal in different ways and at different places. Our office is located at 44 Greenleaf Street. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. A tooth's pulp tissue contains not only nerve fibers, but also arteries, veins, lymph vessels, and connective tissue.

Changes to Medicare

If you're about to sign up for Medicare, beware. Because of the new health reform laws, there are changes you need to research before you decide on your plans.

Some highlights:

With Medicare Advantage, next year there will be a cap on your out-of-pocket expenses for Medicare services. Plans won't be allowed to charge higher co-pays for patients receiving services such as chemotherapy. The election period is going to change: You'll be able to sign up for Advantage from Nov. 15 to Dec. 31 only, not during the first three months of the year as you previously could.

Medigap has changes as well. Plans E, H and I have been replaced with Plans M and N. Hospice is covered as a core benefit.

Plans K, L, and N will require you to pay for part of the Part B co-insurance and co-payments, but it could result in lower premiums. Plan K will cover 50 percent and Plan L will cover 75 percent of the costs.

Those who have Part D, the drug plan, will get a 50 percent discount on brand-name drugs when they reach the so-called doughnut hole. Starting next year, that gap will be gradually closed, a little each year, until 2020.

If you plan to make changes during open enrollment this year, be careful because of the shortened enrollment period. There may be more changes coming later to the Advantage plan.

Be sure you're reading the most up-to-date literature. For more information or for a booklet you can download, check online at www.medicaremadeclear.com, or call 1-880-MEDICARE. (Note: The booklet is not online at this writing, but officials promise it's coming soon.)

Also see the Medicare site at www.medicare.gov for help in picking out health and drug plans. Look for The New Health Care Law and You for an overview of the changes.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, Aug. 15, at approximately 2:41 p.m., Officer Tom Pepdjonovic was driving his police cruiser by the intersection of Faxon Road and Billings Road when he observed a male flagging him down.

LT. DAN MINTON

As the male walked closer to the cruiser, the officer recognized him as a local resident from past incidents and arrests. The male immediately stated he wanted his 19 year old son arrested because he was attacked by him. The male victim, (the father) speaking excitedly, stated that his son is out of control and was fearful of him. He added that they had a verbal argument earlier in the day due to his son smoking in the house and it ended when the son punched a hole in the wall located in the hallway.

The father said he left his son in the apartment and went outside. The father also said that his son attacked him last Friday with a "sickle," (an edge tool for cutting high grass or crops; has a curved blade and a short handle) chasing him around the apartment with the sickle, yelling that he was going to kill him. The father said that his son did not strike him with the sickle but held it in a threatening manner towards him.

The father said that once his son calmed down, his wife placed the sickle under their mattress in the bedroom. The father stated, "You can go in the bedroom to retrieve the sickle if you don't believe me." When asked why he didn't report the incident, the father said, "I didn't want to get my son in trouble, but I can't take it anymore."

At this time, Officer Stephen DesRoche arrived on scene and stayed downstairs with the victim while Officer Pepdjonovic went upstairs to find the suspect. The officer was greeted by a younger son, who stated that his older brother did not do anything and that his father was overmedicated. The officer told the son that his father appeared to be coherent and that he needed to speak to his brother. The suspect came out of his room and was questioned if he had an argument with his father.

The suspect said that there was an argument and he admitted to punching the hallway wall, then showed the officer a cardboard piece of paper that covered a medium size hole in the wall. The suspect stated that it is old damage and he just replaced the old cardboard that he had damaged with a new piece of cardboard. When the officer brought up the incident with the sickle on Friday, the suspect denied being home on Friday. Officer Pepdjonovic asked the younger son about the sickle and he stated that there was no sickle and that the officer could search anywhere he wanted.

The officer inquired where the parent's bedroom was and the younger son showed him. He then lifted the mattress and located the sickle.

At this point, Officer Pepdjonovic placed the suspect under arrest for "Assault with a Dangerous Weapon/ a sickle", and then transported him to the station for booking. The father was advised of his rights to get a restraining order, but decided that he wanted to talk to his wife first.

The sickle was placed into evidence awaiting trial.

To Host 13-Year-Old State Tournament in 2011; 15-Year-Old Regional in 2012

QBRL, Inc, Major Player On Babe Ruth Scene

By SEAN BRENNAN

The first time Quincy Babe Ruth League, Inc. hosted a big-time Babe Ruth tournament was back in 1997 when the league was asked to put on the 14-year-old New England Regional. Since 1997, QBRL has continued to carry the Babe Ruth torch in Quincy.

QBRL has been a part of three different Babe Ruth World Series (2003, 2005 and 2008), eight Massachusetts state tournaments and three New England Regional tournaments, and their commitment to being a major part of Babe Ruth on a state and regional level will continue next year when the league will host the 13-year-old Massachusetts State tournament and, again, in 2012 when QBRL will be the host league for the 15-year-old New England Regional tournament.

"It was the Massachusetts state commissioner who asked us the first time to hold the 14-year-old New England Regional and that was back in 1997," said QBRL President Dick Lombardi last week in an interview at The Quincy Sun. "At the time there was no 14-year-old Babe Ruth World Series, so that Regional was as far as they went.

"We held the 15-year-old Massachusetts state tournament in 1999 and it has been continuous (holding some type of Babe Ruth event) almost every year since. This past Regional was our third, and we have also held a state tournament eight times."

Regional and state tournaments are nice, but it has been the three Babe Ruth World Series that have been the most exciting – but also the most work.

"We hosted our first World Series in 2003, and again in 2005 and 2008," said Lombardi. "(Babe Ruth) would love for us to bring it back, but right now because financially the way business is, it would be tough. Putting on an event like the World Series is a lot of hard work. They have been great for Quincy in the past, so maybe at some point in the future we can do it again."

Lombardi also made the point that putting on tournaments takes the dedication of an army of volunteers, and that commitment can be a tough sell during these difficult times.

"It has not just been me," Lombardi stated emphatically. "It has been a lot of people and volunteers, but the problem is that it is so much money and another problem for hosting a World Series is finding enough housing through host families.

"But it is people like John Norton (QBRL vice president), Bob Griffin, and my wife, Connie, to name just a few, and I could sit here and rattle off names of people who have helped us over the years, that have allowed us to host so many Babe Ruth tournaments. The Sons of Italy have also been great to us over the years.

"It is just a matter of things turning around. If things do, maybe we can host another World Series soon."

QBRL has done all of this the past 13 years on top of running a league, that in 2010, had eight teams and approximately 105 kids, all who were given the opportunity to play baseball at a high level, starting at age 13 and continuing until age 15. The league's regular season begins in early April and concludes most years in July.

QBRL also has 13, 14, and 15-year-old summer travel teams, which play in the South Suburban Baseball League. This year's 13-year-old team won the District 4 championship and qualified for the Babe Ruth 13-year-old Eastern Massachusetts tournament, which was held at Adams Field late last month.

"The league is strong, but we did deal with lots of injuries this year and when you lose two to three players off a team there is no leeway, so it was tough," said Lombardi. "But we made it through this year. It wasn't the easiest of years, but we are looking forward to next season and getting a good group of kids in."

The fact that everyone who signs up with QBRL gets an equal chance to field, bat and pitch is something that Lombardi takes pride in. He also credits his coaches for the ability to include all of their players in every game.

"The kids are all playing and getting plenty of experience," he continued, "and we have some great coaches who are dedicated to what they do; they all have to make time during the summer to do what they do and to make sure every kid is playing. I am happy with the way things are going and hopefully everything goes well the next two years with these tournaments."

Lombardi continued:

"I would like to thank Tom Koch for all of the support he has given us over the years, both when he was Park Director and now as Mayor and the entire staff at the Park Department for their support and time.

"I would also like to thank our board members and all of the coaches, volunteers, parents, players and everyone else who have made it possible for us to hold these tournaments and have such a great league. We couldn't do it without them."

Quincy Militia Riding A Six-Game Winning Streak

By JOE REARDON

The Quincy Militia tripled up its protection on the line and that made all the difference in its sixth consecutive win of the season last Saturday at Veterans Stadium.

Leading by a 7-0 score at halftime against the Bay State Buccaneers, Vaughn Driscoll went with a three tight end set that not only slowed down the Buccaneers' defensive standout Corey Eason, but opened the Militia's running attack as well. The result was a 28-6 Quincy rout.

The win was the team's sixth in a row heading towards a showdown this Saturday at Charlestown. The Militia then takes on Clinton, at home, on Sept. 4 in a rematch of last year's title contest.

"We're playing teams that are still growing," said Driscoll. "The next four weeks are teams that are grown."

With the meat of the schedule coming up, Driscoll was busy during the week at practice going over pass protection and zone defense.

Dolan Reid and Joe Hobbs ran for over 100 yards each for the Militia (6-1) with Reid racing home for scores from 43 and 28 yards out. Defensively, Quincy's secondary came up with four interceptions, led by cornerback Eric Tabb, who pulled in a pair.

Driscoll still had questions surrounding his club heading into the Bay State game.

"You start winning, even though it's against middle of the road teams, and you can get a big head," said Driscoll. "When we go nose to nose with a team that doesn't budge, I'll know where we're at. Those last four games are going to show us how we stand against the best in the league."

Driscoll has instilled into the Militia all season that the squad has to fully concentrate on the team its on the field against at that moment, not one a week or even two, down the line.

Driscoll admitted he'd like to come out of the next four-game stretch at least 2-2. "We'd like to win all four, but I'm a realist," he said. "These are four very good teams. For us to beat these teams it's going to be tough."

Militia defeat Mid Coast (46-0)

What Driscoll does know for certain is that the Militia hasn't been looking past average to below average teams before the fact. Mid Coast probably wishes it stayed on the bus after its 4-1/2 hour trek from Maine Aug. 14 to take on Quincy at Veterans Stadium.

The Militia, who played every one of its 60 roster players, took a 27-0 lead into the half and let the second and third string finish things off in the third and fourth quarters to come away with a lopsided 46-0 win.

Mid Coast had no shot at putting together any sort of momentum as Quincy made plays on both sides of the ball from the start. Reid put the Militia on the scoreboard in a hurry, racing back the opening kickoff 83 yards for the score. Wide receiver Joe Hobbs had five catches for 88 yards, including a pair of touchdowns. Backup quarterback Randy Campbell was hot in the pocket as he hooked up with wide receiver Derrick McQueen for a 53-yard scoring pass.

The defense's continued aggressive play was also a factor in putting points on the board for the Militia. Linebacker Matt Gage had four tackles and Chris Dolbeare stepped in front of a Mid Coast pass and returned it 38 yards for another TD.

Back in the defensive secondary it was Richard Ruiz who put up some impressive numbers while frustrating the Mid Coast receivers. The free safety had a 61-yard interception return for a touchdown to go with his three tackles.

Driscoll was able to give the starters a rest in the second half with the backups coming off the bench to put their mark on the victory. "The fourth quarter we were able to play all our third string guys," said Driscoll.

The next four games should be the biggest of the season starting Saturday, Aug. 28 at Charlestown (7 p.m.). The long-awaited showdown of last year's championship contest against Clinton is slated for Sept. 4 at Veterans Stadium (7 p.m.). The Militia rounds out its regular season schedule with games at Taunton on Sept. 11 (8 p.m.) and at Boston on Sept. 18 (7 p.m.).

'Teamwork Quincy' Takes Part In Metro Mayor's Basketball Tournament

"Teamwork Quincy," sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Police Department, participated once again in 2010, in the Third Annual Metro Mayor's Shannon Grant Basketball Tournament, which was held July 31 at the outdoor courts at Trum Field in Somerville.

"Teamwork Quincy" team members are selected from participants in the summer long Shannon Grant Community Safety Initiative that is conducted evenings during July and August at Kincaide Park in West Quincy and Merrymount Park in Wollaston.

The ten-member Quincy team (ages 14-19) played well in tournament, splitting two games in the round robin tourney with the loss coming against eventual finalist Cambridge, 24-17; Quincy defeated the host team from Somerville, 31-17.

The annual event, which also includes a three-point contest, brings teams from the Metro Mayor's communities together and demonstrates solidarity and peaceful positive recreation among the teams representing communities from Everett, Malden, Medford, Winthrop, Chelsea, Revere, Cambridge, Somerville and Quincy.

Gregory Clarke, Paul Cunniff, Paul Gould, Efthim Butka, Marquis McClendon, Marquis Chase, Devon Simmons, Michael Morrison, Ryan Evans, and Kyle McKay made up the "Teamwork Quincy" roster; Chris Delaney, QRD staff, coached the team, and Michelle Hanly, Shannon Grant Coordinator and Joe MacRitchie, QRD Site Supervisor, also accompanied the team to Somerville.

Barry J. Welch, Recreation Director, Police Lt. Patrick Glynn and Quincy Police Officer Christine Hurton also attended the daylong activities.

According Welch, the Shannon Community Safety Initiative conducts a wide range of activities to prevent youth or gang violence within member communities. The programs, he continued, are designated to bring agencies together while working to protect public safety, provide intervention and positive prevention programs like supervised youth activities that are conducted at Merrymount and Kincaide Park in Quincy.

Amy Rielly, the Government Affairs Liaison of the MAPC, organized and supervised the tournament; the grant originates from the Executive Office of Public Safety.

Mayor Thomas Koch is an active member of the Metro Mayors Coalition and is a strong advocate for the Teamwork Program in Quincy.

Applications Available for QRD Annual Tennis Tourney

The Quincy Recreation Department is pleased to announce the celebration of its 40th Annual Citywide Tennis Tournament.

This tournament has been crowing champions since 1970; once again the Quincy Credit Union will sponsor this event.

"This marks the 15th year that the Quincy Credit Union has provided the financial backing to keep this traditional tournament a low cost activity for all ages and abilities of Quincy families," said Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation. "The generosity of the Quincy Credit Union to our citizens is to be commended."

The tennis tournament is open to Quincy residents and will include 11 events, which will crown a city champion. A special division, now in its sixth year, will conduct a city champion for city employees regardless of their residency.

This year's deadline for applications is Sept. 10 and the tournament will begin on Sept. 15. All matches are played on the municipal courts on Russell Park behind Quincy High School, and weather permitting, the tournament will conclude on Sept. 26.

According to QRD records, this tournament is believed to be the largest and oldest municipal tournament in New England. The entry fee is $18 for adults and $8 for participants under 16-years of age and this fee entitles participants to enter and compete in as many events as they qualify. All participants also will receive a QRD Tournament t-shirt.

The events are as follows:

Men's Singles, Men's 35 & Over Singles, Men's 50 & Over Singles, Men's Doubles, Women's Singles Women's 35 & Over Singles, Women's Doubles, Mixed Doubles, Boys 16 & Under Singles and Girls 16 & Under Singles.

There is also a Men's Singles "B" event, which is conducted from a pool of players who are defeated in the Men's Singles first round; the City Employee Event rounds out the tournament.

Applications are now available and may be obtained at the Quincy Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway, or at QuincyRec.com, or in special boxes at the tennis court's entrance.

For additional information, contact the QRD at 617-376-1394.

QYS Thanks 2010 Sponsors

Quincy Youth Soccer (QYS) is proud to say 'thank you' to all the local businesses and politicians who have come forward to sponsor teams, and, in some cases, whole divisions for this upcoming season.

Over the past 30 years, QYS has relied upon the generosity of the many local businesses and politicians who have helped defray the cost of uniforms for the thousands of children who have played soccer in the city. QYS realizes that in these turbulent financial times it is hard for anyone to donate to youth sports and is pleased to acknowledge all of the local businesses and politicians that are helping us again this year.

Our sponsors this year include:

Bernie and Phyls, Curtin & Ludke Certified Public Accountants, Eastern Bank, Feenan Financial Group, Flavin & Flavin Realtors, Furnace Brook Physical Therapy, Granite Links, Quincy Credit Union, Quincy Lodge of Elks, Dependable Cleaners, Graeber, Davis & Cantwell, Councillor Joseph Finn, Keezer Sportswear, Mantis Florist, The Quincy Sun, Reggie's Oil, Rep. Bruce Ayers, Rural Lodge of Masons, City Councillor Michael McFarland, A. Hohmann Oil & Plumbing.

Braces by Abromowitz, Granite City Storage, Mayor Thomas Koch, Skoler Orthodontics, Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, Bates & Riordan, Mass Energy Consumers Alliance, Rotary Club of Quincy, Beacon Sports, Colonial Federal Savings, Sen. Michael Morrissey, Norfolk County Registrar of Deeds Patrick McDermott, School Committee Member Anne Mahoney, Ford Law P.C., Creeds Crossing, and Keohane Funeral Home.

Quincy Youth Soccer extends a big 'thank you' to all of the above, as well as a very special 'thank you' to Shaw's Supermarkets for their donation of uniforms for our Under-6 and Under-7 programs (our largest programs) and a generous monetary donation. In addition, QYS thanks Quirk Chevrolet for both their monetary and equipment donations.

Quincy Youth Soccer's board of directors stated, "It is with the generosity and continued support from the business and political communities that Quincy Youth Soccer can provide a very cost efficient soccer program to the children of Quincy."

Quincy Youth Soccer will have 2010 registration information in the Sept. 2 issue of The Quincy Sun.

In Support of HN Mayor Candidate Steve Holler

Rubber Duck Regatta Aug. 29 at The Public Landing

Steve Holler, known for selling his lobsters at the Public Landing (aka the PL), a Houghs Neck landmark, and for his community support for the HNCC and his advocacy on drug awareness, has been nominated as a candidate in the 'Mayor of Houghs Neck Contest.'

Capt. Steve Holler collects donations for his campaign fund aboard his vessel the November Gale on Fridays from 3-6 p.m. and Saturdays from Noon-5 p.m., when he's selling his lobsters, "Fresh from my pots to yours." This is the last weekend of the season for him, so if you are looking to buy lobsters, not only can you support our local coastal economy, but you can support the Houghs Neck Community Council too.

This Sunday (Aug. 29) from 4-5:30 p.m., the Steve Holler Campaign Committee and the HNCC will host a Rubber Duck Regatta at "the creek," at the Rockland Street bridge, where Rockland Street intersects with Spring Street; the winning duck receives a cash prize.

To purchase a duck, contact Nancy Holler at 617-471-2507, or email nholler@gmail.com or go to www.HoughsNeck.org.

The Mayor of Houghs Neck competition started in 2008 as a way to promote the Spirit of Houghs Neck and raise money for the programs held at the HNCC, and the HNCC Scholarship Fund.

The other candidates for 2010 are Marty Gordon and Kim Fallon.

The Mayor of Houghs Neck is an honorary title only which will be awarded to the candidate that raises the most money, no political post is actually appointed; the candidate will be inaugurated at the Houghs Neck Chowdafest on Sat., Sept. 18 from 2-6 p.m. at the PL/ Houghs Neck Maritime Center.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

September is back-to-school time. From every party of the country boys and girls, young men and young women, will be starting school.

In today's world, the sum total of man's knowledge is exploding upward at an accelerating pace. It takes many more years of schooling to become well trained in any field and further to become a well-educated human being with the established, permanent desire and ability to continue the learning process throughout life.

Let us remember that the real promise of the future lies in the vast majority of hardworking young people who look forward to the reopening of school this month; not only for the social companionship, excitement, and fun of activities, but also because they feel the stimulation of learning about their heritage and opportunities and exploring the vast fields of knowledge now being unfolded to man's mind.

As the school bells ring again, let us wish them well . .

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This could be the time to try soothing whatever bad feelings might be lingering 'twixt and among colleagues, friends or family members. But be sure you do so without favoring any side.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An idea is only an idea until you put that clever Bovine mind to work to develop it from concept to substance. This could lead to something rewarding, both emotionally and monetarily.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The early part of the week could have some disconcerting moments, but approaching them with a calm, unruffled attitude goes a long way toward helping to get things nicely settled down.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Getting used to change continues to mark much of the week. But accepting what you have to do makes adapting that much easier. A welcome visitor could turn up sooner than expected.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Learning how to live with a decision is a challenge, but one you Leos and Leonas could really enjoy. You'll also be pleased to see your social life take that upsurge you've been hoping for.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Use your perceptive Virgo instinct to help you see the positive aspects of what, at first, appears to be a disappointment. You could find that it proves to be quite the contrary.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your ability to maintain a balance between sense and sentiment once again helps you sort through apparently conflicting choices and ultimately arrive at the right decision.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Before you seek the advice of colleagues about a potential career move, you might be better off getting counsel from someone who won't be affected by the choices you make.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It can be a challenging week for some relationships if the normal give-and-take flow changes with one side doing most of the giving and the other the taking.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A new opportunity could bring with it much anticipation along with some anxiety. Take time to sort out your options as well as your emotional considerations.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Are you sure you have all the facts you need to let that matter move to another level? Don't be rushed into a decision unless and until you feel it's the right thing to do.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Pace yourself as you prepare to take on that more demanding project. Be careful not to let your energy reserves drain away. Take time to relax with people close to you.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have the ability to see both sides of a situation. You would do well as a counselor or a judge.

Local Architect Wins Preservation Award

Stephen Wessling, principal at Stephen J. Wessling Architects, Quincy, led the work of a design team on a project at New England Conservatory Campus that recently received the 2010 Preservation Achievement Award.

The award, given annually by the Boston Preservation Alliance, honors outstanding achievement in historic preservation and compatible new construction in Boston.

The New England Conservatory Campus was honored in the category of exceptional maintenance of a historical property. The renovation project concentrated on the exterior renovation of Jordan Hall, 265 Huntington Ave., 241 St. Botoloph St. and 33 Gainsborough Street in Boston's Back Bay. Exterior materials were matched as closely as possible for color, texture and appearance. New stucco, terra cotta and marble were installed and all façade masonry joints were either cut and re-pointed or given new sealants.

Energy-efficient options included the installation of a white roofing system on Jordan Hall, as well as the replacement of failed windows with either new wood windows or insulated aluminum windows. Emphasis on historic preservation and sustainability was crucial and NEC worked closely with the Massachusetts Historical Commission in order to remain in compliance with the Secretary of the Interior/National Park Service standards.

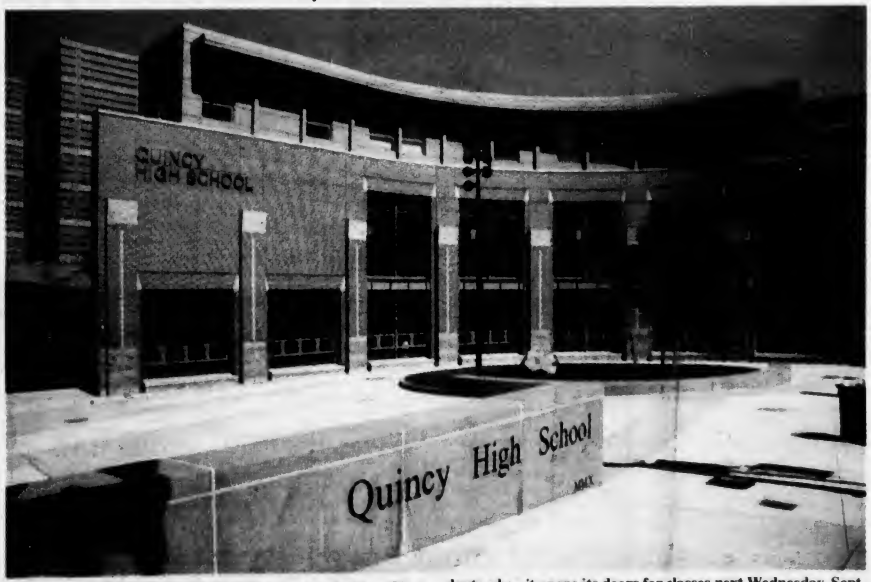
City Celebrates, Dedicates New $126 Million Building

New Era At Quincy High

By JOE REARDON



As the crowd eagerly filed into the Lloyd H. Hill Auditorium and the seats quickly filled, Quincy School Superintendent Richard DeCristofaro took particular satisfaction in his first words from the podium on the brand new stage.

"I love to say this," DeCristofaro said with a smile. "There are plenty of seats in the balcony."

A crowd of 675 was on hand Sunday afternoon for the much anticipated, ribbon-cutting ceremony and dedication of the $126 million, 330,000-square-foot Quincy High School.

The city received a reimbursement of $68.5 million from the Massachusetts School Building Authority, as well as a $300,000 grant from the Massachusetts Technological Collaborative to have electricity-generating solar panels installed on the roof.

City Prepares For Hit Or Miss With Earl

Whatever direction Hurricane Earl ultimately takes this weekend, the City is mobilizing for a direct hit from the powerful Atlantic hurricane, Mayor Thomas Koch said.

The Mayor met with his emergency management team on Tuesday to review any number of potential scenarios, but Koch said he made it clear "that we will be ready for whatever Earl brings."

"We are monitoring the forecast closely, and we know full well that a projected path out to sea today could turn into a direct hit within just a few hours," Koch said. "There is no oth-

Outside, parking was increased with 234 spaces in the North Parking area. The parking along Coddington Street remained the way it was before construction began. Twenty-nine spaces were also added between the school and Quincy College.

The state-of-the-art building offers classes from carpentry to automotive tech, every shop has a technology-based classroom, and the courses offered range from the culinary arts to plumbing, welding and metal fabrication.

A first-floor cafeteria opens into a courtyard and a restaurant, which is also open to the public. Attorney George Burke donated $50,000 for weights and a fitness room.

DeCristofaro said the new Quincy High was not the one he or any of his family members attended. "It's absolutely a dream that has come to reality," said DeCristofaro. "As it (construction) progressed you could realize what a wonderful building we would have.

"When I was thinking of when we went to Quincy High School, there weren't the opportunities there are now. The are more pathways than there were before."

DeCristofaro said it was "pretty unique for a project of this side to come in under budget" and that the spacious auditorium, with its 750 seats would service many community events in the future, not just school-related functions.

The afternoon began with refreshments of crackers and cheese in the school cafeteria and music from the Quincy High Jazz Band. Hanging from the ceiling were the flags of 75 countries, representing the native land of students and faculty, alike, at the school.

The honorary keys were presented to Mayor Thomas Koch by Quincy City Council President Kevin F. Coughlin, Quincy High Senior Class President Kendra Johnston, James Anderson of Tishman Construction, Edward Frenette of Symmes, Maini & McKee, and Gilbane Construction's James Driscoll.

Koch commended former mayors James Sheets and William Phelan for their work in keeping the project in the forefront during their tenures, as well as Quincy High Principal Frank Santoro, who spent much of his summer at the school while the project was finishing up.

"What a beautiful day inside this magnificent building," said Koch. "This building will transcend many generations."

City Council President Kevin Coughlin thanked all who were involved in the process of making the new high school a reality and making the ceremony possible. "I wanted to step aside as a simple citizen and say thank you," he said.

After introducing the other members of the school committee, Vice-Chairperson Anne Mahoney told the audience the school was much more than brick and glass, but the people who will bring the building to life.

"Many thought this day would never come," said Mahoney. "It's a setting that is both glorious and functional."

Santoro said the students and faculty took the three moves, along with the packing and unpacking during the construction, in stride. The teachers did an excellent job in keeping the classroom environment "conducive to learning" Santoro told the crowd.

State Treasure Tim Cahill, a Class of 1977 alumnus, also thanked Koch and the former mayors, as well as the state delegates who fought for the project.

"It's not an accident," said Cahill. "You are very lucky to have these great leaders. Many hands it takes to build a building like this. My breath is taken away when I look around here."

Ask the GEMOLOGIST®
BY JEFFREY M. BERTMAN
GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST
THE BURNING-SUNSET GEMSTONE
A few decades ago, East African miners in search of the purplish-pink garnet known as rhodolite instead happened upon a strange reddish-orange garnet that was mixed in with pink garnet. Seeing as there was no immediate market for the gemstone, the miners dismissed it and nicknamed it "Malaya," which means "outcast." In time, however, this beautiful gemstone could not help but be noticed by German and American buyers. After that, "Malaya garnet" developed a passionate following, and prices began to soar. Gemologists recognized it as a new breed of garnet: part grossular, pyrope, almandine, and spessartite, which led some to label it pyralspite. Whatever name it goes by, there is no doubting the burning red-orange intensity of this remarkable find.
From garnets of unusual color to diamonds of pure colorless brilliance, if you appreciate the beauty of fine gemstones of all kinds, housed in elegant settings of precious metals, we know you'll be delighted with what you in our beautiful displays. Test Run For Hurricane Preparedness

Heavy August Rains Caused Spotty Problems

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Last week's Nor'easter doused the city with 7.99 inches with over two inches a day, according to library sources,

The downpours caused some flash floods, but that may just have been a prelude of more to come as weather forecasters warned Hurricane Earl could hit the region by tomorrow (Friday) or Saturday.

City workers are ready, according to Larry Prendeville, Commissioner of the Department of Public Works (DPW), who said Tuesday, "We're in pre-flood stage."

"We're preparing for this next batch," Prendeville said, noting he's been working in tandem with the mayor's office and forestry department since weather forecasters issued the first hurricane warning that Hurricane Earl could smack the coastline.

Prendeville reported that drains had been checked, as have the city's pumps and supply of sandbags. "We're already in preliminary stages."

DPW workers had a test run of their equipment last week as over two inches of rain fell on each day for four days.

The downpours created some isolated problems in West Quincy, North Quincy, Quincy Point and Wollaston.

"We got an initial burst of calls for a couple of hours," Prendeville said, adding there was some flash

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 11, 1857, Mormon guerrillas, stoked by religious zeal and a deep resentment of decades of public abuse, murder 120 emigrants at Mountain Meadows, Utah. The conflict with the wagon train of emigrants from Missouri and Arkansas apparently began when the Mormons refused to sell the train any supplies.

• On Sept. 10, 1897, 25-year-old London taxi driver George Smith becomes the first person ever arrested for drunk driving after slamming his cab into a building. Smith later pled guilty and was fined 25 shillings.

• On Sept. 6, 1915, a prototype tank nicknamed Little Willie rolls off the assembly line in England. Little Willie was far from an overnight success. It weighed 14 tons, got stuck in trenches and crawled over rough terrain at only 2 mph. However, improvements were made to the original prototype and tanks eventually transformed military battlefields.

• On Sept. 9, 1939, audiences at the Fox Theater in Riverside, Calif., get a surprise showing of "Gone with the Wind," which the theater manager shows as a second feature. Producer David O. Selznick sat in the back and observed the audience reaction to his highly anticipated film. The movie was released a few months later.

• On Sept. 7, 1950, Julie Kavner, perhaps best known as the voice of Marge Simpson on "The Simpsons," is born in Los Angeles. Kavner's first professional acting job came in 1974 when she was cast as Brenda Morgenstern in the TV series "Rhoda."

• On Sept. 12, 1972, cowboy actor William Boyd, best known for his film and television role as Hopalong Cassidy, dies at the age of 77. By 1950, American children had made "Hopalong Cassidy" the seventh most popular TV show in America.

• On Sept. 8, 1986, "The Oprah Winfrey Show" is broadcast nationally for the first time. A huge success, her daytime television talk show turned Winfrey into one of the most powerful, wealthiest people in show business. Proving that talk-show host wasn't the only role she could play, Winfrey made her big-screen debut as Sofia in director Steven Spielberg's "The Color Purple" (1985).

Ray McEachern: A Man Of Dignity

The phone rang one day a few weeks ago.

Leo Kelly answered. It was longtime friend Ray McEachern, the well-known former reporter for The Patriot Ledger.

"He called just to talk," Leo says, recalling the conversation with McEachern who had lived in Houghs Neck for many years before returning to his native New Hampshire several years ago. They had first met some 30 years ago.

"We talked quite a while. Ray told me he wanted to come back to Quincy and just visit some of his favorite spots like City Hall, Houghs Neck, The Sun and The Ledger and I'd go around with him. He also wanted to go fishing again in Quincy Bay."

That was typical Ray. He loved Houghs Neck. He relished local politics. He also enjoyed the outdoors and taking care of himself. He was an avid walker, bike-rider and runner, too.

But that phone call was really about saying goodbye.

Two days later – on Aug. 15 – Ray died after a long battle with kidney disease. He was only 67.

"Ray knew he didn't have a lot of time," Leo says, sadness in his soft voice. "It was a conversation I will never forget. To have someone like him call you and just want to talk before they pass away is extraordinary. It gave me such a good feeling to know our friendship was so two-sided."

Say the name Ray McEachern and you'll hear the words decent, honorable and terrific. But his final days were marked by one overwhelming attribute: dignity.

"When Ray knew (his illness) was terminal, he did it with great dignity," said his brother, Paul McEachern from his Portsmouth, N.H. law office. "Ray made contact with people he hadn't made contact with for quite a while. His personality returned after he stopping taking medication and he reconnected with his world. He inspired the rest of us. He was an example for the next generation of his family on how to die with dignity.

"Ray had about 20 nieces and nephews. I'm sure he'll be missed."

As a reporter, Ray's forte was fairness, objectivity and attention to detail. Beneath his byline a reader knew lay the facts – and only the facts – of a story. His stories educated, enlightened and entertained the reader.

One of the big reasons Ray embarked on a career in journalism was his relationship with the late Donald Murray. Mr. Murray, who grew up in Quincy, was a Pulitzer-prize winning journalist and longtime English teacher at the University of New Hampshire where Ray graduated in 1965.

Mr. Murray – who was also an author – died in 2006.

"He was certainly inspired by his journalism teacher Don Murray and kept in touch with him over his career," Paul says.

But Ray's penchant for detail was perhaps something he learned outside the classroom.

Paul recalled when he and his brothers were younger, they painted houses during the summer to earn extra money.

"Ray's job was to paint the house numbers. Sometimes we complained it took him too much time," Paul laughed. "But paying attention to detail really served him well (in journalism.) Ray really liked to get the story right. He was a detailed person if ever there was one."

By one estimate, Ray wrote some 9,000 stories and columns during his nearly 35-year career for The Ledger.

"The man could write," notes Leo, the longtime Ward 1 city councillor. "Ray had a great way of bringing a story to life."

Sadly, Ray is the third veteran Quincy newspaperman to die during the last year and a half. Quincy Sun founder Henry Bosworth passed away in February, 2009. Longtime Sun reporter Tom Henshaw died earlier this year.

This trio left an unfillable void.

Those who knew Ray – and admired him for his news writing skills – would agree.

"We've really lost three outstanding reporters. Henry Bosworth, Tom Henshaw and now Ray. They knew the city well and could write on any subject in the city. They were three extremely fair men," Leo says.

"Ray was an all-around good guy. He was very decent. He was a guy you would sit down with and talk to. Ray would always give you the time to talk. We'd go out to lunch together and just shoot the breeze; just be friends.

"I miss him terribly, like I miss Henry and Tom," Leo adds.

Quincy Sun staff writer Marie D'Olimpio was also saddened by Ray's passing. She has fond memories of Ray while writing for both The Sun and The Ledger.

"When I think of him back when I was a news writer for The Patriot Ledger, Ray would walk slowly in the office and had the greatest smile. He was a laid-back kind of guy. During the day, we would always get to talk to each other.

"Then, when I began working for my wonderful friend Henry Bosworth at The Quincy Sun, Ray and I covered the License Board meetings every Tuesday morning at City Hall. For about the next 10 years, we were able to talk to each other. He always complimented me on how I looked, and who doesn't like to hear that?'

"Sometimes, Ray referred to me as a 'fashion plate.'

"When the License Board story was printed the next day, I always enjoyed reading Ray's version of the meeting. I marveled at his writing and loved his style and thought he was a brilliant reporter.

"His style was unique. I will miss him and was privileged to know and respect a wonderful man," Marie adds.

Ray was covering City Hall when I started my career at The Sun in the late 1980s. We usually saw each other going in and out of the mayor's office. He always had nice things to say about The Sun and frequented the office quite a bit in those days when The Ledger was located around the corner on Temple Street.

It was a different era back then.

The reporters generally knew each other as well as the politicians they covered. Ray, along with fellow Ledger reporters Marie Cunningham and Muriel McKenzie, would stop in and buy The Sun at our front counter. It was not uncommon for Ray, Marie and Muriel to stay and chat in the newsroom here for lengthy periods of time.

I was very fond of Ray. He'd share stories of his days on the Durham campus at UNH. He was a fellow classmate of Boston television news pioneer Natalie Jacobson. A quick hello would become a 30-minute chat. But it was always time well spent because Ray was so interesting.

He particularly liked to talk local politics. Ray grew up in a political family and served a term in the New Hampshire legislature for a couple of years when he attended UNH in the early 1960s.

"Ray understood politics and he could relate to people who held office and understood their concerns," says Paul, a longtime Democrat and three-time gubernatorial candidate in the Granite State. He came within 7 percentage points of defeating John Sununu in 1986.

In 2002, Ray received a Good Neighbor Award from the Houghs Neck Community Council for being an all around good guy and for writing positive human interest stories.

"Ray loved Houghs Neck and he loved the people here," Leo remembers. "Ray also helped a lot of people who were down on their luck. If they needed a helping hand, Ray was there to give it to them."

Paul McEachern said Ray loved Houghs Neck because it's a close-knit, stable community. "I think he felt comfortable there. He stayed in the same house the entire time he lived in Houghs Neck.

"He had a sense of place, that's for sure."

And he'll always have his place in this community, too.

Ray McEachern: great reporter, tremendous friend, wonderful neighbor.

We'll miss you.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN old postcard view of the Squantum Post Office when it was in a variety store operated by Grace Polson who published this postcard in the 1920's. Located at 735 East Squantum Street, the store was first opened in 1912 as Watt's Variety with the post office that was in this building for almost 50 years. Note the stop sign on the utility pole along with the painted band that designated trolley stops. Although not readily recognizable, this building still exists in the same location. Dimattia Sails and Yacht Systems have built an addition on the rear and they have been here for almost 50 years. The front porch, now closed in, has served a number of businesses and is now home to Results Real Estate owned by Maureen Glynn. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

30% Voter Turnout Predicted

This Week

By FRANK McCAULEY

More than twice as many Quincy voters are expected to stay home than got to the polls in next Tuesday's Democratic and Republican state primaries.

City Clerk John M. Gillis predicted that no more than 30% of the city's 47,062 voters would cast ballots.

"And we'll be lucky if we get 30%," he added. "There are no real big battles to bring the voters out. The interest just doesn't seem to be there." (Editor's note: 22,630 or 48.4% of Quincy's eligible voters cast ballots.)

One Quincy name on the ballot, former Lt. Governor Francis X. Bellotti, was attempting to make a political comeback as a Democratic candidate for Attorney General.

Perhaps the best race of all was for the state representative seat being vacated by Rep. Clifford H. Marshall who was running for Norfolk County Sheriff. Candidates included Robert Cerasoli, Patrick Faherty, James Papile and Thomas Williams.

ENROLLMENT DIPS TO 16,000 AS SCHOOL BELLS RING OUT

Fifty-four new teachers joined the Quincy Public School staff of over 1,000 greeting approximately 16,000 elementary, junior high and high school students during opening day of the 1974-1972 school year.

Although enrollment falls short of last year's official registration of 16,203 students, School Superintendent Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon said, "The downward trend is not a significant one." (Editor's note: The school population would continue to decrease, bottoming out at approximately 7,900 in 1989-1990.)

BROWNWELL SEEKS AG's ACTION AGAINST QUINCY BAY SEWAGE

Rep. Thomas Brownwell has requested the Attorney General's office to issue an official complaint against MDC pumping facilities in the Quincy area.

Brownwell noted that over the Labor Day weekend, "large quantities of sewage discharges" appeared on Quincy Bay beaches including Wollaston, Merrymount and Weymouth beaches. Although Brownwell found no evidence of raw sewage, he did say, "the rancid odor was very bad." He also noted a red tinge, like the red tide color in place along Wollaston Beach.

Cost-Recovery Fee Probably Too Good To Be True

When I first heard about this cost-recovery fee proposed by the Quincy City Council for seeking monetary recovery from insurance companies when the Quincy Fire Department responds to car crashes with the City of Quincy, I thought if this was such a great idea why haven't we heard of it along time ago.

Public safety services are financed through property taxes levied on city taxpayers. The idea of going after someone's insurance company to gain additional monies for public safety services apparently sounds great to city politicians strapped for funds and not wanting to raise taxes in this struggling economy.

If you listen to proponents of this recovery idea, you hear good amounts of money coming into the city coffers to be used by the fire department for services rendered. Remember if something sounds too good, it is usually too good to be true. This might be the case with this council proposal.

By the way, that allusive pot of gold seen by folks at City Hall may never materialize. It would appear only the collection company contracted by the city would see any monetary gain in it all. You can bet the insurance companies will fight this idea tooth and nail and then some. Meanwhile, if forced, these companies will only pass their monetary loss onto Quincy auto insurance customers in higher premiums. It looks like a lose-lose situation for Quincy residents.

Also, to be noted, six states, Arkansas, Georgia, Indiana, Missouri, Pennsylvania and Tennessee have all banned these auto crash fees. Remember that pot of gold, well, it is a pot but it isn't for any gold.

HN Legion Babe Ruth Team Brought Back Great Memories

It brought back great memories when reading The Quincy Sun about the Houghs Neck Legion Babe Ruth team's recent championship. Adding to those fond memories was seeing Coach Dave MacMillan in the team picture.

Dave was my coach 33-35 years ago for Houghs Neck Legion and he was the best baseball coach I ever played for. No one taught the fundamentals or the mental aspect of the game better than Dave. He covered every little detail that added up to well rounded and prepared players.

Playing errors in the field he accepted with encouragement but any mental errors he was the first to correct. He always wanted his players thinking, being mentally prepared. Being young kids we didn't realize or appreciate the knowledge and dedication he had for us. We couldn't figure out why he would ask us not to bring our baseball gloves to the next practice. We would soon learn how to run bases correctly and learn how to bunt.

We would spend valuable time on the other fundamentals/intangibles of the game and not just hitting and fielding. Still today I see many majors leaguers not knowing how to do it correctly. Dave's players knew how. Dave and his assistants taught respect, discipline and hard work, qualities that last a lifetime. He would take the time to talk to us. He cared for his players. He treated every player fairly.

I read that Dave continued to teach kids how to play the game for a total of 49 years and is now retiring. What Dave taught me in three years I was able to pass onto my kids and their teammates over the years with great success. I'm sure other former players did the same. Even though Dave may be taking a step back from the game of baseball, his legacy will live on, not just in Quincy, but also in other areas where his former players may have landed.

Thanks to Dave for all the teachings, time and dedication he has given to the youth of Quincy.

Cape Cod – No Darker Place

Author Sandra Lee's New Book A Dark Thriller

By JOE REARDON

Sandra Lee is traveling down a dark, horrific road that will take her from Cape Cod, to Philadelphia, Chicago and beyond.

Readers who have followed Lee's work of motivational books will see an entirely different side to her prose in the Quincy resident's latest novel Cape Cod – No Place Darker: The Vampire Vendetta Series. The book was officially released yesterday (Wednesday).

Set on Cape Cod in 1992, Lee's dark thriller centers around the events of Labor Day weekend when five people are reported missing in the course of three days, possibly at the hands of a serial killer. An ailing state trooper, Brian Deutsch, takes on the case and looks for clues behind five crime scenes, while his health continues to deteriorate.

Despite his health struggles, Deutsch doesn't waver in his obsession with solving the murders and is solid as the novel's protagonist. "It adds strength to the character," said Lee. "I think I needed an authoritative figure. The reason he's ailing is because of the bite he receives by a bat. He becomes ill a few months before the cases."

Lee's second novel in The Vampire Vendetta Series, "Philadelphia – City of Brotherly Love" is due out at the end of the year and will contain many of the characters from Cape Cod – No Place Darker. Lee is also forming a plot for a third novel, Chicago – The Windy City. The titles, Lee said, tie into the stories on a different level than what they're commonly known for.

For Lee, the title of the inaugural Vampire Vendetta novel came easily. She knew of the expression "Cape Cod, no darker place" but found no other reference to it other than the cold, winter months that blanket the peninsula.

"There was nothing I found that supported that phrase," said Lee. "Folks often remember these words in superficial fashion and sometimes, simply because they heard them from another.

"For further elaboration on that phrase, one would need to visit the library. But, in this case, they'd come up empty-handed. There are no such works – the topic was sadly either overlooked, or discarded by the masters. This gaping void in the literary world showed me a grand opportunity. I filled the void with my basic ingredients and then blended in the spice of my imagination. I know the Cape; I love history; and horror is my favorite flavor."

Lee regards the vampire as a perfect antagonist for several reasons. As deadly as they are, they can also be charming, engaging, suave and they blend into society. To detect them is nearly impossible. "Vampires were the perfect vehicle for delivering my dish, because they are assumed timeless, ageless and limitless in ability," Lee explained. "And in these characteristics I decided there was opportunity for a series.

"It's a vampire thriller series. It keeps you guessing

Lee's Book A Dark Thriller

until the end. Right now I don't see an end to it because vampires are limitless."

Several of the characters in the book are based loosely on friends and people she knows. As a result, Lee believes the reader will care about the various characters because they oftentimes share many of the same struggles.

"There's always somebody who reminds you of someone you know," said Lee. "Most authors start with a basic list of ingredients. They blend what they know with what they love. The flavor and spice is added later, and comes straight from their imaginations."

Lee would eventually like to see the Vampire Vendetta novels made into motion pictures. The stories and characters lend themselves to the big screen, she said. "It's something that would very much interest me," Lee said. "It uses more of the other capabilities and abilities surrounding vampires."

In her previous novels, Lee hasn't been afraid to reveal her personal life, both dealing with her struggles with Chronic Fatigue Syndrome and growing up in an alcoholic family.

Lee graduated from Milton High in 1983 and worked to earn a degree in Criminal Justice and Paralegal Certificate from Northeastern University. In 2005, she began to feel lethargic and run down over the course of a couple of months. Lee continued to put in long hours and met her deadlines as a paralegal, but the disorder came to a head where she was hospitalized.

"It was devastating," Lee said. "I just kept getting weaker and weaker. I kept pushing myself and at the end of the work day I was so weak I couldn't get up out of my chair."

Her first novel, "Time Served – A Legal Assistant Journal" told of Lee's years of mismanagement within the firm in not making changes to accommodate her health condition, as recommended by the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination (MCAD).

"The law firm's actually what start it (CFS) all," Lee said.

"Dear Alcohol," her second novel, proved to be the hardest and most draining to write. Lee had a dual purpose in her words. She distanced herself from the experiences of her childhood, while at the same time trying to help people try to avoid similar situations by changing their habits.

The topic was a raw one for Lee. "It was about the most devastating time in my life," she said. "Very, very painful memories, most that I didn't allow to feel before writing the book. As much as I tried to write as if I was someone else, I couldn't deny the fact that these were my experiences.

"In the end, I felt like the weight of the word was lifted off my shoulders."

The "thriller, horror genre" however, has allowed Lee to become even more creative and let her imagination take over. "I have a blast with it," she said. "I've always had a vivid imagination. As a teenager my mother was horrified by my infatuation with Stephen King movies to the point where she sent me to a therapist. He said it was a positive outlet. The cause of the obsession was growing up in an alcoholic family. I needed an outlet for the lingering fear. It hung around after the events occurred."

Bellotti Launches Revamped Website For Norfolk County Sheriff's Office

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti launched a newly updated and easy-to-use website today with the intent of giving the public a better understanding of the day-to-day operations at the Norfolk County Correctional Center and the many public safety programs available to area residents through his office.

"We're excited to have the new site up and running. We hope this will help the public learn about the important work that our officers and staff accomplish here every day," Bellotti said. "We also want everyone to know about the great public safety programs we offer, especially those aimed at helping senior citizens."

The new site – www.norfolksheriff.com – has the same web address as the old Norfolk County Sheriff's Office site. It is loaded with useful information for families of inmates as well as general info about the diverse initiatives Bellotti has introduced, particularly his Repeat Offender Re-entry Initiative aimed at reducing criminal recidivism. The program has been hailed as "a model for the entire state" by the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office.

Bellotti's innovative Sex Offender Registry alert program is carried over from the old site. The program allows citizens to sign up to receive email alerts whenever a Level 3 sex offender takes up residence or obtains a job in their city or town.

Throughout the site, there are easy-to-use links that make it easy to find out more about particular topics.

The website also has a "What's New" section to keep everyone updated on the latest goings-on at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office. Future additions will provide a detailed look at all that goes into the daily care and custody, feeding, transport and medical care of the approximately 670 inmates at the Norfolk County Correctional Center in Dedham.

"We're proud of the new site and we hope everyone makes extensive use of it. I believe the public should know what goes on at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, and this site will help us accomplish that goal," Bellotti said.

Seeks Public's Help To Continue Vigilance

Rooming House Task Force Steps Up Enforcement

A Koch Administration task force uncovered more than 180 illegal rooming houses over the last year, and the Mayor is asking for the public's help to continue the vigilance against the dangerous and illegal crowding of homes in different parts of the City.

"The task force has worked incredibly hard to find and eliminate these illegal rooming houses, but we do not want anyone to think for a moment that the City will let its guard down so we need our residents to continue to report suspected illegal boarding houses," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "This is a major quality of life issue – as well as a public safety issue – and we will not back away from it."

Residents are asked to call the Department of Inspectional Services at 617-376-1450 to report suspected illegal rooming houses. The task force, which is led by Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca, includes health inspectors, police and fire officials, who make unannounced code inspections when complaints are received.

City law considers any apartment with more than four unrelated people living together to be a rooming house that must be licensed and regulated by the City.

Duca reported statistics this week that showed the task force investigated 368 complaints about possible illegal rooming houses since April 2009, and 182 were substantiated as illegal. Of those, 83 were eliminated entirely, 20 were made into legal apartment buildings and 22 have been taken to court. The remaining 57 are moving through the legal process, and will be either deconstructed, brought up to code, or face court action, Duca said.

Duca said the number of complaints fielded by the department has dropped substantially over the last several months as the number of illegal rooming houses shut down increased. He cautioned, however, that the renewed vigilance is needed to ensure that "repeat customers" do not feel like they can sidestep city law.

"We use every tool at our disposal, we investigate every complaint, and we are going to be stepping it up again with the public's assistance," Duca said. "We do not want anyone to get a false sense that because we caught them once that we are just going to go away. We will not."

Examining City's $32 Million Energy Deal

State Attorney General Part Of Honeywell Probe

City officials confirmed for the first time this week that the state Attorney General's Office has joined an investigation started by Mayor Thomas Koch two years ago of the City's $32 million Honeywell energy deal.

The probe of the energy management program, which the Koch administration has derided for alleged over-charges, shoddy work and a loophole-ridden contract, was initiated by the state Inspector General in 2008 after receiving complaints from the City just a few months after Koch took office.

The Inspector General's investigation is ongoing, and it has referred aspects of the case to the Attorney General's Office, the City confirmed this week. State officials are refusing to disclose details of the investigation, and have asked City officials to continue a self-imposed gag order on many specifics in the case.

Beyond confirming the probe's expansion to the Attorney General's Office, Koch said he would continue to abide by the gag rule on details of the investigation.

"We have to let these agencies do their work, and all I can say is that there is no question that they are working hard on it," Koch said. "Our opinions on this deal are on the record, and have not changed, but we must continue to be patient while the investigation runs its course."

The confirmation of an expanded probe comes the same week that an arbitrator ruled on a separate issue in the complex Honeywell case involving a punch list of issues the City claimed the energy giant was contractually obligated to fix related to its broad program of new roofs, boilers, windows and other maintenance of City buildings.

The arbitrator ordered Honeywell to make a total of 25 repairs in 11 City buildings related to work it was expected to perform under the contract, but also sided with Honeywell on some of the punch-list complaints filed by the City.

City Solicitor James Timmins said he neither side was entirely happy with the arbitrator's rulings, but noted that the punch-list issues are largely a separate matter from the state investigation.

Jo-Ann Bragg Will Not Seek New Term

Committee Plans At Least Five Appointments For College Board Of Governors

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Quincy College's 4,000 students began classes this week unaffected by sweeping changes underway at the top of the top, as a new college president must be chosen by a transformed Board of Governors appointed by a brand new Appointing Committee.

For the students, President Sue Harris is still at the helm, their classes are running smoothly and changes on the nameplates at the Board of Governors won't affect them, at least for a while.

Last March, Harris agreed to stay on board until the governors chose a new president and she said she was willing to help her successor during the transition.

Neither Harris nor board members anticipated that six months later, the presidency would still be in doubt.

Now even the names of many of the 13 board members will change as there are five openings and a sixth seat in doubt as of Tuesday.

The new members must be chosen by the Appointing Committee which has been totally transformed in recent weeks, thanks to new appointments by Mayor Thomas Koch and Board Chairman David Dennis.

The new Appointing Committee was set to meeting Tuesday after The Quincy Sun deadline.

Koch named his appointees last week, and Dennis named the remaining five new appointing committee members this week.

Dennis's five appointees are as follows: Pedro Viejo-Rodriguez, William Grindlay and Donald Gratz with Gulcem Aktas appointed as representative of alumni and Claudia Viglione representing the students.

As for the Board of Governors, Dennis and Jo-Ann Bragg's appointments expired this week. Bragg said she did not apply for a re-appointment. Dennis had made no announcement as of Tuesday.

Bragg cited personal reasons as her major concern, noting a re-appointment would be for six years and she has a job, a family and is a School Committee member.

However, Bragg, also, cited the clashes and dissension over the choice of a new college president. Bragg said she was "totally frustrated with what has transpired" at the board meetings in the last six weeks.

"Certain governors found a way for us not to meet," said Bragg, decrying her inability to vote due to the obstructionism.

Four other positions are open on the 13 member board due to one vacancy, the resignation last week of member Mark Bertman, and the resignations of Peter Tsaffaras in February and Jerrell Riggins in July.

er option but to prepare for the worst-case scenario."

The Department Of Public Works has secured a number of large pumps from private contractors and other agencies to complement its own brigade of smaller pumps used for small pockets of flooding, officials said. Storm gates will be installed at the Bayswater, Edgewater and Chickatabot sea walls and the City is continuing to add to its supply of sand bags.

Crews will be keeping a close eye on coastal areas, in addition to the traditional flood-prone areas further inland, and the City is coordinating its response with both the Town of Milton and the Massachusetts Department of Transportation. Emergency personnel will be on-call throughout the duration of the storm, according to Department of Public Works Commissioner Larry Prendeville.

Mayor Koch asked residents to monitor the forecasts closely on television, radio and on the City's website, and follow any emergency instructions that may be issued.

Heavy August Rains Caused Spotty Problems

flooding as the storm surged with the high tides and then receded. "We got heavy rain in a short period."

DPW crews responded to calls on Centre and Ballou Streets, West Quincy; Newbury Avenue, North Quincy; Chapman Street, Wollaston and Spence Avenue, Quincy Point.

Nearly all of the problems were handled quickly, according to Prendeville who also said the city is meeting with state and Milton officials regarding solutions for West Quincy where floods devastated homes and businesses in March.

"We are looking into it," Prendeville said of the possibility of connecting portions of West Quincy's drainage to Milton's system. "We've had a few meeting with Milton and the state."

However, Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro this week fears there may be new problems as the water levels of Town Brook swelled last week.

"For the second time, Town Brook crested over its banks," Gutro said, noting that the brook did not overflow during the March floods but, last week, it did wash "slightly over before receding."

Gutro said he is concerned as to whether a change at the juncture box of the deep-water tunnel or construction activity caused the breach.

Prendeville said Tuesday the tunnel is being monitored, but he believes high levels of the brook were due to the nature of the storm and not any changes through construction.

But Earl May Force 'A Mad Rush' To Secure Lines Later In Week

Local Boat Owners Wait On Hurricane Threat

By LAURA GRIFFIN

"What Me Worry?" appears to be the mantra of boat owners who have anchored 1500 plus boats in Quincy Bay waters from Town River to Marina Bay.

None of the owners hastened to Squantum or Town River Yacht Clubs despite ominous forecasts of Hurricane Earl.

On Tuesday, weather forecasters predicted that Earl would, at least, brush by Quincy Bay with forceful winds and drenching rain on Friday or Saturday.

"All of a sudden on Thursday, they'll be here," predicted Arthur Erickson of Squantum, Fleet Captain at Squantum Yacht Club.

"Around Wednesday or Thursday, they'll begin doubling up their lines, making sure everything is tied down," said Erickson, adding that most of the club's 120 active members have already experienced stormy seas. "Most of the members have been through this before."

Charlie Leuchte echoed similar thoughts of boaters anchored at Town River Yacht Club. None had come forward Tuesday with fears of the storm. "It's going to be a mad rush Wednesday and Thursday."

"Personally, I think it will come, " said Leuchte, the city's former Assistant Harbormaster while Erickson said he expects at least some fallout from the hurricane.

"I've been watching the weather," said Erickson, noting predictions of 80 to 100 mile per hour winds at Cape Cod this week, so locals could expect gusts of 30-40-50. "That will make it very bumpy."

Erickson said four boats ran aground during last week's Nor'easter with one washed up at the Hummocks, two on Wollaston Beach and a runabout on George's Island.

The Coast Guard called during his interview, seeking information on a fifth identified boat cut loose from its mooring in the last week.

While weekend sailors weren't worried, the city's Marine Unit and officials at Marina Bay had preparations underway by Tuesday.

"We're putting signs on the bulletin boards and have begun contacting customers," Ryan Ferrarra, Manager at Marina Bay said Tuesday, adding they are taking extra precautions by "moving some people in from near the breakwater."

"We will have staff on site the entire time," said Ferrara, adding their effort is to "be vigilant" to protect the 650 yachts and sailboats docked at their slips.

For all of the yachtsmen and sailors, a storm later this week would cut short the season by about a month.

Marina Bay begins emptying out on Oct. 1 and the yacht clubs by Oct. 15.

The city's Marine Unit operated by the police department has already sent out notifications to all the city's marinas as part of the citywide hurricane 72-hour preparedness plan, according to Capt. John Dougan.

"We'll ramp it up by Wednesday," Dougan said.

CALM WATERS – Arthur Erickson, Fleet Captain, Squantum Yacht Club, said the owners of the 150-odd sailboats and motorboats anchored off Wollaston Beach weren't worried about the threat of a hit by Hurricane Earl. Erickson said Tuesday they'll wait until today (Thursday) and final weather reports and then they'll be a "mad rush" to tighten up their lines or bring their boats in.

TEACHER AND STUDENT – Former Squantum resident, Rev. Paul O'Neil (right) recalled learning how to sail, thanks to Arthur Erickson who led the Sea Explorers 382. Despite threats of a hit by Hurricane Earl, Rev. O'Neil and Erickson enjoyed quiet seas during a reunion earlier this week at Squantum Yacht Club. But Bacteria Spikes At State-Managed Wollaston Beach

Super Summer For City Beaches

Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said Monday that the city's beaches offered clean water until last week's four-day rainfall but that's not the case at Wollaston Beach.

"This has been a fantastic summer," Scheele said of bacteria counts at the city's 13 beaches where only Rhoda Beach in Houghs Neck, was closed this week.

On Wednesday, city conducted its last beach testing of the season and Scheele expects the results to be good.

Scheele cited the warm dry summer for this summer's success as well as efforts to control wastewater, "The city spent millions repairing sewer lines.... It's paying off."

That's not the case at the state-run Wollaston Beach which has had nearly a dozen closures since June due to high bacteria counts at one or all of its four checkpoints. Several areas of Wollaston Beach were still closed this week.

The state checks Wollaston Beach bacteria counts on a daily bases at Milton, Sachem and Channing Streets and Rice Road. Red flags were up at points again this week at Wollaston.

Scheele cited eight outfall pipes that drain surface and stormwater into Wollaston Beach connecting lines from Quincy, Milton and beyond and said controlling that drainage would cost millions of dollars.

"We can always try to lessen the impact," Scheele said, citing the impact of animal waste or boat discharge that can be reduced or eliminated.

However, Scheele believes that stormwater and drainage from the pipes will remain a problem.

That is unacceptable, according to Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro.

Gutro said Monday that Wollaston Beach is the city's largest beach with the highest use and that the city and state must work together to end the problem.

"If beach closures correlate with rainfall, that's not something to celebrate," said Gutro, citing the need for stormwater management and focus by both city and the state agencies on solving the problems.

Beaches should be open when the sun comes out, according to Gutro who said, "You can't blame rain for beach closures. We've got to fix that."

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Nightclub, Bar, Restaurant Inspections

Once again we're in the midst of nightclub, bar and restaurant inspections. We begin the process midsummer where they're so labor intensive and typically require follow up visits to gain compliance. Our recommendations and those of the building department result in the generation of a certificate of inspection and license renewal.

From our perspective, fire alarm systems, sprinkler systems, kitchen suppression systems, hood and ductwork cleaning and fire extinguishers must be maintained if present, according to the law, code or standard that applies. Delinquent maintenance of one or more of these systems typically warrants another visit to the premise to confirm compliance, and thus the need for multiple inspections.

During the walkthrough, various fire safety code issues are discussed and compliance confirmed. We can not be at any one place 24/7, so educating the owners and managers is paramount. Hiliting the importance of exit access, responsible storage practices, employee awareness of an evacuation plan and various other requirements designated by the State's Fire Safety Code is essential. Attempting to impress upon owners and managers of their importance year after year is our underlying goal.

In general, so much of code focuses on prevention while much of it, especially as it applies to assembly occupancies, focuses on preparation in the event a fire occurs. It's not enough to encourage and maintain safe storage practices or to isolate potential ignition sources from combustibles. Those in the know realize that all the inspections and all the applied preventive measures cannot totally eliminate the odds of an accidental fire. Therefore, much of the emphasis in these occupancies is placed upon maintaining other safe practices to prepare to deal with fire in the unlikely event one occurs.

Our Department has a great deal of admiration for owners of these occupancies who have expended the effort, time and money to offer patrons a safe premise for their entertainment. This article is written to remind them of the importance of continuing to do so while maintaining life safety considerations for those patrons.

We in fire prevention are here to answer any questions owners may have pertaining to code. Meanwhile, I assure you that we are here to help you maintain a constant level of consciousness for patron safety as well.

Thank you for your commitment to life safety.

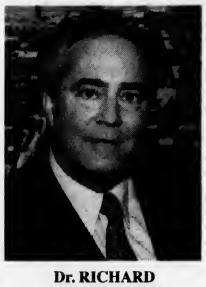
BACK TO SCHOOL

A Message From School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro



We Are Committed To Every Student

As we all know, every year when students and staff return from summer break, it is always exciting! I hope you had a relaxing summer with family and friends.

Our Quincy Public Schools summer learning and enrichment programs began in late June and ended in mid-August. They were developed for students with wide-ranging interests and needs. Summer Scene 2000 served nearly 1,200 Quincy students in 10 programs held in schools across our city. Thank you to Ms. Janice Erler for her leadership of these fine programs.

On Sunday, Aug. 29 we held a celebration and dedication of our new Quincy High School featuring remarks from: Mayor Thomas Koch, Treasurer Tim Cahill, Kathryn craven, Executive Director of the Massachusetts School Building Authority, Kevin Coughlin, President of the Quincy City Council, Mike McFarland, City Councilor, Anne Mahoney, Vice Chair of the Quincy School Committee, and Ron Mariano, State Representative.

Principal frank Santoro shared details of the new high school's "Academy Plan" and the significant opportunities offered to students Grade 9-12 in a collegiate setting. The 330,000 sq. ft. Quincy High School building also features: a 500-seat cafeteria overlooking a courtyard, a 750-seat auditorium, a three-section gymnasium with a walking/jogging track, the George Burke Fitness Centers for weight training and aerobic machines, and a multi purpose room for wrestling, cheerleading and other high school athletic activities. All classrooms are equipped with state of the art technology, a 150-seat large group instruction area (Adams Hall), a restaurant (open to the public) that seats 80 patrons; food prepared and served by our culinary art students, a media center/library that offers varied use for students and staff that relate directly to their classroom instruction, research and student interest. The academies: Freshman, Humanities, Arts and Mathematics, science and Technology integrate an extraordinary comprehensive high school education in a collegiate setting.

As we are proud of this beautiful building, we are also thankful for the support from Mayor Koch, the school committee, the city council, the Quincy High School Building Committee, the Massachusetts School Building Authority and many city departmental staff.

This year, our administrative team welcomes Mr. Nicholas Ahearn as he becomes the principal of the Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School. Mr. Ahearn has worked in the school system as a teacher of social studies and technology/engineering as well as served on many system teams. Mr. Ahearn has been the assistant principal at the Reay E. Sterling Middle School since 2008. A graduate of Boston College with a masters degree in educational leadership from Bridgewater State College, we welcome Mr. Ahearn who will work with long-time Assistant Principal Mr. Bill Bloomer.

At Reay E. Sterling Middle School, Principal Christine Barrett welcomes as her assistant, Dr. John Franceschini. Dr. Franceschini has served as a physical education teacher at all levels as well as our system department chair of physical education and health. Dr. Franceschini holds a doctorate in instructional leadership from the University of Massachusetts in Boston.

Our professional staff is truly looking forward to the opportunities and challenges that are ahead in the 2010-2011 school year. Our maintenance and custodial teams have worked incredibly hard in the heat of the summer. Many improvements were undertaken and our buildings are clean and welcoming.

As you know, in these difficult economic times, Mayor Koch and the Quincy School Committee worked many hours in April, May and June in order to focus on and sustain our core values and mission of the Quincy Public Schools. Quality class size, curriculum materials, academic program and support staff, as well as extended day opportunities were priorities. As the budget process unfolded, the mayor and school committee never lost focus regarding the health, safety and security of our students.

Details in regard to changes in student transportation, foot service, athletics and rentals of school buildings are on our Quincy Public Schools website and Channel 22. Principals and school secretaries will be on site beginning August 30 to answer any questions you may have.

As we wish good luck to our class of 2010, we remain committed to every student and every family in our city in 2010-2011.

As always, it is an honor and privilege to serve this historical and educationally rich city of Quincy.

Sincerely,
Richard DeCristofaro,
Ed. D.

New School Transportation User Fee

By JOE REARDON

The Quincy City Schools will be implementing a transportation fee for the first time this coming school year. The Transportation User Fee is applicable for Grades K-5 and has been used by several local cities and towns for a number of years.

"It's a new program," said Michael Draicchio, the Director of Safety, Security and Transportation for the Quincy Public Schools. "The majority of the cities and town have had this program for years."

The cost of the program is $200 per student with a $400 cap per family. Students who live further than two miles from their respective schools will continue to ride the bus for free.

The transportation fee application also includes a fee waiver under the federal low-income guidelines for free and/or reduced lunches.

For further information including required documentation and online payment options, go to the Quincy Public School website www.quincypublicschools.com/ and/or contact the Transportation Department Office at 617-984-8964 or the Business Department Office at 617-984-8789.

In his back-to-school address to parents, School Supt. Dr Richard DeCristofaro thanked the various people and agencies that supported, and were key, in the building's construction.

"As we are proud of this beautiful building, we are also thankful for the support from Mayor Koch, the School Committee, the City Council, the Quincy High School Building Committee, the Massachusetts School Building Authority and many city departmental staff," DeCristofaro said.

Some familiar faces in the Quincy School system will be taking on new roles. Nicholas Ahearn, a Social Studies and Technology/Engineering teacher, will assume the principal duties at the Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School where he will work closely with assistant principal Bill Bloomer.

The high school is completely finished with the exception of the gymnasium, according to Principal Frank Santoro. The lines on the basketball court still need to be painted and it should be completed by Oct. 1.

There will be a slight increase in meal prices in the Quincy Public Schools. Middle school prices for breakfast increase 25 cents to $1.25 and both breakfast and lunch rise 25 cents at high school level to $1.50 for breakfast and $2.50 for lunch.

Back-To-School Safety

By LT. DAN MINTON
Quincy Police Crime Prevention Officer

LT. DAN MINTON

It's that time of year again. Time to send your children back to school. It can be a frightening time for parents, but if you prepare your child for the big world you may help save them from getting into trouble.

• Make sure your children are taking the safest route to school and friends' houses, one that avoids danger spots like alleys, new construction, and wooded areas.

• Encourage your children to walk and play with friends, not alone, and to stay in well-lighted, open areas where others can see them.

• Don't hang a house key around your child's neck. It's a telltale sign that you won't be at home when they return from school. Put it inside a pocket or sock.

• Teach children to walk confidently and stay alert to what's going on around them.

• Encourage your children to look out for other kids' safety and report anything they see that doesn't seem right.

• Tell your children to stay away from strangers who hang around playgrounds, public restrooms and empty buildings.

• Rehearse with children their full name, address, and phone number (including area code) and how to make emergency phone calls from home and public phones.

• Tell children never to accept gifts or rides from someone they don't know well.

• Check your neighborhood for areas that threaten children's safety, like brush in woodes areas, overgrown shrubbery, abandoned buildings, bad lighting, vacant lots littered with debris, no sidewalks or bike paths next to busy streets.

• Teach children to go to a store clerk or security guard and ask for help if you become separated in a store or shopping mall. Tell them never to go into the parking lot alone. Accompany your children to public restrooms.

• Teach children no one, not even someone they know, has the right to touch them in a way that makes them feel uncomfortable. Tell them that they have the right to say "No" to any adult in this situation.

If you teach the above tips to your children, they will be better prepared to survive in this great big, sometimes crazy, world.

New Quincy High School Exceeds Expections

By JOE REARDON

Tim McNally stood just outside the entrance to the Lloyd H. Hill Auditorium, taking in the electricity of the crowd at Sunday's Celebration and Dedication Ceremony of the Quincy High School addition.

A student council representative who'll be starting his junior year next week, the 15-year-old McNally was there to greet the more than 650 people filing into the auditorium for the dedication of the historic $126 million addition. He waited patiently for the ribbon-cutting ceremony by Quincy School Superintendent Richard DeCristofaro, principal Frank Santoro and several other local dignitaries.

McNally has been looking forward to the completion of the state-of-the-art high school since his freshman year. Nothing, however, could have prepared McNally for the finished product he saw for the first time Sunday afternoon.

"It's more than I ever expected," said the engaging McNally. "I wasn't expecting anything like this. From what I've seen it's very spacious and very open."

On stage, Student Council President Meghan Peterson and Senior Class President Kendra Johnston led the audience in the Pledge of Allegiance to begin the ceremony.

STUDENT COUNCIL President Meghan Peterson and Senior Class President Kendra Johnston kick off Sunday's Quincy High School dedication with the Pledge of Allegiance.

McNally said there was some understandable grumbling from the Class of 2010 seniors who witnessed the construction of the 330,000-square-foot addition, but knew they wouldn't have the opportunity to go to the various classes once it was opened in the fall.

But as Santoro said during the dedication, the addition was not only for the faculty and students, but for the city as well. "The building is yours," he said. "Please, enjoy it."

The construction of the building was at times taxing on the students and faculty, but the intrusion was miniscule, given the enormity of the project.

McNally, a member or Quincy High's soccer and volleyball teams, said the only hindrance of the construction was not having a gymnasium to practice in and having to spend the spring being bused to the Broad Meadows Middle School for volleyball practice.

"We've been really looking forward to it," McNally said. "I know the athletes were especially looking forward to the gym."

Nicole Campbell, vice-president of the senior class, has heard plenty of the buzz at preseason soccer practices. She said the majority of the excitement came from the freshmen girls.

"They're really excited about it," said Campbell. "It's so nice. Everything is so new. I didn't know what to expect. I knew it would definitely be an upgrade though."

AN AUDIENCE OF 675 people listen intently to the speakers at the dedication of the new Quincy High School in the Lloyd H. Hill Auditorium. Quincy Sun Photos/Robert Noble

Dear Voter,

It has been a privilege to meet you and your family and listen to you, your views and your concerns.

It has been my honor to serve as a State Representative. I seek to utilize my legislative experience to be your next State Senator.

School begins and it reminds us that education is a key ongoing issue that affects us all. I will continue my efforts to vote for funding to compensate for the effects this economic climate has placed on our community.

Welcome back to school. Have a great year!

Sincerely,

Arthur Stephen Tobin

★ ★ ★ On The Campaign Trail - State Election 2010 ★ ★ ★

With the campaign season underway for this fall's state election, The Quincy Sun will publish, from time to time and when space is available, press releases submitted from candidates and their committees.

Releases are not written by Quincy Sun staff. The Sun retains the right to edit releases for space purposes.

Morrissey Would Expand Services At Norfolk Advocates For Children

Norfolk County District Attorney candidate Michael W. Morrissey announces he would expand an innovative victim-assistance program into a statewide model for providing services to victims of child abuse and sexual crimes.

Morrissey said that if elected, he will add a range of services to those provided by the Foxborough-based Norfolk Advocates for Children program, which launched earlier this spring. The program was created to minimize the number of times an abused child is interviewed, provide swift and sensitive response to victims, and to coordinate services for victims and their families.

Under his plan, Morrissey said the District Attorney's Office would expand the program by creating a first-of-its-kind center covering every potential need faced by victims of abuse and their families.

The plans calls forging partnerships with additional state agencies such as the Department of Children and Families, the Department of Public Health, local police, mental health agencies, medical facilities and private groups to provide a comprehensive response to assist victims and families, Morrissey said, adding that in just its first few months the new program "is performing tremendous work."

"We have a great responsibility to provide assistance to victims of abuse and their families, and I am committed to making the Norfolk Advocates for Children a model in Massachusetts for providing these essential services and treatment for victims of these crimes," Morrissey said.

"Community partnerships will be a vital part of our office, and that goes for prosecuting crime, preventing crime, and ensuring that victims are treated with the sensitivity and care they deserve in a very difficult time of their life."

Sierra Club Backs Keating For Congress

The Sierra Club has endorsed Democrat Bill Keating for the 10th Congressional District seat.

Keating is currently the Norfolk County District Attorney and served as a Senator in the Massachusetts State Senate for over 10 years.

With over 1.3 million members, the Sierra Club is the nation's oldest and largest environmental organization.

"We're proud to endorse Bill Keating because he has been a staunch advocate for the environment, and will give the residents of this district a powerful voice on environmental issues in Congress," said Phil Sego, Political Chairperson of the Massachusetts Chapter of the Sierra Club.

"Bill has lead by example and gotten results here in Massachusetts, and that's the type of leadership we need today in Washington to deal with climate change, reduce our dependence on fossil fuels, and increase the use of clean alternative sources of energy. Bill is not going to be afraid to stand up to the big oil lobby or polluters who are destroying our environment and putting our communities at risk," Sego added.

As a legislator, Keating wrote Massachusetts' tough Safe Water Law to protect lakes and streams throughout the state from chemical pollution. He was named Environmental Legislator of the Year and received an award from the Congress of Lakes and Ponds. Keating said he strongly believes that Cape Cod's Sole Source Aquifer needs to be fiercely protected from ground water contamination, because the Cape's residents depend on it for clean drinking water.

Keating also supports the Cape Wind project. He said Cape Wind would help bring Massachusetts to the forefront of the green energy sector, and create hundreds of clean energy jobs while protecting our coastline from environmental disasters and reducing our reliance on fossil fuels.

"I am honored to receive the support of the Sierra Club," said Keating. "It is a privilege to live in a district with as many natural beauties as ours and if elected to Congress, I'll work hard to protect those treasures. I'll fight to increase the use of clean renewable sources of energy, tackle climate change and make sure communities throughout the South Shore and Cape & Islands have a representative who will stand up for their interests and fight for their needs in Congress."

Keenan Vows To Bring Fiscal Discipline To State Budget

Democratic candidate for State Senate John Keenan said he would bring his proven track record of fiscal discipline to Beacon Hill, where the state budget remains more than $2 billion out-of-balance.

"As Chairman of the Quincy City Council's Finance Committee, I have been guided by a strict sense of fiscal responsibility," Keenan said. "I have supported spending cuts and budgetary reforms before tax hikes, and as a result of my stewardship, the City of Quincy has been able to balance its budget and fund core local services, without resorting to Proposition 2 ½ overrides."

As local media outlets recently reported, Quincy is the only community on the South Shore that did not see a property tax hike this year. Property taxes are expected to remain level again next year as well.

By comparison, the state budget was balanced this year only due to $1 billion in new taxes approved last year, plus the use of more than $1 billion in one-time revenue sources – money that may not be available again next year. Hundreds of state transportation employees are being paid with borrowed money. And the amount of state debt per person is among the highest in the nation.

"In the City of Quincy, we have lived within our means, meaning we have not spent more than we have taken in. Unlike the state Legislature, we have tightened our belts, and saved millions of dollars by re-negotiating employee contracts," Keenan said. "It is this commitment to fiscal responsibility that I will bring to Beacon Hill."

Cahill Calls On Obama To Appoint Independents To Elections Commission

Massachusetts State Treasurer and Independent candidate for Governor Tim Cahill has written a letter to President Barack Obama at the urging of a group of Massachusetts independent voters, asking that one or more independents be appointed to the Federal Elections Commission to fill two currently vacant seats.

Cahill met with Massachusetts Coalition of Independent Voters in late July seeking their endorsement and sent the letter to President Obama in early August. The group is affiliated with IndependentVoting.org – a national association of independents with organization in 40 states.

"We had a substantive dialogue with Tim Cahill about our concerns as independent voters, the challenges we face, our desire to protect open primaries and our efforts to make politics more inclusive and less partisan," said Evelyn Dougherty of Massachusetts Coalition of Independent Voters. "And there's no doubt that leaving the Democratic Party and running as an independent has aligned him with the political reform issues we believe in."

In his letter to the White House Cahill stated:

"Even thought the current structure of the FEC is bipartisan in the sense that representation between the two major parties is equal, there is no guarantee that the Commission is truly bipartisan in spirit. It is important to ensure that the FEC will place the same value on independent initiatives by having one or more truly independent Commissions.

"As the State Treasurer of Massachusetts and Independent candidate for Governor, I feel it is crucial to have all voices at the table to prevent partisan bias. I have always advocated for considering the best ideas regardless of party affiliation to allow our government to serve its citizens most effectively. One or more independent voices will undoubtedly benefit the Commission and its responsibility to administer and enforce the Federal Election Campaign Act."

Jackie Salit, president of IndependentVoting.org, and her general counsel Harry Kresky began lobbying the White House around the FEC appointments issue in August of 2009.

"Independents were a key part of Obama's winning coalition in 2008 and we'd like to see him give greater recognition and representation to independents," said Salit.

Tobin Touts Legislative Experience

State Rep. Arthur Stephen Tobin, a Democratic candidate for State Senate in the Norfolk-Plymouth District, says he seeks to utilize his legislative experience in order to best represent his constituents.

"My experience in the legislature has taught me that taxes come in many different shapes and sizes," Tobin said. He explained that some proposed solutions appear to address a problem and are strategically packaged to be misleading, however can come at a price, often carrying fees that essentially are a form of an added tax.

"An example of this is found in a proposed bill to add a tax to your bottled water. The idea seems appealing because the proposed end result appears to be in direct alignment with the preservation of your environment. A closer look shows that it does not solve the problem," Tobin said.

"Adding a tax to your water bottles neither equates to fewer water bottles, nor does it decrease plastic production. Furthermore, it is damaging to your quality of life.

"The result of the proposed bill is an additional tax for you, albeit strategically disguised.

"Inexperience will vote for the bill that seems like a good idea, experience will vote for you," Tobin added.

Dewey: Council Should Repeal 911 Tax

Republic State Senate candidate Dan Dewey has called on the Quincy City Council to repeal its controversial new 911 Tax.

According to Dewy, many have questioned the wisdom of charging motorists insurance companies for each emergency vehicle responding to a crash scene. The new tax may charge up to $600 per hour per responding vehicle.

"This new tax will ensure a premium hike for everyone with a car registered in the City of Quincy," Dewey said.

"Quincy has already experienced property tax increases two times the rate of inflation. Now they are adding this back door 911 Tax, and it's wrong."

Dewey said the State Legislature had cut local aid funding which brought local budget issues to a head.

"The State Legislature was irresponsible with its spending, and passed that cost onto the City; now the City is passing that cost onto everyone who has a lawfully registered and insured vehicle," he said.

Dewey expressed concern that the tax would spread across the State if the Legislature continued to spend lavishly without regard to the economy.

"The usual suspects in government have voted for tax increases while voting for cuts to our City. I think we can do better."

As for Quincy, Dewey said, "Now that the City can get a check for each responding vehicle, you can be sure to see traffic jams at every fender bender in Quincy."

A Job Well Done

On Friday, August 20, at approximately 6:45 p.m., members of the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit, Detectives Coen, Barkas, and O'Brien were conducting surveillance in the area of Rawson Road due to several citizen complaints of drug activity in the area.

LT. DAN MINTON

At this time, Detective O'Brien observed a female sitting in a car parked on Rawson Road at the intersection of Hamden Circle. This location seemed like an odd place to park so he kept the vehicle under surveillance as he ran the plate, which came back to a Sea Street address.

About five minutes later, he observed another vehicle operated by a male drive down Rawson Road and stop directly behind the female's vehicle. The female then exited her vehicle and got into the front passenger seat of the male's vehicle. Detective O'Brien, believing a drug transaction was occurring notified other detectives in the area. The suspect vehicle then drove a short distance down Rawson Road, passing directly by the Mass Field Playground (where several young children were playing on the swing sets and several teens were playing basketball), then turned left onto Eustis Street.

The vehicle drove down Eustis Street to the intersection of Cummings Ave where it stopped for several seconds. The vehicle then turned left onto Cummings Avenue and then left onto Hamden Circle. As the vehicle was almost half way back to Rawson Road, it stopped and Detective Coen observed the female exit the male's vehicle and begin to walk back towards her car.

Detective O'Brien continued to follow the male suspect's vehicle as Detective Coen encountered the female as she approached her car. Detective Coen introduced himself as "Quincy Police" and read her Miranda Rights, then asked her where the drugs were. After the female suspect said, "They're in my pocket," she then handed him rolled up Saran Wrap which contained (4) small plastic corner bags of a white powder believed to be cocaine. Detective Coen immediately relayed this information to Detective O'Brien over the radio.

Detective Coen asked the female suspect what it was and she stated "cocaine." She said she purchased the cocaine from the male in the Jeep for $135.00 dollars, giving him (6) twenties, (1) ten, and (1) five dollar bill. She added that she has met with him for the past year at the same location. She told the detective that the suspect always takes the cocaine from his groin area. The female suspect, a 44 year old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest for "Possession of Class B substance."

Detective O'Brien followed the male suspect as he turned right onto Rawson Road and drove towards Billings Road, then contacted Quincy Communications for a marked cruiser to stop the Jeep. As the male suspect crossed Billings Road and onto Faxon Road, Detective O'Brien learned from Detective Coen that he recovered cocaine from the female suspect.

At the intersection of East Squantum and Hancock Streets, Officer Mike Sullivan and Sergeant Patrick Faherty stopped the male suspect's vehicle. Detectives' Barkas and O'Brien arrived soon after and placed the male suspect, a 37 year old Roslindale resident, under arrest for Distribution of Class B.

A brief search of the suspect's pocket revealed $135 in the same denominations the female suspect listed. In addition to other monies, the suspect also had a cell phone and a folding knife with a 4 inch blade. The suspect appeared to understand English except when it would benefit him, so Sergeant Faherty spoke to him in Spanish. The male suspect stated that he just met with a friend named Brenda but he would not answer why he drove her around the block. He stated that he was from Puerto Rico.

Once at the Police Station, Detective Coen conducted an extensive search of the male suspect and located rolled up Saran Wrap which contained (3) small plastic corner bags of cocaine, identical in packaging, size, shape, and color as the contraband found on the female suspect. During booking, the male suspect stated he was born in Puerto Rico, listed his height as 5' 5" and gave a birth date of 12/16/72.

His fingerprints were taken and run through the FBI fingerprint database and the results showed that the male suspect had never been arrested in the United States but another criminal check source showed that the suspect had been arrested in Cagua, Puerto Rico

Jack Conway & Company Receives Awards

The Jack Conway & Company was recently honored with two very special awards in the third annual Banker & Tradesman readers' poll.

Conway's Real Estate School won the top spot of Gold for "Best Educational Provider in the Residential Real Estate Category" and the real estate company earned a Silver for "Best Residential Real Estate Firm."

"We are truly honored to be recognized by our customers and friends with these awards," said Conway CEO Carol Bulman. "I think it's a reflection on the relationships we forge with each customer, and the family feel of our company."

CHAIRMAN JACK CONWAY (left) and Warren Group CEO Timothy M. Warren, Jr., at a recent event congratulating winners of Banker & Tradesman's Best of 2010.

The award for the Conway Country School of Real Estate was particularly exciting as the company continues an unprecedented year of growth in hiring. With recent expansions into Dartmouth and Quincy, and weekend classes in Norwood and Dorchester, the school is offering more opportunities for preparation to become a licensed real estate salesperson.

"Our classes are taught by our agents and managers, and that's important," said Bulman. "The students make that connection and get a feel for the business right away."

Misuse Of Backpacks Can Lead To Chronic Back Pain

School supplies, lunch packs and backpacks are on the minds of parents and kids in Massachusetts. While kids eyes are on the most colorful or coolest style, parents should take note that it's more about how you pack a backpack and how it's worn that is most important for the child's posture.

According to The Massachusetts Chiropractic Society, young children are suffering from back pain much earlier than previous generations and the use of overweight backpacks is a contributing factor.

The problem is so widespread that even some states like California and New Jersey are passing legislation that would force school districts to develop ways of reducing the weight of students' backpacks. Even the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission is weighing in on backpack safety and reports that backpack-related injuries sent more than 7,000 people to the emergency room in 2001 alone.

Over the shoulder bags and bags loaded with a tremendous amount of weight can contribute to spinal injuries. It's important to check in with your child to see how they are handling their everyday backpack load.

Most importantly what and how they carry what's in their backpacks could be a contributing factor to chronic pain. Weight differential between kids and belonging is a major source of discomfort and can lead to back, neck and shoulder pain.

The Massachusetts Chiropractic Society offers the following tips for backpack safety:

• Is the backpack the correct size for the child? Make sure the child's backpack weights no more than 5 to 10 percent of their body weight. A heavier backpack will cause the child to bend forward in an attempt to support the weight on his or her back. For example a 50-pound child should not carry more than 5 pounds.

• Where it sits makes a big difference. A backpack should never land more than four inches below the waistline. A backpack that hangs too low increases the weight on the shoulders, causing the child to lean forward when walking and distort their posture.

• Shoulder straps are there to use! Urge a child to wear both shoulder straps. Lugging the backpack around by one strap can cause the disproportionate shift of weight to one side, leading to neck and muscle spasms, as well as low-back pain.

• The shoulder straps should be adjustable so the backpack can be fitted to your child's body. Straps that are too loose can cause the backpack to dangle uncomfortably and cause spinal misalignment and pain.

• Wide, padded straps are very important. Non-padded straps are uncomfortable and can dig into the child's shoulders.

• Use rollerpacks or backpacks on wheels with caution. Children tend to overload these packs because they are on wheels and then need to haul them up bus and school stairs resulting in injury. Many school districts have banned rollerpacks because they clutter hallways resulting in dangerous trips and falls.

• A backpack with individualized compartments helps in positioning the contents most effectively. Make sure that pointy or bulky objects are packed away from the area that will rest on your child's back.

• Just because a backpack is bigger does not mean it's better. The more room there is in a backpack, the more your child will carry and the heavier the backpack will be.

• Investigate some ergonomically correct backpacks

Hold Back Time

If it works in mice ... it's a good clue it will work in humans, right? So say Harvard University researchers who think they've discovered just how it is that human beings age.

Restricting calories and getting enough exercise have been thought to hold back the effects of aging.

But now there's an explanation: synapses. These are basically junction boxes within cells that send messages back and forth. As we age, the "connections" between muscles deteriorate and complete messages don't get through. They've discovered that there are vast differences in the synapses of the young and old, at least when it comes to mice.

Scientists concluded two things. Restricted calories decreased abnormalities in elderly mice, and only one month of exercise (in this case, running on a wheel in a cage) reduced changes related to aging.

Remember the "monkey study" from last year? Researchers studied primates for 20 years, dividing them into two groups: those that could eat what they wanted, and those that had their calories slightly reduced. Many more of the "low-cal" group are still alive.

And what about the research that exercise helps to stave off cognitive impairment, especially in women?

This is one more signal to us to eat a proper diet and get off the couch and get some exercise. We can, to some degree, hold back time when it comes to mental and physical aging.

So where do we start? It starts at the doctor's office. We need to ask for specific diet guidelines or a referral to a nutritionist who can map out just what we need to be eating on a daily basis. We need to ask about exercise programs suitable for our age and condition. Then we need to actually do what they advise – eat right and get enough exercise.

NURSEMAID'S ELBOW

Subluxed elbow is popularly known as "nursemaid's elbow" because it often occurs as a result of an adult caretaker yanking a child's arm. As a result, the bones in the elbow joint stretch apart, and a band of tissue in the joint slips out of place to become wedged between the bones, making straightening the arm very painful. Children who experience this problem, usually as a result of hanging or pulling, will display a flexed arm, palm down. When asked to point to where it hurts, a child will point to his or her wrist, the point from which the elbow pain radiates. Once an x-ray rules out a fracture, the elbow can be manipulated back into place.

To manage this condition quickly and effectively is important both for the child and the "nursemaid." A continuing schedule of regular chiropractic checkups can help detect, correct, and maintain optimum spinal and nervous system function. Chiropractic care can help anyone become healthier. Call the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Chiropractors are expert in treating subluxations (partial dislocations of a joint), particularly vertebral subluxations (misalignments of one vertebra in relation to the next).

Tips For Avoiding H1N1, Seasonal Flu, Other Viruses

By BENJAMIN KRUSKAL, M.D.

School is starting and so is flu season. With memories of last year's H1N1 pandemic still fresh in the minds of many, parents are likely wondering: What's going to happen this flu season? How do I keep my kids and my family healthy?

First – take a deep breath and recognize that there are simple, common sense steps you and your children can take to reduce the likelihood of infection. While no one can predict what this year's flu season will look like exactly, there are some tried-and-true tips to help you stay healthy that bear repeating. There are also some pitfalls to avoid.

Among the Dos:

Get vaccinated. This flu season the CDC voted in favor of a universal recommendation for the flu vaccination – this means everyone age 6 months or older should get vaccinated. Seasonal flu vaccination should begin in September and continue throughout the influenza season, all the way through the end of March at least.

If you are in a high risk group – children under 6 and adults 50 and over are among them; so are anyone with chronic illness, for example, asthma, diabetes, heart disease, and people with compromised immune systems – not only should YOU be vaccinated, but your close contacts should be as well. Protection from the vaccine is not 100%, so surrounding high-risk individuals with a protective ring of vaccinated contacts helps reduce their risk even if the high-risk person is vaccinated.

Get your children in the habit of washing their hands often – when they use the bathroom, before and after they eat, and after touching things at a public place like a museum, school, or playground. They should wash with soap and warm water and they should do it long enough to be able to sing "Happy Birthday" ...and so should you.

Give your older children small, easy to carry bottles of alcohol-based anti-bacterial gel, like Purell, or encourage your school to stock the classrooms with it. No water needed. Just squirt, rub your hands together and 99 percent of germs are gone in 20 seconds.

Pack children's backpacks with tissues and teach them that when they sneeze to use the tissues to cover their mouths. If there is no tissue handy, teach them to sneeze into their shirt or the crook of their elbow, and not cover their mouths with their hands.

Shaking hands with someone who is sick is asking for trouble. Keep your distance when you know or suspect someone has a cold. More viruses are transmitted from contact with skin or by close face-to-face contact than from germs drifting through the air.

Keep your child's immunity up by making sure they get enough sleep, and by eating a healthy diet.

Among The Don'ts:

If you suspect your child may be sick with the flu – fever, body-aches, stuffy or runny nose, cough, and sore throat – don't send them to school. Keep your child home for at least 24 hours after the fever subsides. If your child is in a high-risk group (with a chronic illness such as asthma or diabetes), he or she may be a candidate for an antiviral medication such as oseltamivir (Tamiflu). Call your doctor's office promptly to check – antiviral medications, if needed, work best if started within the first day or two of clear-cut flu symptoms.

In most cases, there is no advantage, according to the CDC, in using a facemask in public. This is mostly recommended for health care workers caring for sick patients. If you have a sick person in the home, a facemask – worn by either the sick or healthy person when getting close to each other – may help decrease transmission, along with careful attention to hand cleansing (with either soap and water or alcohol-based hand rub).

Being prepared for the flu is the best defense and it is not too early to get ready.

Ricky Salvucci Has An All-Star Summer Playing in the Boston Park League

By SEAN BRENNAN

Ricky Salvucci is a hard-working college student, and a pretty darn good baseball player to boot.

The Quincy native graduated number six out of a class of 364 from Quincy High School in 2008, earning a Merit of Academic Excellence Scholarship to attend prestigious Northeastern University in Boston to study in the field of Chemical and Material Engineering.

In high school, Salvucci was a four-year member of the QHS golf team, and captain his senior year, and he was also a three-year starter on the Presidents baseball team, earning a spot on the Atlantic Coast League (ACL) all-star team his senior year. He achieved all of these sporting accolades while maintaining a graduating GPA of 4.249 and serving as the National Honor Society president his senior year.

Salvucci tried out for the Huskies baseball team back in 2008, but was cut. Immediately, upon starting his second year at Northeastern last fall, he decided that he wanted to try again and make the Huskies baseball team as a walk-on. He started by joining their fall ball baseball team and performed above expectations, which in turn, resulted in him being added to the varsity roster in the spring.

Salvucci saw very limited action at third base for NU in 2010 while playing against Division I competition in the Colonial Athletic Association (CAA). Though he had just six at-bats and played in only five out of Northeastern's 44 games, Salvucci made enough of an impression on the coaching staff to be awarded, in July, with a Colonial Athletic Conference Commissioner's Academic Award, which is given to student-athletes who perform in the classroom as well as on the playing field.

He also showed enough on the baseball diamond to be asked to play this summer in the historic Boston Park League, America's oldest amateur baseball league; Salvucci thrived playing in this amateur wooden bat league.

Playing for Grossman Marketing, Salvucci, in 29 games (104 at-bats), batted .375 and finished the summer on top of the league leader boards in doubles (six), RBI (23) and runs scored (15). His team finished the regular season in first-place before being eliminated in the first-round of the Park League playoffs.

RICKY SALVUCCI STARRED this summer in the Boston Park League. He was voted onto the league's all-star team and helped lead his team, Grossman Marketing, to a first-place finish in the regular season. Salvucci is entering his third year at Northeastern University and is a member of the Huskies baseball team.

He was voted onto the Park League All-Star team and represented Grossman Marketing in the league's all-star game played at Campanelli Stadium in Brockton.

"I gained a lot of experience playing this summer in the Park League," said Salvucci on Monday. "It is a good league and you get to work on a lot of things that happen during a game when playing college baseball. The pitching is strong and there is plenty of talent on the mound.

"Playing with wooden bats (as opposed to playing with metal bats at Northeastern) makes you really use your head. With metal bats you can just get up there and swing away and if you hit the ball it will probably go far, but with wooden bats you need to focus and I felt like the experience made me a better hitter."

In the field, Salvucci worked on transitioning from third base to second base. The coaching staff at Northeastern wants to see if Salvucci can make that defensive switch for the 2011 season. According to Salvucci, it is a work in progress.

"I have always played over at third base, but they want to see if I can develop as a second baseman," he said. "I have been focusing this summer on becoming quicker on my feet and with my hands. I have slimmed down and I am focused on playing a good second base."

With a summer of amateur baseball under his belt, Salvucci is ready to make a bigger impact on the Huskies baseball program in 2011. He is planning on moving onto campus sometime this week and he will start fall ball baseball next week. He is planning on giving max effort on the baseball diamond all while working for Metalore Inc., as part of Northeastern's co-op program, which places students in on-site jobs that compliment their selected majors.

"I'll be living on campus and playing fall ball," said Salvucci. "I will also be doing my co-op at Metalore for the next six months assisting process engineers with any work that needs to be done."

Northeastern's 2011 season opens in February when the team will travel to Fort Myers, Florida to play spring training games against the Boston Red Sox.

Rematch of 2009 Championship Versus Clinton Saturday at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium

Townies Snap Militia's Six-Game Winning Streak, 21-14

By JOE REARDON

Vaughn Driscoll figured the Quincy Militia was looking at a 2-2 record in the team's final four games of the Eastern Football League season heading into the playoffs.

That realization, though, did little to ease the sting of Saturday's gut-wrenching 21-14 overtime loss to the Charlestown Townies.

The Militia, which saw its winning streak snapped at six (6-2) had a lot of good things to take away from the showdown, but as Driscoll said, in the end it was the scoreboard that put the knife in Quincy's back.

"To outplay a team and not come away with a W, that hurts," said Driscoll. "The whole second half we shut them down. Some of their players came up to me after the game and said we really won that game, but that's not what the scoreboard said."

Of course a win Saturday at Veterans Stadium (7 p.m.) against defending champion Clinton will all but erase the bad feelings that went with the loss to Charlestown.

Twice in the final seven minutes the Militia had the ball inside the Townies 5 yard-line only to come away with no points. Charlestown stopped Quincy cold on fourth-and-1 from the 3 and then, with 1:34 remaining in regulation, Will Moore's 20-yard field goal try hit the upright and bounced away.

Quincy's offense was clicking from the start. Wide receiver Carl Walker (four catches, 67 yards) hauled in a 23-yard scoring pass from quarterback Matt Boyle and James Shuler finished with three catches for 38 yards.

Defensively, linebacker Greg Ryan and cornerback Eric Tabb had four tackles and an interception apiece.

The Militia is itching to get back at it on Saturday in a rematch of last year's championship game that ended with a controversial flag on Moore's 38-yard field goal into the wind that wound up being nullified. The flag was for too many Quincy players in the backfield, a call that never showed up on game films.

Driscoll has been simulating Clinton's offensive and defensive schemes this week to further familiarize Quincy with its 4-3 defense and the fullback lead offense. The Militia will have all it can handle in containing tight end Ernie Adams, who saw time in the NFL with the New Orleans Saints.

THE QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL boys soccer program will be hosting an Alumni Game on Oct. 23 at Veterans Memorial Stadium. This year marks the 51st season for boys' soccer at QHS. This is a team photo of the original 1959 team at QHS.

QHS Boys Soccer Alumni Game Oct. 23

This fall will mark the 51st year since boys' soccer started at Quincy High School. The program is celebrating this occasion be hosting an Alumni Game on Oct. 23 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

It may seem premature to get the word out, but the purpose of this early notification is that the program, and Head Coach Mark Spendlove, are actively searching for members of the original 1959 team to come back to the city to join the team in celebrating over a half-century of boys' soccer at QHS.

Spendlove would like anyone that played or knows of any players from the 1959 team, or any former players from previous teams, that would be interested in playing to contact him at qhssocceralumni@yahoo.com with the year that they played and contact information.

For those wishing to play, there will be a $12 fee to cover the cost of game shirts and to help boost depleted funds for the boys' team.

Applications Available for QRD Annual Tennis Tourney

The Quincy Recreation Department is pleased to announce the celebration of its 40th Annual Citywide Tennis Tournament.

This tournament has been crowing champions since 1970; once again the Quincy Credit Union will sponsor this event.

"This marks the 15th year that the Quincy Credit Union has provided the financial backing to keep this traditional tournament a low cost activity for all ages and abilities of Quincy families," said Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation. "The generosity of the Quincy Credit Union to our citizens is to be commended."

The tennis tournament is open to Quincy residents and will include 11 events, which will crown a city champion. A special division, now in its sixth year, will conduct a city champion for city employees regardless of their residency.

This year's deadline for applications is Sept. 10 and the tournament will begin on Sept. 15. All matches are played on the municipal courts on Russell Park behind Quincy High School, and weather permitting, the tournament will conclude on Sept. 26.

According to QRD records, this tournament is believed to be the largest and oldest municipal tournament in New England. The entry fee is $18 for adults and $8 for participants under 16-years of age and this fee entitles participants to enter and compete in as many events as they qualify. All participants also will receive a QRD Tournament t-shirt.

The events are as follows: Men's Singles, Men's 35 & Over Singles, Men's 50 & Over Singles, Men's Doubles, Women's Singles Women's 35 & Over Singles, Women's Doubles, Mixed Doubles, Boys 16 & Under Singles and Girls 16 & Under Singles.

There is also a Men's Singles "B" event, which is conducted from a pool of players who are defeated in the Men's Singles first round; the City Employee Event rounds out the tournament.

Applications are now available and may be obtained at the Quincy Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway, or at QuincyRec.com, or in special boxes at the tennis court's entrance.

For information, contact the QRD at 617-376-1394.

49 Residents To Participate in Jimmy Fund Walk

49 Quincy residents are expected to participate in the 22nd Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk on Sept. 12. These 49 walkers will be among the more than 8,000 walkers expected to participate with the collective goal of raising more than $6.5 million for lifesaving cancer research and care for adult and pediatric cancer patients at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through its Jimmy Fund.

Presented by Hyundai and its Eastern Region dealers, the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk is the only event, other than the Boston Marathon itself that is sanctioned by the Boston Athletic Association (BAA) to use the official historic marathon route from Hopkinton to Boston.

"We are grateful to the thousands of determined walkers who are committed to raising funds for cancer care and research," said Ann Beach, director of the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk. "The money raised by the walkers directly benefits local patients as well as people around the world as top doctors and researchers utilize the successes achieved at Dana-Farber."

The Jimmy Fund Walk has raised more than $66 million since beginning in 1989.

Walkers may choose to walk one of four routes: the entire 26.2-mile route, the Babson-to-Boston 13.1-mile route, the Boston College 5-mile route, or the 3-mile route with patients and their families starting at the Dana-Farber campus. For those unable to participate on Sept. 12, there is a virtual walk option, allowing participants to fundraise online.

Walkers are treated to a victory party at the Copley Square finish line complete with food and music. Walkers begin in Hopkinton between 5:30-7:30 a.m., at Babson College between 8:30-11 a.m., at BC between 9:30-11:30 a.m., and in Boston at 2 p.m.

To register or make financial contributions for the 22nd Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk, visit www.JimmyFundWalk.org or call 866-JF-1-WALK.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Labor Day is a typically American holiday. It is an important day . . . not only for those in the ranks of labor, but for every citizen in this land. It is a day when the nation as a whole does honor those who labor – whether it be with hands or head.

In Europe, the great day of labor is May 1 – May Day. It has often been racked with demonstrations, and many times it has been marked by riots. No so in America. We celebrate by simply enjoying the fruits of our labors. This country was founded on the theory that a nation could be welded out of peoples from all sorts of backgrounds – provided they were willing and ready to work together.

It took labor of all kinds to carve this nation out of a wilderness . . . to cross treacherous rivers. . . to carve roads through trackless forests . . . to clear lands and build towns.

Labor Day is not a day set apart for any one group, but a day which all of us celebrate. With this in mind, let us on this Labor Day rededicate ourselves to work to the best of our abilities – so laboring that we may pass on to the next generation a nation better and stronger for our having lived and toiled . . .

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Cupid is strong in the Aries aspect this week, with the cherub opening romantic possibilities for single Lambs, and strengthening ties 'twixt loving pairs already in a caring relationship.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your dramatic flair might make things more interesting as you recount an event to your colleagues. But be careful not to exaggerate reality to the point that facts and fancy combine to form fiction.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You love to talk, and this week you should get lots of chances to share your thoughts with people who will not only pay attention to what you have to say, but will want to hear more.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The pattern of recent changes could begin to shift from mostly workplace-related events to more personal matters. Continue to keep an open mind as you prepare to deal with them.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) An opportunity for work-related travel could be just what the Terrific Tabby needs to get a new perspective on a balky situation. The trip could also prove to be personally rewarding.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might want to suggest resolving an old disagreement before it can affect a matter expected to come up for discussion. It's always best to start with a clean slate.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) The week favors combining dollops of creativity and practicality to work out both professional and personal problems. A longtime friend could have something of note to suggest.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Some surprising facts could come to light if you decide to probe deeper into an "opportunity" than you might usually do. What you'll learn could determine what you'll earn.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Someone close to you might seek your counsel. Hear him/her out, but hold the line at giving actual advice until you get credible answers to all your questions.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) What seems to be an overwhelming workplace project can be dealt with quite well if you handle one category at a time. Things will soon begin to fall into place.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A personal matter might need more of your time than you had expected. Try to prioritize between your many outside commitments and your domestic responsibilities.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A developing situation still needs more time to grow, and more time to study before you can plunge in and make some attention-getting waves. Patience is best for wise Pisceans.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a gift for organization that would make you a fine archivist. (Are you listening out there, Library of Congress?)

Asian Resources English Education For Employees

Quincy Asian Resources partners with local businesses to provide "on the job" English education for employees.

Quincy Asian Resources, Inc (QARI) is a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting the development of the Asian-American community to benefit the entire community. Throughout the year QARI offers ESOL and Citizenship classes for immigrants.

This Spring QARI formed a partnership with two local businesses, Kam Man Food and Morning Sun Bus Company, to successfully apply for a 3 year, $185,765 grant administered by Commonwealth Corporation and the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education to teach English in the Workplace. The Learn at Work Grant provides for 2 levels of ESOL classes for 26 employees spread between one site in Quincy and another in Rockland.

The Executive Office of Labor and Workforce Development has allocated $1,600,000 in workforce training and American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) funds to support Learn at Work. The program, launched last November, is also supplemented by $400,000 from the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education. Learn at Work promotes public-private partnerships across industries throughout the Commonwealth that specifically focus on workplace Basic Skills and English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) for youths and adult age workers.

Wan Wu, manager of Kam Man Market and Lorraine Tse, owner of Morning Sun Bus Company, see this educational partnership as a way for their employees to not only improve their English language skills but also their job productivity and opportunities for promotion. Says Dr. Wu, a staunch supporter of immigrant education, "Some of my employees are showing more confidence in speaking English with our non-Asian customers". Lorraine Tse, businesswoman with strong ties to the community, reports that "Bus drivers who can speak fluent English with our passengers are an asset to the company". Both employers provide classroom space and paid release time for their employees to study English.

The Learn at Work Grant, which began April 2010, will continue through March 2013. In 2011 the program may be expanded. Interested businesses should contact John Brothers, Executive Director, at Quincy Asian Resources for further details.

Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. is a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting the development of the Asian-American community with an aim to benefit the entire community. We have staff and volunteers fluent in English, Cantonese, Mandarin, Toisanese, and Vietnamese. For more information about QARI's programs and projects, contact QARI at 617-472-2200.

on 10/20/08. This person with the same name listed the same date of birth and SSN but his height was 5' 9" and the color of hair as brown.

The male suspect in custody was much shorter, his hair is black and he appeared much older than the 37 years of age he claimed to be. A further search of the suspect's wallet produced a prayer card from San Marcos de Leon in the Dominican Republic. The wallet also contained (2) two dollar bills, which Detective O'Brien knew from training and experience that residents of the Dominican Republic often carry two dollar bills for good luck.

He also knew that illegal aliens from the Dominican Republic will steal or buy identities of Puerto Rican Citizens in order to live in the United States. With this information, high bail was set for the suspect in order to determine his actual identity. Soon after, a female walked into the Police Station Lobby with $2,500.00 in cash for the male suspect's bail. Detective O'Brien questioned her. She said that she was a friend of the suspect's girlfriend but she knew very little about him.

When asked where she got the money and why she would risk so much money on bail for someone she didn't know, she stated that she worked at Wendy's and was saving her paychecks, which is directly deposited into her account. She stated she recently withdrew $5,000.00 and happened to have $2,500.00 left. She stated she was from Puerto Rico, but when asked simple questions about Puerto Rico, she could not answer them. She became nervous and upset, then left the police station, taking with her bail money for the male suspect.

The male suspect was charged with Distribution of a Class B Substance (cocaine), Possession with Intent to Distribute a Class B Substance (cocaine), Selling Controlled Substance near School or Park, (Mass Fields Playground) and Conspiracy to Violate the CSL. Detective Coen field tested one of the plastic bags containing white powder which were found on the suspect and it tested positive for the presence of cocaine. The $239 dollars and cell phone located on the suspect was seized pending civil forfeiture. The vehicle was also seized pending civil forfeiture as it was used to facilitate a drug sale.

City Celebrates, Dedicates New Quincy High School

Even more important than the new building, Cahill thanked the teachers and administration for their efforts in shaping the young minds of Quincy High.

"At the end of the day, this building doesn't mean anything without our dedicated teachers," Cahill said.

Katherine Craven also thanked the legislative delegates for their dedication in the project's infant stages. "You as the delegation protected this project," said the Executive Director of the Massachusetts School Building Authority. "Strong leadership pushed this project and kept it in the minds eye."

Mayor TOM KOCH

"What a beautiful day inside this magnificent building. This building will transcend many generations."

State Treasurer TIM CAHILL

"At the end of the day, this building doesn't mean anything without our dedicated teachers."

Craven, using one of John Adams' favorite words, said that the school should be "cherished" for what it has to offer.

State Rep. and former Quincy School Committeeman Ron Mariano told the audience that the students had a fantastic environment to learn and the building will eventually make its mark in history.

Mariano went on to commend Cahill for his efforts in keeping the project alive, as well as the mayors and delegates over the years. "It's a long journey from conception to completion," said Mariano. "It was the treasurer, a Quincy High grad, who realized this had to be done."

Councillor-At-Large and Education Chairperson Michael McFarland said the mission was a long-time coming and well worth the effort. Not only is the new building conducive to students competing locally and nationally, but globally as well.

"As you know, the world is getting smaller every day," said McFarland.

TVs to Vets

In Quincy, unlike many surrounding towns, TVs and monitors are picked-up curbside and disposed at no additional cost to the taxpayer. However, new disposal regulations have fostered a preponderance of discarded TVs pushing disposal costs over $5,000 per month—money the City doesn't have.

Quincy Veterans Services has team-up with the DPW, Office Recycling Solutions and Electronic Manufacturers Recycling Management Company to help save the city thousands in disposal costs and support our local veterans.

To show your support, simply hold onto your TVs and computers, servers, keyboards, window unit ACs, spare computer parts, monitors, laptops, network equipment, mice, laser printers, routers, radios, scanners, fax machines, UPSs, cables and wires, aluminum, copper, cell phones, inks/laser cartridges and telephones until the next event on Saturday, September 18, from 8 AM to 12 PM. The collection is free to Quincy residents and lots of give-a-ways are planned. Stay tuned for more information.

Save your TVs and electronics until Saturday, September 18

Bring them to the Morrisette Post on Liberty St. from 8 AM to 12 PM.

City Prepared But Hurricane A 'Miss'

By JOE REARDON

Hurricane Earl won't be conjuring up fierce images of Mother Nature's rage and fury if or when it is looked back upon by Quincy residents in the future.

Earl, whose winds had reached speeds of 145 miles per hour earlier in the week moving up the eastern seaboard, was downgraded to a tropical storm with little more than rain when it blew into the area on Friday night.

Department of Public Works Commissioner Larry Prendeville had been following the storm all week and by Friday morning knew it would be little more than a weak windstorm.

"It was very, very minor," said Prendeville. "We were geared for the worst and got the best outcome. You have to gear up for the worse case scenario. If you see something like that marching up the coast you need to do your best to be ready.

"On Saturday morning it was like nothing ever happened."

The Emergency Operations Center at the Koch Recreation Center opened on Friday at 4 pm. and was

42-45% Voter Turnout Seen For Primary Tuesday

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Four open seats – for Congress, state senator, Norfolk county district attorney, and state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District – are expected to help draw an anticipated 42 to 45 percent of the city's 54,519 registered voters to the polls for the State Primary Tuesday, Sept. 14.

On the Democratic ballot, there's also contested races for state treasurer and auditor. In the Republican primary, there's one contested state race: auditor.

The primary is open to registered Democrats, Republicans, unenrolled (Independent) voters and Libertarians. There is a Libertarian ballot but there are no candidate names appearing on it.

DEMOCRATIC, REPUBLICAN Composite Ballots Pages 16, 17

The latest voter registration numbers according to the Quincy Election Department shows there are 54,419 registered voters in Quincy. Of that total, 25,182 are unenrolled; 23,705 are Democrat; 5,304 are Republican; 199 Libertarian and 129 all others.

City Clerk Joseph Shea has forecast turnout between 42 to 45 percent – or approximately 22,855 to 24,488 voters for the state primary.

Polls in Quincy will be open Tuesday, Sept. 14 from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

A list of the city's 30 polling precinct locations appears at the end of this article.

Voters who will be out of the city Primary Day can also cast absentee ballots until Monday, Sept. 13 at noon. There were over 600 absentee votes by Friday according to the Quincy Election Department.

This is shaping up as one of the most contested state

Despite Final Mass Sunday, 'Friends' Say Options Still Available

Star Of Sea Advocates Vow Mission To Keep Squantum Church Open

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Parishioners at Star of the Sea Church were shocked Sunday when the Archdiocese's Boston Regional Bishop John Dooher announced the church would be closed and that Sunday's Mass would be the church's final Mass.

However, the Friends of Star of the Sea say their campaign to keep the church open is far from over with options at the Vatican and in civil court still available.

Maureen Mazrimas said the bishop's bombshell announcement jolted and baffled the congregants at the Sunday Mass.

Mazrimas is co-chairman with Sean Glennon of the Friends of Star of the Sea.

"There were a lot of tears, running around and hugging," Mazrimas said Mazrimas, but there were no outbursts as Bishop Dooher announced the closing during the liturgy, just prior to the Final Blessing.

The surprise announcement was especially bitter because the Vatican has yet to rule on the parishioners' appeal to remain open, according to Mazrimas.

"We haven't exhausted all appeals," said Glennon who said Attorney Carlo Gullo is the Friends' Advocate before the Supreme Tribunal of the Apostolic Signature.

Gullo has 40 years experience at the Vatican, according to Glennon and is one of only a handful of lawyers, worldwide, who can argue before the Supreme Tribunal.

"Bishop Dooher was

Star Of Sea Advocates Vow Mission To Keep Church Open

misinformed in his statement," said Glennon. "We have not exhausted all of our appeals. We are currently in the process of appealing the Vatican's recent decision regarding Star of the Sea – a fact which, in the Bishop's defense, he was unaware of yesterday."

With that new information, Glennon and the Friends hope that Cardinal Sean O'Malley will resume the single weekly Noon Mass at Star of the Sea next Sunday.

In addition, Mazrimas said the archdiocese's own review through the Meade-Eisner Committee offered a positive recommendation on keeping Star of the Sea open.

Mazrimas said there may also be potential for civil action considering the history of the property which was bought by a lay group in the early 1900's for the Squantum Catholic Club and, subsequently, donated to the diocese for the church.

When the Star of the Sea was first closed, parishioners were re-routed to Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy. That required a bus ride for elderly, teenagers and children without access to a car.

As a result, Mazrimas said the Friends attempted to establish a religious education program for 143 youngsters with classes in room at the First Church of Squantum, a Congregational church.

Mazrimas praised the minister at First Church who offered to help the Catholic group in any way possible.

The Diocese rejected the education plan, according to Mazrimas.

Mazrimas said she fully understands the shortage of priests in the diocese, but believes, "I don't think you get new priests by closing church doors."

She also noted the diocese's recent campaign, "Catholics Come Home," suggesting the diocese should be working, as well, to help the Catholics who have never left.

Mary, Star of the Sea Church, built in the 1950's is at the top of a hill facing Quincy Bay. The Assessors value the two church properties associated with Star of the Sea on Bellevue Street at over $2.1 million with the land value at a total of $444,600.

Efforts to reach the diocesan spokesman Terri Donilan prior to deadline were unsuccessful.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 15, 1858, the new Overland Mail Company sends out its first two stagecoaches, inaugurating government mail service between the eastern and western regions of the nation. Overland later competed with the Pony Express until May 10, 1869, the day the first transcontinental railroad was completed. On that day, the U.S. government canceled its last overland mail contract.

• On Sept. 17, 1884, Judge Allen disposes of the 13 criminal cases on his Oakland, Calif., docket in only six minutes. Although he apparently set a new record for speed, defendants in Oakland's criminal court did not stand much of a chance of gaining an acquittal. In a 40-year period at the turn of the century, only 1 defendant in 100 was acquitted.

• On Sept. 14, 1901, U.S. President William McKinley dies after being shot by a deranged anarchist during the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, N.Y. When McKinley was operated on after being shot, doctors had failed to find the bullet, and gangrene soon spread throughout his body.

• On Sept. 16, 1940, Selective Service is born as Congress passes the Burke-Wadsworth Act, imposing the first peacetime draft in the history of the United States. By the end of World War II, approximately 34 million men had registered, and 10 million served with the military.

• On Sept. 19, 1959, in one of the more surreal moments in the history of the Cold War, Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev explodes with anger when he learns that he cannot visit Disneyland. Government authorities feared that the crowds would pose a safety hazard for the premier.

• On Sept. 13, 1971, a four-day riot at Attica Prison in New York comes to a violent end as law-enforcement officials open fire, killing 29 inmates and 10 hostages and injuring many more. The prison insurrection was the bloodiest in U.S. history.

• On Sept. 18, 1981, the 20,000-car parking lot at Canada's West Edmonton Mall makes the Guinness Book of World Records as the largest parking lot in the world. However, in Dubai, a 40,000-space parking lot is under construction at a shopping center.

Same Names

What's the most common name – first and last – in Quincy?

How about John Smith?

Sorry, not even close. (But I'll take this opportunity to mention that John Smith is my father-in-law. So to THAT John Smith, I say hello.)

Perhaps John Kelly?

Nope.

William Murphy?

Nada.

Well, before I disclose the answer, I'll let you know that there are some 109 names that are shared by at least seven Quincy residents. And those common names collectively total some 1,063 residents.

So, what name is the most common in Quincy?

It is . . . John Sullivan. There are 28 of them living in Quincy. My guess is that at least 27 of them have the nickname Sully. Only a guess though.

There's a three-way tie for second place. The names John Murphy, Li Chen and Michael Sullivan are shared by 18 residents each.

Alone in third place is the name John Kelly with 17.

Here's the rest of the rankings with the number of duplicate names in parentheses:

Fourth Place: Wai Wong (16 shared names).

Fifth: Mary Murphy (15).

Sixth: Brian Sullivan, Wei Chen (14).

Seventh: Thanh Nguyen (13).

Eighth: Thomas Sullivan, William Murphy, Robert Sullivan, Patricia Sullivan (12). (Wonder if any of those Sullivans are married to each other?)

Ninth: David Nguyen, Kathleen Sullivan (11).

10th: Mei Chen, Anh Nguyen, Kim Nguyen, Yan Li, Minh Nguyen (10 duplicate names). (Could all those Nguyens be related?)

11th: Thomas Walsh, Mary Sullivan, Jian Chen, William O'Connell, Mary Flaherty, Joseph Murphy, Thuy Nguyen, Joseph McCarthy, Liz Zhang, Thuy Tran, John O'Connor, Xiao Chen (9 shared names).

12th : John Fitzgerald, John Campbell, John O'Brien, Hoang Nguyen, Michael Walsh, Patrick Walsh, Yu Chen, Brian Mahoney, John Collins, John McDonough, John Greene.

Also tied for 12th: John Norton, Mary Kelly, Robert Smith, Daniel Murphy, Thomas McCarthy, James Brown, Patrick O'Donnell, Michael Connolly, Wing Wong, Joseph Sullivan, John Doherty, Son Nguyen, Sean O'Connor, Mary O'Brien, Patrick Sullivan, James Sullivan, Michael Smith, Patricia Flaherty, Wei Li, Mei Li.

All those names are shared by 8 people.

And in 13th place, this last group of names are shared by 7 people:

Mary McLaughlin, Chau Nguyen, Phuong Nguyen, John Mahoney, Michael Flaherty, Michelle Chen, Jin Chen, Michael Foley, James Flaherty, John McDonald, Kevin Chan, Kathleen Kelly, Lai Wong, Jian Liang, Christopher Brown, William O'Brien, Sean Ryan.

Also tied for 13th: David Smith, John McLaughlin, Paul Smith, James Foley, Robert Donovan, William Brown, Patricia Burke, John Smith, Patricia Murphy, William MacDonald, John Connolly, Kevin O'Brien, Daniel Smith, James Smith, Lien Nguyen, Michael Miller, James O'Brien, Kevin Sullivan, Kevin Murphy, Michael O'Brien, James Murphy, John Downey, Patricia Lynch, Maureen Murphy, Shu Chen, John Ryan and Thomas Kelly.

My thanks to Sean Glennon of the Quincy Planning Department and Tom Meade from the city's Information Technology Department for researching this subject and supplying the information for this column.

Speaking of Sean, he is one of two Sean Glennons in Quincy.

The other Sean Glennon is a Quincy police officer.

According to Principal Planner Sean, people get the "other" Sean Glennon confused with him all the time. They both attended North Quincy High School and are only about 8 years in age apart.

Sean, the Quincy police officer, was an all-star on the NQHS football team when the other Sean was a kid.

Patrolman
SEAN GLENNON

"During those years, I would go to the NQHS-QHS 'Turkey Day' games with my family. Whenever the announcer would yell "touchdown by Sean Glennon" I would take a bow from the stands, and say 'Thank you . . . thank you."

When Principal Planner Sean was in high school, the other Sean sometimes filled in as a substitute teacher. "I had him a few times. It was always funny to see 'Mr. Glennon' written on the chalkboard."

Both Seans are quite active in the community. Which can lead to some confusion.

Patrolman Sean's family runs an annual blood drive in honor of his daughter, Avery. This Sean is also a regular in Police Lt. Dan Minton's "Job Well Done" column featured in The Sun for his fine work in the Police Department.

"I'm always getting comments about the blood drive and police work, and he gets comments about the Friends of the Star of the Sea and the Planning Department. Oh well. I can't complain," Sean says.

The feeling of respect is mutual, says the other Sean.

"Sean is a top shelf guy who does a lot of good for the city. It's an honor to be confused with him," says Patrolman Sean.

Their families have also known each other for years. Sean the Planner grew up two doors down from Patrolman Sean's sister. "I've known the family for years and they are wonderful people," the patrolman adds.

Small world.

But with quite a few common names.

THIS SUMMER should go down weather-wise as one of the hottest and driest ever.

WELCH

Just ask Recreation Director Barry Welch.

"We needed baseballs, basketballs, whiffle ball bats and frisbees but we never needed an umbrella. Our summer playgrounds and outdoor sports clinics never had to use a rain day," said Welch.

The Recreation Department's core day programs started Monday, June 28th and ended Friday, Aug. 13. Those outdoor programs ran essentially without a hitch . . .er, rain drop that is.

"We had a close call Thursday, July 29th when a quick moving shower hit the north end of the city, but it passed without touching most of our sites and the north end programs took brief shelter and went back to activities with bright sunshine following the showers.

"I cannot recall this happening in my tenure as director since 1982," Welch noted.

The heat did not deter attendance at those recreation programs.

"Although it was hot, the kids respond well to the heat and our participants' numbers were great all summer. We did some arts and crafts or board games after 11 a few days, but most of the time the kids just continued to participate and have fun," Welch said.

The weather was also a boom for the boating, sailing and kayak programs with all most perfect weather at Black's Creek every day. The one weather caveat: "For the record, a few of the night programs were forced to cancel as those late afternoon showers fueled by the oppressive heat moved in around 6 p.m.," Welch said.

Scenes From Yesterday

ONE HUNDRED YEARS ago this week, the Harvard Boston Aero Meet was held at the Harvard Aero Field in Atlantic. The aero-field was located in the area behind the new Kennedy Senior Center on the Squantum Causeway. The Harvard Aeronautical Society had rented the 500-acre site for five years. They and others offered large cash prizes for record-breaking thrilling contests to lure the most daring aviators and the most advanced aviation equipment from the U.S. and Europe to this meet. It was only the second air meet in the U.S. and was only seven years after the Wright Brothers' first flight at Kitty Hawk. Over 50,000 observers came to Quincy that week including President William Howard Taft, Boston Mayor John F. (Honey Fitz) Fitzgerald and New York State Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt. This postcard shows a French-built Bleroit monoplane on its way to a record-breaking flight to Boston Light. It was the first single wing aero plane seen in Boston. At the controls was Englishman Claude Graham-White (insert), the only pilot who dared to fly the 10 miles out to the lighthouse and then back. For this, The Boston Globe awarded him $10,000. Graham-White won most of the other contests as well, including altitude, speed and bomb dropping. A second meet here a year later was pretty much rained out. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net. Events Sept. 24-26 will mark the aero meet's 100th anniversary. Story on Page 13.

Peabody - Bellotti Contest State Primary Highlight

This Week

By FRANK McCAULEY

The contest between Governor Endicott Peabody and Lt. Governor Francis X. Bellotti for the Democratic nomination for governor is one of the few big interest fights in the primaries on Thursday.

Although G.O.P. contests are few and far between, a few were being hotly contested.

Selectman Ralph Amabile of Weymouth and Attorney William D. Weeks of Cohasset were seeking to wrest the G.O.P. nomination in the Norfolk and Plymouth Senatorial District away from veteran Senator Newland Holmes. Both Sen. Holmes and Mr. Weeks had received endorsements from G.O.P. leaders in the district. (Editor's note: Bill Weeks would defeat Sen. Holmes in the primary and go on to win the senate seat in the final election.)

MAYOR ORDERS COLLECTION OF DELINQUENT AUTO TICKETS

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa said that he had already ordered City Treasurer Thomas J. Sheerin to notify the Registry of Motor Vehicles of delinquent auto excise taxes for 1963 and prior years.

The mayor's statement came in response to an announcement last week by Council President Joseph J. LaRaia that he would ask the mayor to take such action. Mr. LaRaia, charging that Quincy's becoming a "soft touch" for delinquent taxpayers asked Mr. Sheerin to investigate.

Mayor Della Chiesa said he concurred with Council President LaRaia "that all people who owe the City of Quincy money should make every effort to pay."

"I have issued statements of this nature from time to time since I have been mayor."

QUINCY YARD GETS $64,950,273 CONTRACT

The Navy Bureau of Ships has awarded a $64,950,273 contract to the General Dynamics Electric Boat Division in Quincy for conversion and outfitting of three World War II tankers for tracking service for the Apollo Moon Shot Program.

The announcement of the contract award was made by Congressman James A. Burke (D-Milton) and Senator Edward M. Kennedy (D-MA).

The ships would be deployed in positions around the world to track and communicate with the Apollo manned space vehicles destined to take United States astronauts to the moon and back, hopefully within this decade. (Editor's note: They made it!)

Beach Party Benefits Quincy Animal Shelter

A Parrot Head Beach Party to benefit Quincy Animal Shelter was recently held at the Beachcomber on Wollaston Beach.

Attendees sported their flashiest tropical garb while enjoying Jimmy Buffet style music, lots of snacks, dancing, and laughs

Some of the more adventurous attendees participated in trivia games, ho-la-hoop and dance contests.

The event took place in the outdoor deck which added to the tropical mood and provided a beautiful view of Quincy Bay and the Boston skyline.

Inside the Beachcomber, people took chances on over 20 raffles prizes that were donated by thoughtful businesses and individuals. Raffles included concert tickets, restaurant gift certificates, jewlery, autographed sports photos, and much more.

According to event coordinator, Julianne Fonseca the event generated over $3000, an amount which is very special for a first time event. Those attending said the event was a lot of fun and everyone is looking forward to next year's Parrot Head Beach Party.

It provided an opportunity for the Shelter to add to their much needed funding, and a chance to relax with friends and family,as well as making new friends.

Remembering The Popover

Remember when you could go out to a restaurant and be served popovers while you waited for your meal? And they were free. Those days are gone, but not forgotten because today's recipe is for the popover, and one of the easiest to make.

My niece Ann reminded me of them, and gave me this great recipe.

POPOVERS

1-cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
1-cup milk
2 eggs

Beat together with rotary beater just until smooth the flour salt, milk and the eggs. Pour into well greased deep muffin cups (3/4 full).

Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) until golden brown, 40 to 45 minutes. Serve immediately. They come out high and hot with crusty shells, hollow inside.

This recipe makes 5 to 9 popovers, depending on size of the cup.

Health Representatives To Host Table At Farmers' Market Friday

Health representatives from the community will host a table Friday, Sept. 10 at the Quincy Farmers market to answer questions related to nutrition, provide prenatal resources, dental heath information and also provide blood pressure checks.

The three agencies teaming up to offer this free resource are Quincy WIC Nutrition Program, The Boston Family Van and Manet Community Health. The table will be staffed from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. tomorrow (Friday).

Quincy Farmers' Market now accepts SNAP EBT and offers incentives for trading with EBT cards.

"Quincy Farmers' Market offers a great opportunity to shop for local produce at its peak nutritional value" said Anneli Johnson, market manager and former nutrition educator for University of Massachusetts Extension Service. "There is a huge difference in taste when buying produce from local grower, rather than having my produce grown in far away places," she added.

There are some 14 different local vendors presently serving Quincy and area consumers.

Quincy Farmers' Market operates on John Hancock Municipal Parking lot, across from the District Court House of Chestnut street, Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., rain or shine. To learn more about Quincy Farmers' Market, call 617-479-1601 or 617-471-1700.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Using Gasoline

Here's a repeat topic, gasoline. While the frequent use of gasoline invites complacency, complacency warrants a review.

Gasoline is so commonly used and is such an integral part of our daily lives, I wonder if most of us are aware of it as a potential hazard if used haphazardly? For instance, according to statistics acquired by the Office of the State Fire Marshal, Massachusetts hospitals have treated 85 people for gasoline-related burns over the last 5 years.

Gasoline vapors ignite at a very low temperature. Fumes are heavier than air and can travel some distance to potential ignition sources. Therefore keep anything that can provide heat to ignite gasoline vapors well away from the fumes. A spark, a lit cigarette, or a pilot light is enough for the fumes to flash. A static spark created when gasoline is IMPROPERLY USED to clean a paintbrush can ignite with devastating consequences. Gasoline is a tool, one frequently used, while it demands respect!

When at a self-service gasoline station make certain your engine is turned off before fueling. Obviously do not smoke while fueling your vehicle as well. Remember to replace the nozzle back onto the pump when you're through fueling and before you drive away. It happens! Fueling hose lines come with a breakaway feature for that very reason. If a car drives away with a nozzle in the fill pipe, there is a breakaway feature that is there to minimize spillage to the environment.

Keep gasoline away from children. Statistics indicate that children between ten and fourteen were almost three and a half times as likely to get in trouble with gasoline. I recall an incident when a gasoline safety can was used to mark a child's bicycle obstacle course within a garage under a house. The contents accidentally spilt onto the garage floor while the vapors migrated to the basement furnace and ignited. There were devastating consequences to this incident.

If you need to carry or store gasoline, use an approved container. Within a vehicle, make certain it is secured in an upright position away from the passenger area. Anyone who has ever spilt gasoline within a vehicle trunk knows how difficult it is to rid the car of the odor.

Particularly if you're driving a short distance with a safety can, make certain the fill and vent openings are tightly closed. I hesitate to mention this where gasoline expands as it warms in atmospheric air temperatures. The vent then reduces the internal pressure within the container; however, to reduce spillage the State Fire Marshal encourages tightening the vent. I therefore suggest keeping a container within a trunk for shortest time possible. For me, it's typically a ride from the gas station back home for that very reason.

When filling an approved gas container, always place it on the ground, insert the pump nozzle and bring it in contact with the inside of the container. This will reduce the risk of static electricity igniting the vapors.

Lastly, do not store gasoline within a building used for habitation. I've focused on this issue in a prior article because of the importance to occupants and responding firefighters as well. I hope you find this information helpful!

Dr. Philip Conroy Withdraws As College President Candidate

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Quincy College Presidential choice Philip Conroy, Jr., last week withdrew as a candidate for president after enduring weeks of controversy by board members over his election as top choice.

In his letter, Conroy cited his love of Quincy where he grew up as well as his sadness and disappointment in declining the position.

"It is most important that a new president have the unanimous support of the board of governors," said Conroy in his letter, adding, and "I feel that the support is not forthcoming."

"I believe that the work of educating our citizenry is among the most important work we do as a civilized people." Conroy continued, adding, "It saddens me deeply to see the importance of this work reduced."

In another paragraph, Conroy indicates he never considered suing, "I entered this search because I believed that I could be of service to Quincy College and the community to which I owe a great deal. I did not enter this search to become the plaintiff in a lawsuit."

"I will move on and continue the work that I have loved and to which I have dedicated my life, a bit wiser for the experience but no less passionate and enthusiastic about the power of education to change the lives of individuals."

At this time, Conroy plans to stay at Mount Ida College where he is vice president for Enrollment Management and Marketing.

While Conroy was voted president in mid-June, the Board of Governors became enmeshed in controversy in the following meetings and never voted on offering Conroy a contract.

Under their charter, the Board of Governors must meet for their annual meeting on Sept. 22. At that time, they must elect a new chairperson. Board member David Dennis, former chairman, awaits a decision on his appointment by the Appointing Council.

Since June, the Board of Governors has been diminished by five members but there are actually six openings at this time. The board had a single vacancy at the time of the vote for Conroy's.

Despite the board's problems and rough road in choosing a president, Quincy College appears healthy and its student base is expanding. The college currently has banked over $5 million for future expansion and plans to enlarge its facility in Plymouth to facilitate its growth in that area.

Five Openings For Quincy College Board

City Councillor Michael McFarland was unanimously elected chairman of the 11-member Appointing Council for Quincy College at their Aug. 31 meeting.

The Appointing Council tasked with filling five vacancies on the college's Board of Governors will begin reviewing applications Oct, 6 after an advertising campaign aimed at attracting, as candidates, Quincy residents with solid business, community, or education background and enthusiasm for higher education.

All but one of the openings on the Board of Governors occurred due to the Board's current search for a new president for Quincy College.

At their first meeting, the Appointing Council focused on the need to establish the residency of current board members as that issue brought the Board of Governors to a standstill and its votes into question in the past months.

"We have been unable to function as a board primarily because of this issue," said Donald Gratz who is also a member of the Board of Governors.

Under Quincy College's charter, the Board of Governors may not have more than four non-resident members. Council member

Council Approves Koch Recommendation By 6-3 Vote

City Goes Greener With 'Stretch Code'

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Quincy recently joined the 44 or more municipalities in the state which have adopting stringent energy regulations for builders called the "Stretch Code."

City Council voted 6-3 on the issue recommended by Mayor Thomas Koch. Chris Walker, the mayor's spokesman, said the proposal had been discussed at several forums this summer. Passage required the two-thirds majority vote.

Through that vote, the city also, becomes eligible for a cut of an $8 million incentive offered to cities and towns earning the "green community" label.

The new regulations will go into effect Jan. 1, according to the state regulations issued by the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security (EOPSS) which describes the code as requiring "real-world testing to ensure residential energy savings and energy modeling to ensure commercial energy savings."

Proponents concede slight financial pain in construction costs upfront, but predict major payback not only for the environment but, also, for building owners who, they say, will save considerable money in energy costs over a short time period.

However, skeptics fear the added costs are exorbitant, payback won't come for decades and contend the 'Stretch Code" merely adds to the expensive energy saving mandates in the 2010 state building code. The Stretch Code adds standard requirements and municipal testing.

City Council President Kevin Coughlin said he expects the city's share of the $8 million incentive will be earmarked for energy conservation projects and believes local contractors are fully prepared.

"This is already happening," Coughlin said after the Aug. 16 vote, stating that contractors have told him they're already following conservation guidelines, such as adding insulation and solar products.

"They recognize there's a payback," said Coughlin, adding that the Stretch Code will soon become the "law of the land. Why not get out in front of the curve?"

"This is a small step," said Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro who called the code the right move in the face of climate change and cited financial savings on utilities and heat for homeowners.

"The folks here in Quincy want to be on the cutting edge," said Gutro who believes, "The local option will be the law of the state in one to two years."

However, Councillors Daniel Raymondi, Ward 2; Brian Palmucci, Ward 4 and Brian McNamee, Ward 6 maintained new construction costs could hamper building starts in this tough economy and even repairs from the March floods.

"Will it tend to deter someone from building?" asked Raymondi, citing the 10%, 15%, and 20% unemployment and underemployment statistics in the building trades.

"We are adding significantly to the cost of construction," said Raymondi during the council debate. "You may have to stay in your house 15 to 20 years to recoup the extra costs."

Raymondi estimated additional costs of $4,000, $5,000 or $6,000 for homeowners even while, "We are encouraging them to make improvements."

"I don't think I want to add one dollar (to construction costs)," said McNamee.

Building Commissioner Jay Duca said he's heard added costs estimates on single-family construction of between $3,000 and $5,000, but a wide, wide range on forecasts for payback on the new costs.

There will be a savings of $400 to $500 a year for the average single home after the initial extra cost of $3,000, according Marc Breslow, Director of Transportation and Building Policy, Executive Office of Energy and Environment Affairs.

Breslow also told the council that there would be very few changes for rehabilitation projects.

Raymondi offered an amendment requiring that the city offer discounts of up to 50% of the building permit fee to balance the new costs.

"We're asking the city to be a partner," said Raymondi who was supported only by Palmucci when the amendment was voted.

Raymondi, Palmucci and McNamee voted against the Stretch Code which was approved by Coughlin, Gutro, Councillors Margaret LaForest, Ward 1, Michael McFarland, John Keenan and Joseph Finn.

Builder incentives and subsidies are expected to offset some costs of the code which will require testing and standards for all projects covered under the code.

Under the code, new projects must meet design, installation and equipment requirements, be tested for air leakage, for thermal barrier installation, and all heating and air conditioning ducts must meet standards.

Every municipality adopting the code must train personnel able to inspect and test projects for compliance.

SWOLLEN FEET

Excessive buildup of fluid in the muscles of the feet results in swollen feet. This swelling is referred to as "edema" This uncomfortable condition can be caused by a number of things including a diet high in salt and carbohydrates. Pregnancy, PMS, muscle injury, and trauma are also potential causes of swollen feet. In most cases, this situation can be prevented or treated. One of the first options is to elevate the legs above the level of the heart. Regular exercise improves circulation and helps with the problem as well. Avoid standing in one place or sitting for long periods of time. Specific treatment, of course, will depend on the cause of the swelling.

When your feet are swollen and uncomfortable, or are otherwise trying to tell you something, we'll provide you with a comprehensive diagnosis and treatment plan so that you are out of pain and back on your feet in as short amount of time as possible. If your foot problem concerns pronation, we'll tell you about HyProCure™. I am one of only two podiatrists in this state who has the advanced training necessary to perform this pain-saving, minimally invasive procedure that requires no casting and has patients back in their regular shoes in just one week. For an appointment at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER, please call us at 781-986-3668. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221.

HINT: Certain drugs, including nonsteroidal anti-inflammatories, can contribute to swollen feet.

100th Anniversary Of Harvard Boston Aero Meet To Be Marked Sept. 24-26

The Blue Hill Observatory, The Quincy Historical Society, and the Massachusetts Aviation Historical Society are working together to mark the 100th Anniversary of the Harvard Boston Aero Meet which was only the third air meet held anywhere in the world.

Events are planned for Friday, Sept. 24 through Sunday, Sept. 26.

The original meet, planned by BHO Director Abbott Lawrence Rotch, featured the earliest aviators including the Wright brothers who only agreed to fly in competition because of their friendship with Rotch. W. Starling Burgess, Glenn Curtiss, and the British flyer Claude Grahame-White(who won the $10,000 Boston Globe first prize) as well as many others flew at the event.

Boston Mayor John "HoneyFitz" Fitzgerald flew for the first time mentioning how "safe" planes were since they landed on grass. Over 500,000 people were said to have witnessed flight - most for the first time - as the shorelines were filled allowing people to see the planes make a loop around Boston Light.

President William H.Taft and future President Franklin Delano Roosevelt were attendees seeing these early flying machines.

The 100th anniversary events will include a Kite Festival, under the auspices of BHO and the Drachen Foundation(a Seattle based kite foundation), at the DCR Squantum Point Park as well as exhibits at the Kennedy Center (440 East Squantum Street) in Squantum.

The Kite Fest and Exhibits run all three days from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The events are free and open to the public.

Everyone is encourage to bring a child and fly a kite. Kite kits will be available.

Kites including man carrying kites were featured in 1910 at the Aero Meet.

On Friday evening, Sept. 24 Dr. Tom Crouch, Senior Curator Division of Aeronautics at the Smithsonian Air and Space Museum and author of a number of books on early aviation, will give a talk entitled "Remembering the Harvard Boston Aero Meet" at the Quincy Historical Society's Adams Academy Building, 8 Adams St. at 8:15 p.m.

The talk is free and open to the public.

A private reception, lecture, and book signing with Dr. Crouch will be held before starting at 5:30 p.m.. Tickets for the reception can be purchased at $35 per person by calling 617 696 0389.

Koch cutting the opening ribbon at the Kennedy Center in Squantum at 10 a.m. Friday, Sept. 24. followed by a guided tour at Squantum Point Park - a popular DCR park which encompasses some of the original flying field that later became Squantum Naval Air Station. ST. ANN'S SCHOOL is empty and deserted now, but the property may one day be home to a new Central Middle School under Mayor Thomas Koch's plans. Koch's spokesman Chris Walker said this week the mayor is "very confident" that an agreement can be negotiated between the city and the Boston Archdiocese and parish. Walker said the mayor has had 'productive' discussions with all parties.

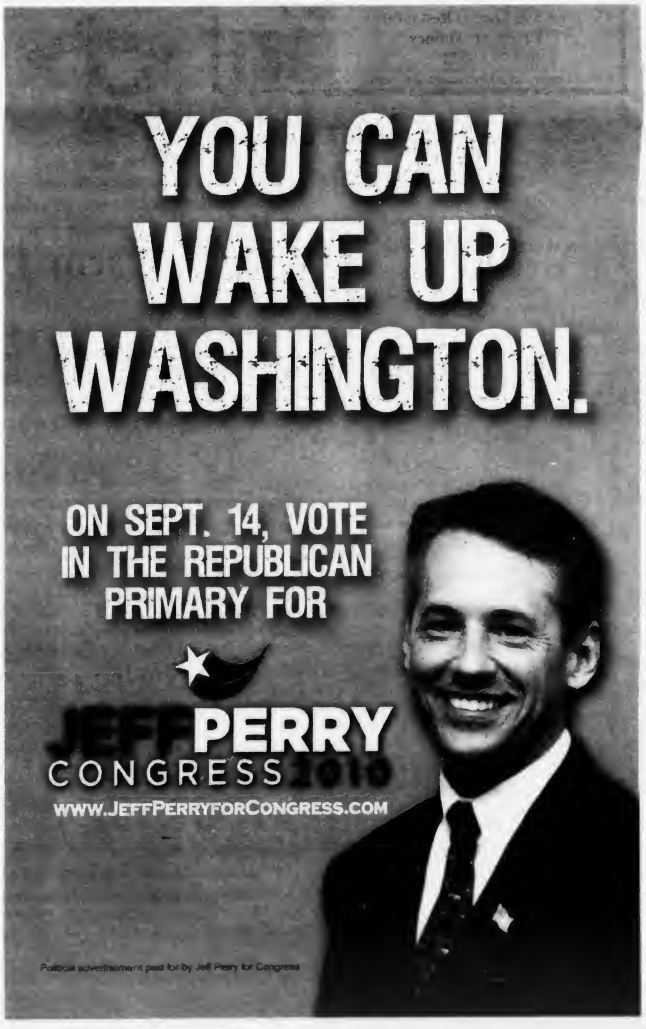
Jim Timmins, City Solicitor, said he would work with the college's attorneys to devise a proper gauge of residency.

"The residency issue is a very serious issue," said Timmins. The Appointing Council agreed to ask "all (current) board members to submit their current residence as of tomorrow."



The council also considered the re-appointment of David Dennis as governor for a new term. Dennis was chairman of the governors until his term expired on Aug. 31.

The Appointing Council voted 5-4 against a motion to immediately re-appoint Dennis. The majority favored waiting until the residency issue for all current board members is resolved.

Council members Pedro Viejo-Rodriguez and Gratz, both members of the Board of Governors, appealed to the council to re-appoint Dennis at that meeting, contending that the Board of Governors needed to complete the president's search with at least nine members seated.

However, the majority by one vote agreed to wait until the residency of current board members is established.

Quincy Board Of License Commissioners Aug. 24 Meeting Minutes

Mr. Eric Braunstein, explained the Outback could not come to terms with the landlord. Commissioner Scheele stated the Board should have received a letter and not been kept in the dark. Mr. Braunstein stated the Outback's Tampa office notified him to appear today, and to look for another location. The Board discussed numerous unpaid fire alarm and water bills dating back to 2006. It was noted that the bills would need to be paid before any change to the license, either transfer or relocation of the business.

Commissioner Scheele stated someone really dropped the ball with this and "we're not real happy". Motion to continue the hearing of the status of the Outback Steak House, 223 Parkingway, until Sept. 21, in efforts to relocate, find a new location and attention to payment of all unpaid bills at the location, made by Commissioner Scheele. Chairman Shea took the following vote:

Chief Keenan: no
Director Duca: yes
Commissioner Scheele: yes
Chief Barron: yes
Chairman Shea: no.

The motion passed 3-2.

Agenda 18. Addendum: Hearing regarding the request of Margaret Laforest for a One-day permit to hold the Annual Ward 1 Community Cook Out, Aug. 31, 5-7 p.m. at the Merrymount School Field. Ms. Laforest present. A temporary food permit has been issued by the Health Department. Motion to grant the request made by Commissioner Scheele, second Director Duca. All in favor.

Agenda 19. Hearing regarding the status of The China Pearl International, 237 Quincy Ave. Mr. Brian Moy. Captain Thomas Lyons outlined the history of China Pearl and his numerous attempts to work with Mr. Moy to correct violations of overcrowding, sprinkler system violations and illegal construction of a new room. Mr. Moy has disregarded all attempts by the Quincy Fire Prevention office for over a year. Complaints to the Quincy Fire Dept. noted overcrowding on several occasions and a visit from an inspector documented there were 629 occupants in the premise licensed for 392. All warnings from Quincy Fire have been ignored.

Mr. Moy stated Captain Lyons is correct but a lot of functions slip through the holes, he stated he called the Fire Dept. for a detail on Friday and left a voice mail and that Best Sprinkler has submitted plans to the Building Dept. The Temporary agreement of February 09 stated Mr. Moy was to schedule a detail before 3:30 on Fridays, he calls after that time. Chief Keenan and Director Duca questioned why Mr. Moy would book functions of 600 when the occupancy is 392. Mr. Moy added the site is booked until September 2011 for weddings.

The Board discussed revocation of the Entertainment License. Chief Barron's concerns were with the booked weddings and suggested that The China Pearl be required to have a Fire Detail every Friday, Saturday and Sunday until Oct. 5, when the Board will revisit the violations and if not corrected the Entertainment License will be revoked. Motion:

Suspension of the Entertainment License on Oct. 5, 2010 if every tenant is not met and an automatic Fire Watch on every Friday, Saturday & Sunday, until then and all pending paperwork to be submitted to the Fire Department & Fire Prevention Department re: Sprinkler/Fire Suppression Systems. All in favor.

Agenda 20. Hearing regarding the request of S & H Tobacco, Inc., d/b/a Hancock Tobacco, 1500 Hancock St., Mineshkumar S. primaries in more than a dozen years. On the Democratic ballot there seven races with competitive fields. On the Republican side, there are two.

Drawing the highest number of candidates is the race to replace retiring U.S. Rep. William Delahunt in the 10th Congressional District. Delahunt, a Quincy Democrat, announced in March that he would not seek re-election creating an open seat for the first time since 1996.

Delahunt's departure has fielded two Democratic contenders and four Republican challengers for Congress in the 10th District that spans from Quincy to Cape Cod and the Islands.

In the Democratic primary, the two Congressional candidates are William R. Keating of Quincy, the current Norfolk County district attorney; and Robert A. O'Leary of Barnstable, a state senator.

In the Republican primary, the four Congressional candidates vying for their party's nomination are Robert E. Hayden III of Hanover, a former Plymouth County district attorney; Raymond Kasperowicz of Cohasset, a veteran; Joseph D. Malone of Scituate, former state treasurer; and Jeffrey D. Perry of Sandwich, a state representative.

The campaign for Congress will remain crowded after Tuesday's primary. The Democratic and Republican primary winners will face a challenge by three Independents in the Nov. 2 final election. They are: former Quincy Mayor James Sheets; Maryanne Lewis, a former state representative who lives in Scituate; and Joe van Ness, a resident of Martha's Vineyard who is running on the platform "Bring Troops Home." The three Independents have all qualified for the final state election, according to the state Secretary of State's office.

Independent candidates do not have a party primary and thus go directly to the Nov. 2 ballot.

There is a three-way race for the Democratic nomination for Norfolk County district attorney. The candidates are: Michael Chinman of Milton, former assistant district attorney; Joseph R. Driscoll, Jr., of Braintree, former assistant district attorney and assistant attorney general; and longtime Quincy legislator Michael W. Morrissey. Morrissey served as a representative for 16 years before being elected state senator in 1992.

There is no Republican on the primary ballot for Norfolk district attorney. The Democratic nominee will face Independent John F. Coffey Nov. 2.

There are two Quincy Democrats seeking the Norfolk-Plymouth District senate seat being vacated by Morrissey. The district comprises all of Quincy, the towns of Holbrook, Abington and Rockland and eight precincts in Braintree.

They are: John F. Keenan, 37 Hobomack Rd., Quincy, a Quincy city councillor at-large; and State Rep. Arthur Stephen Tobin of 58 Huntley Rd., Quincy.

Keenan and Tobin are both attorneys. Keenan has served as a city councillor since 2003. Tobin has served as a state representative since 1989.

The winner of the Keenan-Tobin race will face a challenge by Republican Dan Dewey of 139 Sonoma Rd., Quincy, a veteran; and Independent Laura Innis in the final Nov. 2.

There are two Democrats vying for their party's nomination for Tobin's state representative seat in the 2nd Norfolk District. They are: Tackey Chan of 66 Meadowbrook Rd., Quincy, a former assistant attorney general; and Joseph Keegan of 21 Moreland Rd., Quincy, an attorney and a veteran of the Gulf War.

The 2nd Norfolk District consists of all of Ward 1; Precincts 1, 2 and 5 in Ward 3; Precincts 2 and 4 in Ward 4; and Precincts 1, 3 and 4 in Ward 5.

The winner of the Chan-Keegan race will face Republican John Iredale, 200 Rock Island Rd., Quincy; and Independent Karl Roos of 8 Park St., Quincy, in the Nov. 2 final. Iredale is a political newcomer and president of a construction company. Roos, who works in sales, marketing and software, ran for a seat on the Quincy School Committee last fall.

Quincy's two other state representatives – Bruce Ayers and Ron Mariano – are unopposed in the Democratic primary. Neither Ayers nor Mariano has a Republican challenger but Mariano will have an Independent opponent Nov. 2: Gary Lowell from Weymouth.

Other contested races in the Democratic Primary:

- State treasurer: Candidates are Steven Grossman of Newton and Stephen Murphy of Boston.
- State auditor: candidates are Suzanne Bump of Great Barrington and Guy W. Glodis of Auburn.
- Governor's Councillor: Christopher A. Iannella, Jr., Boston and Stephen F. Fly-

City Prepared But Hurricane Earl A 'Miss'

closed by midnight.

The only area of concern was on Arlington Street, which experienced minor flooding. Prendeville said there wasn't any infrastructure damage anywhere in the city.

Jay Hosea and Tom Gerbick scanned Quincy Bay from the back deck of the Wollaston Yacht Club on Friday morning. There was a dull haze and the air was heavy with humidity on, but that's not the weather that was on the club's fleet captain and safety inspector's mind.

With the uncertainty of exactly what Hurricane Earl had in store for the area, both men knew from experience to err on the side of caution. "Safety is the main thing here," said Hosea. "You can't take any chances."

The pair had spent more than eight hours unhooking chains and separating the dock to save it from possibly being destroyed by the high winds and waves. During Hurricane Bob, the heavy winds blew the roof off the yacht club, tossing it beyond the sea wall. Hosea expected some major weather, but nothing on the scale that Bob brought with it.

"I expect this to be more of a Nor'easter," he said. "I don't expect anything like Bob."

Hurricane Bob hit land in New England back in 1991 and left behind it destruction that totaled $2.8 billion and 18 people dead.

The fact that just two club members pulled their boats from the water while others simply fastened them more securely spoke volumes on how they were regarding the hurricane that was due to hit on Friday evening and last into the early morning Saturday.

Next door at the Squantum Yacht Club, launch operator Carolyn Marks was using the hours up to Earl's projected arrival further securing the vessels that were still in Quincy Bay. Marks too, had heard of the diminishing strength of the hurricane, but, like Hosea and Gerbick, she too was playing it safe.

"We can't afford to replace all this stuff," said Marks during a short break for lunch. "And it's a good drill. Mine's (boat) sitting on a trailer in the driveway ready to go back in on Saturday."

Lifetime member Bob Boussy has seen hurricanes from New England to Key West and has learned through experience to never take them lightly because of their unpredictability.

"They can make a liar out of you in a second," said Boussy. "It's when they come back and stall, that's what kills you."

At Curry Hardware, business was steady with customers making last minute purchases of flashlights, wicks, candles, sump pumps and batteries. Business was busier than usual, but it was unlike winter storm warnings where lines into the iconic store went out the door. Several elderly people brought their flashlights in to have their power tested.

Owner Sean Curry said he was a little surprised by the number of people who were bracing themselves for the worst.

"We honestly didn't think we'd get an impact from it," said Curry. "I don't know if we have a flashlight left. We've been surprised how many people have come in. You didn't realize it until Wednesday night."

Curry admitted that the threat of severe weather, whether it be a hurricane or snowstorm was a boon to his business. "In the hardware business it's good," he said. "We sell 2,000 to 3,000 snow shovels a season. We've had people up from the Cape buying chainsaws.

"All in all I think people are looking forward to it," Curry said of the storm.

Receives $1,000 Prize; Beer & Wine Tasting Sept. 17

Quincy Animal Shelter 'Top Dog' Among Websites

By JOE REARDON

It may be a dog's world, but the Quincy Animal Shelter is howling in delight after winning a $1,000 prize as having the most visited animal shelter website in Massachusetts.

The Quincy Animal Shelter received one of 77 prizes awarded in the Second Annual All-Star Animal Rescue Shelter Challenge. There were more than 5.26 million votes cast in the challenge. Since its inception in 2008, 164 different shelters and rescue groups have received grants totaling a whopping $500,000.

"We'll be able to use the money for a myriad of things," said shelter board member Lynda Southerland. "We were surprised, only because there are so many shelters. It wasn't a mindless thing. People actually had to login and click on."

The $1,000 prizes were awarded to an animal shelter from every state, as well as Canada, Mexico and Coast Rica.

"While the Challenge grants are not all that we do, they are certainly one of our most popular programs," said Tim Kunin, CEO of The Animal Rescue Site. "What's truly been exciting is to see how many small shelters and all-volunteer rescue groups have won over the yeas. These groups make an enormous difference to the health and happiness of the pets in their communities."

Southerland said the shelter is gearing up for the next contest, the Holiday Challenge, which begins on Monday, September 20 and runs through Sunday, December 19. The grand prize will be a $10,000 grant, along with exciting prize. Dark Horse Prizes will go to rescue organizations that have never won a grant in any of the previous challenges. A special grant of $10,000 has been added to the organization that receives the most website hits during the entire year.

"So many groups try so hard and they have really raised the awareness of animal rescue needs in their communities," said Kunin. "We want to honor that with Most Votes in 2010 Award."

Other categories have been added in the Holiday Shelter Challenge, among them a Shelter Fan Photo Contest where voters are encouraged to submit photos of their rescued pet to win a grant for their designated rescue group.

"These challenges have been a wonderful opportunity for Petfinder.com members," said Li Neuschatz, director of the Petfinder.com Foundation. "The winners have something to really celebrate, but even those who don't win have benefited from their communities coming together to act on behalf of homeless pets."

A Wine & Beer Tasting will be held Friday, Sept. 17 from 6-9 p.m., to raise funds to help Quincy's homeless dogs and cats. The event will be held at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., and is being sponsored by Frozen Freddies. Other sponsors include Atlas Liquors, National Wine & Liquors, Shop-N-Save Liquors and Blue Hills Brewery. Tickets are $30 and can be purchased at the door, from the liquor sponsors or Quincy Animal Shelter volunteers. Call (617) 376-1349 for more information.

Asperger's Syndrome/Autism Teen Social Group Available

The South Shore YMCA, in association with QPAC, the Quincy Parent Advisory Council to Special Education, announces the continuation of The Teen Center Social Group.

The Group is a social and pragmatic language development program for adolescents with Asperger's/High Functioning Autism disorders.

Adolescents with this disorder often struggle significantly with learning appropriate social behavior and reading proper social clues. Social skills need to be taught explicitly and directly to these youths in order to provide them with a better understanding of the expectations of the social world.

The Teen Center Social Group meets Friday nights at the Quincy YMCA, Coddington Street, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 17.

The program, funded by the Community Development Block Grant, is facilitated two instructors who provide instruction and strategies for building social skills in a place where young adults can recognize, practice, and feel at easy with everyday social encounters. Young adults ages 13 and older are invited to join.

For more information, contact Kathryn Saunders at the YMCA, 617-479-8500 ext. 115 or visit the Quincy Parent Advisory Council to Special Education website at www.quincypac.org.

In announcing its endorsements, Massachusetts AFL-CIO President Robert J. Haynes said Chan and each of the endorsed candidates showed a commitment to working families and an understanding of how important secure families are to strong communities.

"Among all of the candidates running for State Representative to the 2nd Norfolk District Tackey Chan is the most qualified to carry on with the mission to better the lives of the working men and women of the Commonwealth," said Robert L. Rizzi, President, Quincy & South Shore Building Trades Council and Norfolk County Central Labor Council AFL-CIO.

"I want to extend my thanks to all of the hard-working men and women of organized labor who support my candidacy," said Chan. "I appreciate the AFL-CIO's endorsement and hope to serve as state representative to assist workers, wage-earners and families in Quincy in any way I can."

National Rifle Association Political Victory Fund Backs Perry For Congress

The National Rifle Association Political Victory Fund (NRA-PVF) is endorsing Massachusetts State Representative Jeff Perry, a Republican (R-Sandwich) for election to the U.S. House of Representatives in the Sept. 14 Republican Primary.

"Jeff Perry's strong commitment to preserving our hunting and shooting heritage has earned him the NRA-PVF's endorsement," said Chris W. Cox, chairman of NRA-PVF. "Jeff was a proven leader on gun owners' and sportsmen's rights in the Massachusetts House of Representatives and I know he will continue to fight for and protect the Second Amendment rights of all law-abiding gun owners at the federal level."

Cox said Perry has demonstrated a proven commitment to the Second Amendment rights and hunting heritage. He co-sponsored the Mass Firearm Regulation Reform Legislation to eliminate the Commonwealth's current draconian firearms regulations and supported Senate Bill 2367, a set of firearm law reforms.

In addition, he supported the Precision Sports Legislative Reform Bill, which would protect the rights of target shooters in Massachusetts, and voted for a bill to reduce firearm license fees.

Perry's steadfast support for individual gun ownership rights earned him an "A" rating and endorsement from the NRA-PVF.

"Gun owners in Massachusetts value their Second Amendment freedoms, and Jeff Perry is the clear choice to represent them," Cox said. "We ask all gun-owners, hunters and NRA members in Massachusetts' 10th Congressional District to vote Jeff Perry for Congress on Sep. 14."

The National Rifle Association Political Victory Fund is responsible for political candidate rankings. These are based on candidate voting records, public statements and responses to NRA-PVF questionnaires.

4 Attorney Generals, 2 District Attorneys Support Morrissey For Norfolk D.A.

Former Massachusetts Attorneys General Francis X. Bellotti, L. Scott Harshbarger, Robert Quinn, and James Shannon have joined more than a dozen public safety leaders and hundreds of state law enforcement officials in endorsing Michael W. Morrissey's candidacy for Norfolk County District Attorney.

"Michael has the legal expertise, trial court experience and the proven management and budget skills it takes to be an effective District Attorney," said Bellotti, who remains one of the state's most respected law enforcement figures.

Added Harshbarger: "He knows the law, knows the courts, and knows how to lead an effective legal team. That's what it takes to be District Attorney today."

The three Attorneys General were joined by current Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating; retired District Court Justices Warren Powers and Thomas May; retired Superior Court Justice Herbert Abrams; Louis A. Assad, the past the president of the Norfolk County Prosecutors' Association; past president of the Domestic Violence Ended Board of Directors Gini Kurtzman, many former prosecutors; retired police chiefs; and law enforcement groups in supporting Morrissey's campaign.

"I am truly grateful that the people who know the District Attorney's job best, believe that I am the most qualified candidate to lead that office," Morrissey said. "We are going to protect our neighborhoods, send dangerous criminals to prison, and keep sexual predators away from our children. The District Attorney's Office is the people's law firm, and I am ready to lead it."

The public safety leaders cited Morrissey's 25 years of trial experience and his work as a managing partner in a 50-person law firm and his tough-on-crime record as a state Senator. Morrissey wrote one of the first and toughest laws against drug trafficking in Massachusetts, and has consistently supported laws aimed at drunk drivers, sex predators, and domestic violence offenders, according to several law enforcement leaders who endorsed him.

"He has fought to protect children from sex offenders, to toughen drunk driving laws and to protect seniors from scams and abuse," said Former President of the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association Ned Merrick.

Tobin Says He's Helped Secure Millions In Funding To Senate District

State Rep. Stephen Tobin, a Democratic candidate for State Senator in the Norfolk-Plymouth District which includes Quincy, said he's has helped secure millions of dollars in funds which have benefited local communities.

"Allocation of funds to your community positively impacts and improves your quality of life. I've voted to deliver over $300 million in funding to Abington, Braintree, Holbrook, Quincy, and Rockland for Fiscal Years 2010 and 2011."

If elected state senator, Tobin said he would continue to "vote on your behalf and make improving your community a priority."

He also said he would continue to review the issues "you have deemed important, and share votes he has cast on your behalf."

"My vote directly impacts your town, your neighborhood, and most importantly, you," Tobin said. "My message filters down to four simple words: 'I Vote For You.'"

RHAPSODY IN BLUE

Those born during the month of September are a lucky bunch. Their birthstone, sapphire, may come in a variety of colors, but it is most often associated with the color blue. Not only are the sky and ocean blue, but blue is the favorite color of one out of every two people. Blue was also so highly regarded by the ancient Persians that they believed that the blueness of the sky was a reflection from sapphire gemstones. Another reflection of blue's association with loyalty and constancy is the fact that women the world over wish for sapphire engagement rings. It is with good reason(s), then, that September's children are more than happy to receive gifts studded with this gorgeous gemstone.

They say that ancient priests and sorcerers honored September's birthstone above all other gems because sapphire enabled them to interpret oracles and foretell the future. We don't need this stunning gemstone to predict that you'll love feasting your eyes and dreaming your dreams about our selection of sapphires that sparkle with vibrant colors in their imaginative, custom-designed settings. If you're searching for a sapphire of a certain color and you don't see one at our shop at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, tell us. We will do our best to find one for you. PH: 617-773-3636.

Wasps No Match for Vacuum Hose

Q: I liked your answer to the reader's question about what to do regarding the yellow jackets that have embedded themselves inside his home's siding. It's probably a good idea to go have a pest control specialist look at the problem.

We had a somewhat similar problem with my house: A wasp nest built beside a second-floor window. I puzzled about what to do, and then came up with a solution.

I taped a vacuum cleaner hose to the opening in the window frame where the wasps were going in and out. (Use good, weather-resistant tape and check in often.) It was a warm day, and it took about three or four hours to get all of the wasps out, but I got 'em all. Best of all, it was cheap. Thought you'd like to know about this option. – Ron L., Lakeville, N.Y.

A: That's definitely an interesting option! I'm not sure where the other end of the vacuum cleaner hose was attached, though. Have any other readers used a similar method to clear wasps from a nest?

READER TIP: I was reading a recent article of yours on replacing vinyl tiles in the kitchen and have a suggestion. Whenever I need to lift up a vinyl tile or even pull up an entire floor, which doesn't happen often and is why I don't own a heat gun to melt the glue. Instead I use a plain old clothes iron to loosen the tile.

The way to do this is to lay a cloth or towel over the tile you're removing, set the iron to its highest setting, and once it's heated up, smooth the iron over the cloth for about a minute. The tile pulls right up. – Clark S., via e-mail

HOME TIP: Clean stinky sink drains by pouring half a cup of baking soda into the drain, followed by a cup of white vinegar. Let it foam for a few minutes, then rinse with hot water.

A Guide For De-Cluttering Your Home

(ARA) - You're feeling like the walls are closing in. You're not a hoarder, but you just have too much stuff. It's not that difficult to change your ways. If you want to take control of clutter, get a few boxes, one for each room in your home. Start by organizing one room at a time.

Begin this initiative by removing everything on top of your cabinets, tables and in bookcases and place it all in a box, says Keith McCleary, academic director of Interior Design at The Art Institute of York - Pennsylvania. If there are other random accessories in the room, remove them as well. Keep just the basic furnishings. Now sit with the room in its simplest form for awhile.

"In room design, make good decisions about what you choose to put in the room and, often more importantly, in what you choose to leave out," McCleary says. "Simplicity and clean lines make a room feel livable and that's what it's really all about: comfortable living." Think about the kind of focal point you're trying to create. How should you orchestrate this space and show off your special pieces in terms of size, scale, color and texture?

After a day or two has passed, go back to the box and look for items that define your personality, or will be noticed by guests visiting your home. "Ask yourself: when is enough, enough?" says McCleary. "Each piece of furniture in the room can function to complement. Accessories and works of art should contrast."

When you look at your well-designed room, you should see positive elements, as well as appreciate negative space by removing unnecessary pieces that don't add to the design composition.

Interior design students at The Art Institute of York - Pennsylvania are taught to help their clients step back and ask themselves: Is it finished now? You can err when you go shopping and purchase nice pieces for your home, because before long you begin to accumulate too many of those nice things. Much of what you have is stuff you don't need or want. It might be time to share those boxes, which are full of stuff you haven't missed in years, with your local Goodwill.

Sometimes, you might think you have to keep memorabilia or outdated gifts from Aunt Ethel in your home all the time. "Not so," says McCleary. "It's perfectly acceptable to remove those items when you do your box exercise." If you get a call from auntie who's planning a visit, head to the attic and put those old Beanie Babies she gave you when you were a fanatical collector decades ago on a shelf in your den, temporarily. She'll be happy for the gesture. When she leaves, feel free to replace them in the box of memories until her next visit.

After completing this exercise in each room in your home, notice that the clutter has disappeared. Now you can recognize how attractive the remaining items are in that same space. This initiative takes determination and focus, but when you've completed the exercise, your focus can be on the lovely space you've recreated.

SPOTLIGHT on HEALTH and FITNESS

Family Meals May Help Children Succeed In School

(NAPSA)—Here's food for thought: Helping your child succeed in school may be as easy as sitting down for a family meal. Studies suggest that family meals play a key role in raising high-achieving, healthy and well-adjusted children.

When families eat together and talk with children, they set a pattern for healthy habits with benefits that last a lifetime.

Academic Success

Frequent family meals are linked with being successful in school. A University of Illinois study found that children ages 7 to 11 who did well in school and on achievement tests generally spent large amounts of time eating meals with their families. Research by the National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University (CASA) also found that teens who ate with their families most often were more likely to get As and Bs in their classes.

Optimal Nutrition

Research also supports a link between family meals and nutrition. A Harvard University study published in the Archives of Family Medicine found that families who ate together almost every day generally consumed more important nutrients such as calcium, fiber, iron and vitamins B6, B12, C and E, and less overall fat, than families who rarely ate together. During adolescence, family meals also contribute to higher daily intakes of fruit, vegetables and calcium, and lower intakes of soft drinks.

HOMEMADE MEALS can help parents serve up a lifetime of success for their children.

Social Skills

Mealtime conversation promotes positive self-esteem in children and brings the family together. Recent research shows that children whose parents shared ideas and talked to them often were about 40 percent less likely to bully others. Family meals also provide an opportunity for parents to engage children in the planning, preparation and enjoyment of food, which creates a lasting and positive relationship with food.

To help your child succeed in school and life with healthy family meals, consider these tips:

- Include foods from all the food groups and try new foods together.
- Serve milk with dinner to make sure everyone gets enough calcium and vitamin D.
- Try to avoid mobile phones and music devices and turn off the television during mealtime.
- Use conversation starters and ask open-ended questions to get children talking.

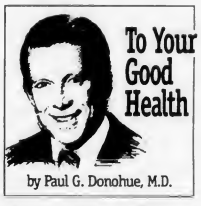
Gluten intolerant? How To Know And What To Do About It

(ARA) - Does the thought of a big bowl of pasta fill you with dread? Not because of the calories, but because of the digestive discomfort you might experience after eating it? If so, you may be one of the millions of Americans who unknowingly live with gluten intolerance.

Simply put, gluten intolerance is the body's inability to digest a certain type of protein commonly found in products made from wheat, rye and barley, such as pasta, cereal and bread. Mild gluten intolerance can cause minor to severe symptoms, ranging from mild intestinal discomfort to fatigue, weight gain and even depression. Severe gluten intolerance is called Celiac disease, and if left untreated can cause debilitating problems and perhaps worse. Because people with Celiac disease cannot digest gluten, the protein sits in the intestines, often triggering an immune system reaction that damages the lining of the small intestine.

"We know that Celiac disease is more prevalent than previously thought, affecting nearly 1 percent of the U.S. population, and remains under-diagnosed," according to Dr. Griffin Rodgers, former acting director of the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Disease, who was quoted in a National Institutes of Health (NIH) newsletter a few years ago.

WebMD reports that 3 million people may have the disease, and many may be unaware of it because the disease can be difficult to diagnose. Gluten intolerance and Celiac disease are on the rise, health experts agree. And many people don't even know they have the problem. Common symptoms include recurring, unexplained gas, diarrhea and intestinal distress. Only a doctor can diagnose gluten intolerance for certain, so consult your healthcare provider if you suspect you have a problem. And changing your diet can help alleviate symptoms.



"Following a gluten-free diet will stop symptoms, heal existing intestinal damage and prevent further damage for most people with (Celiac disease)," the NIH reports. "Improvements usually begin within days of eliminating gluten."

One way to rid your diet of gluten is to give up anything made with grains that contain it. That hasn't always been so easy to do, however, because gluten is present in many processed foods, including some that may surprise you, such as cold cuts, salad dressings, flavored potato chips and even beer, WebMD says.

"Gluten gives bread its elasticity and chewy texture by trapping the gases released during fermentation in the dough," says Gary Torres of Food for Life. "Once gluten is removed from dough, the resulting bread can be dense, dry and unappealing. We design our gluten-free products to be moist and flavorful; our gluten-free English muffins have the same moisture content - approximately 40 percent - as conventional English muffins. The result is a gluten-free product that will exceed your expectations."

In addition to eliminating products made with grains that contain gluten, or substituting gluten-free products, those living with gluten intolerance may also increase other grains in their diets, including quinoa, buckwheat, popcorn, cornmeal and millet. NIH recommends you work with your doctor and a dietitian experienced with Celiac disease to create a meal plan that will help you eliminate gluten from your diet.

Most Back Pain Stops on Its Own

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 78-year-old, semi-retired man. I am very active and look a lot younger. I work part-time as a truck driver delivering auto parts to garages. Now I am out of work because of pain in my lower back. The pain runs down to my foot. I have been diagnosed with sciatica. My doctor sent me for an MRI, and it showed a bulging disk. What is the best remedy? I use ice packs, heating packs and hot packs. I am on crutches to take pressure off my leg. Would surgery help? – J.S.

ANSWER: Back pain is one of the leading problems that send people to doctors. Most cases of back pain go away on their own, even if they're due to things like a bulging (also called herniated or ruptured) disk. Even though your back hurts, you can be as active as your pain allows. Don't sit for prolonged periods; sitting puts more pressure on your back than does standing or walking. Sleep on your side with a pillow between your knees. Continue with heat, cold or alternating heat and cold, whichever gives you the most pain relief. Tylenol or a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory medicine (Aleve, Advil, Motrin, etc.) can make you more comfortable.

If the pain doesn't let up in six weeks, you have chronic back pain. Sciatica is pain that travels from the back down the leg to the foot. It comes from pressure on the sciatic nerve. In your case, the pressure most likely comes from your bulging back disk. Back disks are cartilage pads placed between adjacent backbones to absorb the shock those bones take from our walking, bending and pushing. The disk has a tough outer ring. Gelatinous material makes up the inner core. If there's a break in the outer ring, the inner core pushes through -- a bulging, herniated or ruptured disk, whichever term you want to use.

If sciatica doesn't resolve on its own, a doctor can inject the back with cortisone to reduce inflammation. That can relieve pressure on the sciatic nerve. The procedure is called an epidural.

Surgeons, aided by a microscope, can remove the bulge through small incisions, about an inch long. This technique is called a microdiskectomy and usually is quite successful.

The booklet on back problems covers this topic in detail. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue – No. 303W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I can't get rid of jock itch. I have tried over-the-counter medicines for the past six months. I still itch. What can I do? – R.P.

ANSWER: You can make certain that what you have really is jock itch, a fungal skin infection whose name is tinea cruris. A doctor can make the diagnosis for you by examining scrapings of the involved skin with a microscope. You might need prescription medicine, including oral prescription medicine.

The yeast infection Candida, the bacterial infection erythrasma and psoriasis look like jock itch. You could be treating the wrong condition.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

IS TOOTH REGENERATION IN THE FUTURE?

Each year, dentists treat millions of cavities that result from the enamel-eating acids emitted by sugar-eating bacteria missed by flossing and brushing. While drilling out tooth decay and filling cavities with amalgam or composite fillings has proven extremely effective in preserving the remaining healthy tooth structure, patients often wish they could somehow magically eliminate any decay and simply regenerate the tooth back to its previous healthy state. That wish may someday be a reality because scientists have identified a peptide known as MSH (melanocyte-stimulating hormone) that encourages cells within decayed teeth to regenerate in about one month. When introduced into the teeth in a gel or film the laboratory, cavities disappeared and were replaced by healthy tooth structure.

Drilling teeth and filling them is safe and effective. However, though we numb the tooth, many patients still rue the sound of that drill. This column has been brought to you in the interest of better dental health. Call us today at 617-479-6220 for an appointment. Have you been putting off seeing a dentist? We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. We provide cosmetic, functional, and preventive dental care for all ages. You can rely on us to answer all your questions about dental treatments and procedures. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. MSH (melanocyte-stimulating hormone) has not demonstrated any ability to prevent cavities, which means that it is no substitute for flossing and brushing.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

Chiropractor

SHOULDERING RESPONSIBILITY

The rotator cuff, made up of four muscles and their attached tendons, serves to connect the upper-arm bone (humerus) with the shoulder blade, as well as hold the ball of the upper arm firmly in the shoulder socket. Because the shoulder has a wide range of motion, it is often subject to injury. While severe injuries, such as muscle tears, require surgical repair, most rotator cuff injuries respond to chiropractic treatment. After a careful examination of the injured shoulder and its range of motion, the chiropractor can manipulate the injured joints and provide exercises that are specifically designed to help heal the injury, improve the flexibility of the rotator cuff and shoulder muscles, and provide balanced shoulder muscle strength.

Treatment for a rotator cuff injury requires a combined approach that addresses both the joint mechanics AND the muscles that support joint function. Find out how chiropractic care can enhance your well-being and help you enjoy life to the fullest. Call the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We can provide you with a care program designed for your age, condition, and lifestyle. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. If a shoulder injury is not treated immediately and properly, immobility can lead to "frozen shoulder" (adhesive capsulitis).

NQ Red Raiders Moving Forward With Deep Team

By SEAN BRENNAN

The gleam of last year's 21-6 Thanksgiving Day triumph over city rival Quincy High School faded slowly away during the cold Massachusetts winter. That holiday victory, ten years coming, was an exciting ending to an otherwise pedestrian 2009 for the North Quincy Red Raiders (4-7 overall record), but a new season of possibilities is now here and North Quincy is eager to write a new chapter for its football history book.

"That was a very big and exciting win for our program," said NQHS head coach Jim Connor. "Even though many of the kids who played against Quincy have graduated, many of the current players got a feel for how big of a game that was.

"It was an outstanding way to end last season, but that game was six months ago. It should have a positive impact on our team as we head into this season, but our focus is not on Quincy or Thanksgiving, it is always on a week-by-week basis and that is how we have to go about the season."

The 2010 season begins on Friday with a home date against Boston Latin Academy (7 p.m.) at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Red Raiders, under the direction of veteran head ball coach Jim Connor; will again be playing for the Patriot League Keenan Division's crown with an automatic spot in the Division 2A playoffs up for grabs. North Quincy has a difficult league road ahead. Duxbury (8-2 overall in 2009, 5-0 in Keenan Division), which is the defending division champion, should be a title contender in 2010; Hingham, Silver Lake, and Whitman Hanson should also present weekly challenges to the Raiders.

"The Patriot League and especially our division (Keenan Division) are strong with Duxbury, Hingham and Silver Lake being the top-three teams," added Connor. "There isn't a week where you can be sure of a win, but we will prepare for each game and go from there."

Last fall North opened the season with consecutive victories over non-league opponents Boston Latin Academy (33-7) and Sharon HS (41-22). That 2-0 start was followed by a seven-game losing streak with losses coming against Plymouth South (28-12), Rockland (33-22), Malden (24-7), Duxbury (21-6), Hingham (35-14), and Scituate (34-6). The Raiders earned their lone Keenan Division victory on November 6 with a 14-7 win over Whitman-Hanson; a loss to Silver Lake HS (21-0) preceded the Thanksgiving Day game with Quincy.

On Friday (Sept. 10), the Raiders open their 2010 campaign with a rematch against Boston Latin Academy at Veterans Memorial Stadium (7 p.m.). The following Thursday (Sept. 16) North plays another non-league home game versus Oliver Ames HS at 7 p.m. and away at East Bridgewater HS on Sept. 24. The Patriot League portion of the schedule begins on Oct. 1 with an away game at Pembroke HS, followed by a non-league game on Oct. 9 at Malden HS. The Raiders finish their season with games against league foes Hanover (Oct. 15, home game, 7 p.m.), Duxbury (Oct. 22, home game, 7 p.m.), Hingham (Oct. 30, away game, 1 p.m.), Silver Lake (Nov. 5, away game, 7 p.m.), Whitman-Hanson (Nov. 12, home game, 7 p.m.), and Quincy (Nov. 25, 10 a.m.).

Players to Watch

The Red Raiders starting offense in 2009 was stacked with senior leadership, which will be hard to replace in 2010. Star all-league quarterback Michael Stanton (five TDs in 2009) has graduated as has tailback Terrence Staley (1,000-yard rusher, nine TDs) and the entire offensive line from last fall, which included Mike Benoit, AJ Morfe, Owen Kilcullen, Keegan Byron, and Greg McDouglas. Leading wideout Paul Reamer (four TDs) has also moved on leaving a huge void at the skill positions this year.

Senior quarterback Joe Schmitz is taking over for Stanton behind center and he will have a number of running backs at his disposable including senior Seyi Adesuyan (three rushing TDs in 2009) who will be starting at fullback. Seniors Mike Curren and Kyle McKay (two rushing TDs in 2009) will split time at halfback and senior Mike Morrison should slide into the number one receiving role for the Red Raiders.

Senior Garrett Kelley will be the team's top tight

Away Game At Cohasset High School

Quincy Presidents To Start A New Era On Friday

By SEAN BRENNAN

There is a renewed sense of hope at Quincy High School this fall. Not only has the new high school opened to rave reviews, but also the gridiron team begins their 2010 schedule this Friday with a fresh slate looking to improve on last year's 2-8 campaign.

The Presidents ended last year on a down note. Quincy lost the annual Thanksgiving Day game against North Quincy High School, 21-6. It marked the first time in a decade that QHS hadn't sat down for turkey dinner as the victors. But that was last year; the team and coaching staff have moved forward and everyone is preparing with urgency to bring a winning atmosphere back to Coddington Street.

"We had almost 100 kids come out for this year's team," said QHS head coach Bill Reardon. "Everyone is looking forward to the start of the season and we are hopeful that we are going to be competitive this fall. We are going to have a learning period, but by the time we get into our league schedule we are hopefully going to be prepared to play some good teams.

"It has been great to have an expanded roster. I have juniors and seniors who have never put on a helmet come and tryout. There is a buzz throughout the school, but we have a ways to go to be where we want to be this season."

Quincy starts its 2010 season with a non-league road game versus Cohasset High School on Friday. The Presidents opened the 2009 season against Cohasset and lost 39-0.

The schedule doesn't let up the rest of the way. Playing in the ultra-competitive Patriot League, Quincy, again this fall will be battling for the Fisher Division crown and an automatic bid in the Division III playoffs. Following the season-opener, the Presidents play four straight home games. Starting with a non-league game on Sept. 16 (4 p.m.) against Canton High School, Quincy will line up against Plymouth South HS on Sept. 24 (7 p.m.), Randolph HS (Oct. 1, TBA), and Duxbury High School (Oct. 8, 7 p.m.) during this home stand.

A road game versus Pembroke HS is set for Oct. 15 at 7 p.m. Quincy returns back to the Stadium turf for consecutive home games against Middleboro High School (Oct. 22, 7 p.m.) and Hanover High School (Oct. 29, 7 p.m.) before closing their 2011 season with three straight road games at Scituate High School (Nov. 5, 7 p.m.), Silver Lake Regional High School (Nov. 12, 7 p.m.) and at North Quincy High School on Thanksgiving Day.

The team should have extra motivation in most of these games as many offer the Presidents the opportunity to enact some revenge. Quincy, after opening 2009 with that 39-0 defeat against Cohasset, lost to Duxbury (33-6), Hingham (55-6), and Plymouth South (14-0) before earning a victory over Pembroke, 27-26. QHS lost to Hanover (35-6), defeated Randolph (13-0), and closed the year by dropping games to Rockland (28-14), Middleboro (28-7), and NQHS (21-6).

Players to Watch

Three-year starter at quarterback, Lance Peterson, has moved on and he takes with him a resume of coming up big in important games. Last year, Peterson threw three touchdown passes and led the offense with strong leadership skills.

Senior Ryan Schultz backed up Peterson last year and should see the majority of the snaps this year behind center. Senior Ronn Newsome will also see time at quarterback, giving Quincy two options to throw at opposing teams.

"Ryan is progressing nicely, but he got a little dinged up in our last scrimmage," said Reardon. "Ronn will be seeing time at QB and unlike Lance, both Ryan and Ronn have the ability to run, which will give us some options on offense."

Kenny Nguyen (rushing TD), James Nguyen (receiving TD), and Ngozi Aguguo (receiving TD) have also graduated and their production will need to be replaced.

That responsibility will fall on running backs Ronn Newsome, Quincy's leading scorer in 2009 (three rushing TDs), junior Reggie Cesar (all-league, two rushing TDs), and Tom Paluzzi (TD).

"Reggie and Ronn will handle most of the running duties," said Reardon. "We will be able to mix-and-match and they should both give us some production. Reggie was all-league last year and Ronn was our leading scorer."

Senior Brian MacDonald and junior Keenan Daniels return to anchor the offensive line.

Wideout Tom Lowry (receiving TD) will be another hard-to-replace skill player. That responsibility will fall into the hands of Jordan Cardosa and transfer Nick Lepore (tight end) from Archbishop Williams HS.

Senior Josh Galindo (linebacker) is expected to be the leader of the Quincy defense.

Other players to watch for include Kevin Nguyen (WR/DB), Tom O'Brien (TE/LB), Nick Daniels (TE/LB), Phil Truong (WR/DL), Greg Lowe (RB/DL), Mike Meng (OL/LB), Alex Arabian (OL/DL), Bob Kozlowski (OL/DL), Ryan Boyle (OL/DL), and Brendan Lally (OL/DL).

"Friday night's game against Cohasset is going to be a test," said Reardon. "They are a good team and we just need to play mistake-free football and see what happens. It just feels good to get back out on the field."

QYFL Celebrating 60th Season This Weekend

The Quincy Youth Football League (QYFL) will celebrate their 60th anniversary this weekend with a schedule of events planned.

On Saturday, Sept. 11, games will begin at 9 a.m. with a jayvee game at Pageant Field. There will also be a junior jayvee game played at 10:30 a.m. at Pageant Field. Then on Sunday, Sept. 12, the league will celebrate its 60th anniversary with games being held at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m.

Also, there will be a 60th commemoration ceremony and coin flip between the two games with the founding members of the 1950 team taking part in the festivities.

end and junior Marquis Chase (RB/WR) could provide some speed to the offense.

The offensive line, usually a strength of a NQHS team, will be anchored by team captain Jimmy Scribi (right guard) along with junior Bobby Lawless (guard), senior Antonio Diaz (left tackle), and junior Joe Bertucci (right tackle).

"We graduated a lot of starters of last year's team, but we return players who saw significant time last year," said Connor. "We have depth at running back and that should give Joe some help at quarterback. Our offensive line has already developed great chemistry and the coaching staff is hopeful that we can score some points."

On defense, NQHS will have a number of two-way players standing out in 2010. Impact defensive stars will be Scribi (linebacker), McKay (strong safety), Morrison (defensive back), Curren (free safety), and Kelley (linebacker).

"Scribi is the leader of the defense and the other guys are strong as well," said Connor. "We should be good on that side of the ball, but for us it comes down to preparation.

"We are focused on Boston Latin and we will move on to the next opponent when it is time. That is the only way we are going to be successful this season."

Event Scheduled for Sept. 12

49 Residents To Participate in Jimmy Fund Walk

49 Quincy residents are expected to participate in the 22nd Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk on Sept. 12. These 49 walkers will be among the more than 8,000 walkers expected to participate with the collective goal of raising more than $6.5 million for lifesaving cancer research and care for adult and pediatric cancer patients at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through its Jimmy Fund.

Presented by Hyundai and its Eastern Region dealers, the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk is the only event, other than the Boston Marathon itself that is sanctioned by the Boston Athletic Association (BAA) to use the official historic marathon route from Hopkinton to Boston.

"We are grateful to the thousands of determined walkers who are committed to raising funds for cancer care and research," said Ann Beach, director of the Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk. "The money raised by the walkers directly benefits local patients as well as people around the world as top doctors and researchers utilize the successes achieved at Dana-Farber."

The Jimmy Fund Walk has raised more than $66 million since beginning in 1989.

Walkers may choose to walk one of four routes: the entire 26.2-mile route, the Babson-to-Boston 13.1-mile route, the Boston College 5-mile route, or the 3-mile route with patients and their families starting at the Dana-Farber campus. For those unable to participate on Sept. 12, there is a virtual walk option, allowing participants to fundraise online.

Walkers are treated to a victory party at the Copley Square finish line complete with food and music. Walkers begin in Hopkinton between 5:30-7:30 a.m., at Babson College between 8:30-11 a.m., at BC between 9:30-11:30 a.m., and in Boston at 2 p.m.

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, Sept. 1, Officers Sean Kelley, Kent Yee, James Goldrick and Chris Klier were dispatched to the area of 190 Quarry St. after a caller reported that he had been stabbed in the face with a fork.

LT. DAN MINTON

The caller was unsure exactly where he was, but added that the victim was detaining the suspect while speaking on the phone. Dispatch questioned the victim and learned that he could be in the Highpoint complex across the street.

As the Officers arrived on scene with their blue lights on, the victim was asked if he could see the cruisers. He said he could and was in a specific apartment, but was unsure the number of the actual building. Officer Goldrick entered one of the buildings and was able to locate and interview the victim, who said that he was stabbed with a fork and the suspect was still in the apartment. They entered the apartment, where officers found two females on the living room couch. One female was sitting on the couch while the other was asleep.

Officer Kelley asked the female what happened. She spoke with slurred speech, smelled of alcoholic beverage and her eyes were bloodshot and glassy. She stated that she had been drinking. She said that she did not live in the apartment but was a friend of the girl asleep on the couch, who was actually house-sitting for a friend.

When asked what happened, the female said there was a disturbance because she couldn't find her car keys, then got into an argument with the victim, who she claimed pushed her.

Officer Kelley then attempted to wake the female on the couch and after several attempts, was able to get her attention, although she first said she didn't know where she was. She confirmed that she was house sitting for a friend and that she invited the other woman over. She also said that she later invited another friend, the victim, who is also her boyfriend, over to visit as well. She told the Officers that she had several alcoholic beverages, passed out on the couch and did not witness the argument. The victim confirmed what the females said, then added that the incident occurred after the female who was sitting on the couch said she was going to drive home.

Due to her intoxicated condition, the victim said he followed her out to the parking lot to prevent her from driving. Once outside, the female could not find her car, so they went back upstairs. At this time, the female recalled that she was pulled over earlier in the evening and this was the last she remembered of her car. The victim told the female that he was going to call the Quincy Police to see if the car had been towed. As he did this, the female became "enraged" and started to yell and "got into my face" and stated "don't you call the police on me."

As he continued to dial the number, the female grabbed a fork and held it over her head, then in a downward motion, she stabbed him in the neck with the fork. The victim grabbed the female suspect's wrist and forcibly removed the fork and threw it against the wall. The victim said he held down the female suspect and told the Police Dispatcher what occurred. Fallon Ambulance responded but the victim refused treatment.

The suspect was asked for her version of events and she became very agitated, then stated, "He is lying - I didn't do anything." Based on the statements of all involved, the female, a 28 year old Weymouth resident, was placed under arrest for "Assault and Battery with a Dangerous Weapon, to wit a fork." The fork was placed into evidence for court purposes. The victim said that he did not want photos taken of his neck and no longer wanted to speak with the Police, then exited the building.

Nice Work!

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Ever feel like not trying anymore? Who hasn't. People say they've had it; they work and struggle and just get nowhere. So they become discouraged... It is only human to feel discouraged at times but you should never think about giving up... in many cases the low moment is the beginning of new things.

Abraham Lincoln once said that people are about as happy in this world as they make up their minds to be. Plant that seed in your mind and give it every opportunity to grow and fructify.

All of us at some time or another have some cavities in our minds into which we slip at the first opportunity. Self-pity is one such cavity, and the disposition to believe that the world is against us is another.

Above all remember that most of our troubles lie within our hearts. We may want to blame the circumstances and people which surround us every day. Out of the heart proceed the issues of life. Get right on the inside, and the outside with take care of itself ...

A Loving Memorial Tribute for our Mother

Rose M. Fantucchio

1997 September 12 2010

A Mother's Love

A Mother's love is something
No one can explain.

It's made of deep devotion, of sacrifice and pain.

It's endless, and unselfish,
Enduring come what may.
Nothing can destroy it or take that love away.

A Mother's someone dearly loved and that's surely true of a Mother who is all these things
A Mother just like you.

We love, we miss, and we remember you every day.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Careful, Lamb. Taking on too many tasks at one time can cause you to create more snarls each time you try to work your way through the tangled mass. Best to handle one job at a time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Making bold moves is what Bovines do. But the best moves are made with lots of data to provide backup just in case you charge into an unexpected complication. A new relationship shows promise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Sharing credit for a job well done is easy for you to do, but not necessarily for your partner. But fair is fair. Don't let yourself be denied the right to have your contributions recognized.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Communication is important to help bridge a gap that can lead to problems at home and/or at the workplace. Find a way to get your points across before the breach becomes a chasm.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Relationships, whether business or personal, need to be watched carefully for signs of trouble. Any negative indications should be dealt with before they become too burdensome.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Congratulations. A more positive aspect highlights much of the Virgo's week. You should find others more receptive to your suggestions, and also more likely to act on them.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) All work and little play could wear the Libra's usually positive attitude down. Take some much-needed time off. Perhaps a short jaunt with someone special is the way to go.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) This is a good time to expand your view from the known to the unfamiliar. Confronting new situations could be challenging, but ultimately also could be extremely satisfying.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Giving advice to those who just want validation for what they're doing can be unsettling. So back off and save your counsel for those who really appreciate it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Cultivating a more positive attitude not only makes you feel better about yourself, but also has an upbeat effect on those around you, especially that certain someone.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Keeping the lines of communication open and accessible is the key to establishing the right foundation on which to build an important and meaningful relationship. Stay with it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Before agreeing to act on a request, consider using your perceptive Piscean talents to see what might lie hidden beneath its surface and could possibly cause problems later on.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're a friend who, if you err at all, does so on the side of concern for those you care about.

Sense Of Profound Sadness Still Fresh

Terrorist Attacks Still Surreal For Firefighters

By JOE REARDON

Nine years later, the Al Qaeda attacks on the World Trade Towers are just as surreal to Quincy Firefighter Ernie Arienti as they were in 2001.

Arienti was working a side electrical job in Abington on the sun-splashed morning of Sept. 11, 2001 when he heard that Flights 11 and 175 flew directly into the World Trade Center towers and Flight 77 crashed into the Pentagon.

A seasoned and experienced firefigher of 26 years, Arienti had trouble finding the words to describe, much less make sense, of that day's events. His overall sense of sadness was magnified all the more when the towers collapsed in a heap, gone forever from the New York City skyline, taking with them the lives of 343 firefighters and paramedics.

"You would never believe you would see something like that in your lifetime or anyone's lifetime," Arienti said.

Turnout 28.43% Here

Keating, Perry, Morrissey, Keenan, Chan Nominated

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Two political veterans and one first-time candidate were big winners locally in Tuesday's Democratic state primary.

State Sen. Michael Morrissey secured the Democratic nomination for Norfolk County District Attorney. Morrissey, who began his legislative career by winning a House of Representatives seat in 1976 at the age of 22, defeated State Rep. Joseph Driscoll of Braintree and Milton attorney Michael Chinman.

Morrissey's Quincy vote was 8,849 votes. Driscoll came in second with 1,687 and Chinman third with 819 votes here. Morrissey will face Independent John F. Coffee in the Nov. 2 election.

City Councillor John Keenan defeated State Rep. Arthur Stephen Tobin for the Democratic nomination for State Senate. Keenan, who has served as a city councillor since 2003, piled up an impressive Quincy vote with 6,669 votes - 2,130 more than Tobin who finished second here with 4,539.

Tobin won the other

Star Of Sea Co-Chairs Reflect Upon Sunday Prayer Service

'Worshippers Have Gone To Great Lengths To Keep Their Church Open And Vibrant'

By MAUREEN MAZRIMAS and SEAN GLENNON

In protest to the stunning announcement made during Sunday Mass two weeks ago by Boston Regional Bishop John Dooher that Star of the Sea Church in Squantum would close at the end of the Mass in progress, parishioners held a prayer service in front of the church this past Sunday at noon.

The service included prayer, reflection, scripture, and song, and was attended by an estimated 150 Squantum parishioners as well as members of the Council of Parishes, which is an advocacy and support group for members of suppressed parishes. Members from several other parish communities attended the service, including Sacred Heart in North Quincy; St. Albert the Great in Weymouth; Our Lady of Mount Carmel in East Boston; St. Anselm in Sudbury; St. Frances X. Cabrini in Scituate; and St. James the Great in Wellesley, which chartered a bus to bring some of their parishioners to the service.

The first reading, from the Book of the Prophet Jeremiah, stated, in part, "Woe to the shepherds who mislead and scatter the flock of my pasture, says the Lord. You have not cared for them, but I will take care to punish your evil deeds."

Parishioners were in tears during the singing of the Responsorial Psalm, "Taste and See", which was played from a 2004 CD recording of the former children's choir of the parish. Prior to the singing of the psalm, parishioners were told, "Listen carefully to what you are about to hear. This is what we've been missing over the past five years."

That reference had to do with the fact that the former children's choir of Star of the Sea parish was never reinstated during the time that the church was open as a chapel from July 2005 up until two weeks ago.

And the church organ was never replaced after it was removed following the parish's official last Mass in October 2004.

In planning a Gospel reading for the service, we chose the parables of the lost sheep and the Prodigal Son, only to realize that they were the readings of the day. How fitting. The Archdiocese is eager to bring back alienated Catholics through its Catholics Come Home initiative – the lost sheep and the prodigal sons and daughters. However, the worshippers at Star of the Sea are not lost and, in fact, have gone to great lengths to keep their church open and vibrant. As to the Prodigal Son, we all know that it's the story of a forgiving father welcoming home a wayward

Yardwaste Collection Continues Bi-Weekly Through Nov. 27

Curbside collection of yardwaste will continue to be collected every other week for the entire season ending Nov. 27, the Public Works Department announces.

By eliminating six weeks from the collection schedule the City will save the taxpayer over $48,000, officials said. The change will also eliminate the confusion that normally occurs when the schedule changes back and forth from weekly to bi-weekly and back again.

YARDWASTE STICKERS are mandatory on yardwaste BARRELS. Free yardwaste stickers are available at the City Hall Information Desk, 1305 Hancock St. and the DPW, 55 Sea Str., Monday through Friday, 8:30 A.M. to 3:30 P.M., Curry Hardware, 370 Copeland St. and Danny's Hardware, 53 Billings Rd. To have stickers mailed to a home call (617) 376-1953 or email your request to: recyclequincy@quincyma.gov

USE NO PLASTIC BAGS. Place leaves, twigs and grass clippings in paper bags or cardboard boxes. Barrels should be uncovered and clearly marked with yardwaste stickers. Yardwaste should be placed curbside by 6 a.m. on your regular trash collection day. Yardwaste should be set apart from regular trash. Tree branches should be cut into 3-foot lengths and tied with string or rope.

Yardwaste, including larger brush and tree limbs, are accepted at the DPW Yard at 55 Sea St., Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., and on Saturdays from April 10 through mid-December, from 7:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The City of Quincy Department of Public Works recycles and reuses the entire city's yardwaste diverting over 5,000 tons from the solid waste stream and saving nearly $500,000 annually. One-half acre of lawn in New England produces over 3 tons of grass clippings or 260 bags of grass clippings each year. You can have a healthy lawn by leaving grass clippings where they fall so they will decompose and act as a natural organic fertilizer. E-mail recyclequincy@quincyma.gov for a free brochure.

Whenever a scheduled collection day falls on a holiday, that day's collection and all remaining collection days for the rest of the week will be delayed for one day. Friday's collection will be on Saturday.

LEGENDARY BLACK DIAMONDS

Fans of the vampire-based Twilight fantasy romance films are probably already familiar with the black diamond-and-platinum jewelry associated with the genre. Medium-to-large cocktail rings, stacked bracelets, and delicate cuffs embedded with black diamonds are the preferred jeweled accessories among the movies' stars and devotees. Carbonado, which is commonly referred to as "Black Diamond," is both mysterious and alluring. To begin with, nearly all black diamonds are found in the Central African Republic and Brazil, and time-dating analysis shows that the minerals formed about 3.8 billion years ago. These combined factors have led to the theory that they have their origins in an exploding supernova that formed large asteroids, one of which fell to earth. Otherworldly, indeed!

We believe one of the most important aspects of our service to you is our knowledge of diamonds—their colors, unique characteristics, value, what makes them sparkle, and how to help you choose the highest quality diamond for your investment. We know the more you shop with us, the more you'll realize you can trust Quincy's finest jeweler for integrity, experience, service, and quality. For the ultimate gift to yourself or someone else very special, see our selection of diamonds set in shimmering precious metals at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center. PH: 617-773-3636.

Father Bill's Place Awarded $175,000 Grant To Help Homeless Veterans

By JOE REARDON

The City of Quincy furthered its commitment in providing help to homeless veterans with a U.S. Department of Labor Homeless Veterans Reintegration Program (HVRP) Grant of $175,000 to Father Bill's Place and MainSpring.

The grant was presented last week by state Lt. Gov. Timothy Murray at Father Bill's Place. It will provide training, job placement, housing assistance and other services eligible to veterans in the South Shore Area. The grant will also enroll 160 individuals into work training programs.

Murray commended Father Bill's Place as a facility where people are accepted and supported by the community. Murray said that there is a higher percentage of homelessness among veterans and an emphasis has been made to secure them housing. "We have asked community partners to get around the table on a monthly basis," he said. "It gives people an opportunity, sooner than later, to help people rebuild their lives."

Father Bill's and MainSpring are the leading providers in Southeastern Massachusetts of services to manage, prevent and end homelessness. Self-sufficiency is the goal and they help those who are homeless or at risk of homelessness.

Murray said in his conversations with Governor Patrick, after his return from a trip to Iraq, that he was struck by how many soldiers wanted to be sure they had jobs when they returned home. "We are a national leader," said Murray. "Massachusetts leads the country in programs for the veterans."

"The city of Quincy has a tremendous commitment to our veterans," said John Yazwinski, the president and CEO of Father Bill's and MainSpring. He added that Governor Deval Patrick made homelessness a housing issue. "They need our support when they're over there fighting and they need our support when they're home."

Dennis Harrington, who was representing Mayor Thomas Koch, said the grant adds momentum to the city's commitment to its veterans.

"This program goes beyond housing," said Harrington. "We all know that people need jobs and acceptance in the community."

Coleman Nee of the Department of Veterans' Services, which advocates on behalf of almost 500,000 veterans in the Commonwealth, their families, and survivors, said the partnership between the various organizations is key in helping the veterans, and stressed the importance to give back to the soldiers who have put themselves on the line for their country. "We can't do it all," Nee said. "It really is a partnership that makes it work."

Nee also said that veterans make exceptional hires in the work place because of their backgrounds in the service. "They make fantastic employees," he said. "It's a moral blessing to hire veterans."

Friends Of Souther Tide Mill Public Informational Meeting Tonight

Friends of Souther Tide Mill will hold a public informational meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at Quincy Point Congregational Church, Fellowship Hall, 444 Washington St., Quincy.

Souther Tide Mill is located on Southern Artery on the former Quincy Lumber Co. site next to Town River Bay. With its granite and shipbuilding history, the tide mill is an important part of Quincy history's.

The mill has been on the Massachusetts List of Most Endangered Historic Resources since the List's inception in 1993.

The building itself was first built in 1806, then modernized in the 1940s.

Souther Tide Mill is one of the last tide mills in the U.S. and the only one which still retains a historic gristmill.

The Friends of Souther Tide Mill is seeking input and support for the mill's preservation project to move forward.

For more information on tonight's meeting or the Friends of Souther Tide Mill, contact Carolyn Marks at 617-328-5735.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 25, 1789, the first Congress of the United States approves 12 amendments to the U.S. Constitution, and sends them to the states for ratification. The amendments, known as the Bill of Rights, were influenced by the English Bill of Rights of 1689.

• On Sept. 23, 1846, at the Berlin Observatory, German astronomer Johann Gottfried Galle discovers the planet Neptune. The blue gas giant, which has a diameter four times that of Earth, was named for the Roman god of the sea. It completes an orbit of the Sun once every 165 years.

• On Sept. 21, 1938, without warning, a powerful Category 3 hurricane slams into Long Island and southern New England. All told, 700 people were killed by the hurricane, nearly 9,000 homes and buildings were destroyed and nearly 3,000 ships were sunk or wrecked.

• On Sept. 26, 1945, Lt. Col. Peter Dewey, a U.S. Army officer with the Office of Strategic Services (OSS) in Vietnam, is shot and killed in Saigon. Dewey was the head of a seven-man team sent to Vietnam to search for missing American pilots. He was the first of nearly 59,000 Americans killed in Vietnam.

• On Sept. 22, 1953, the first four-level (or "stack") interchange in the world opens in Los Angeles, at the intersection of the Harbor, Hollywood, Pasadena and Santa Ana freeways. It consisted of 32 lanes of traffic weaving in eight directions at once. Today, the interchange's cost of $5.5 million would pay for just 250 feet of urban freeway.

• On Sept. 24, 1969, the trial of the "Chicago Seven" begins. At the height of the antiwar and civil-rights movements, young leftists had organized protest marches at the 1968 Democratic National Convention and were thus accused of conspiring to incite a riot. In 1970, the convictions and contempt charges were overturned on appeal.

• On Sept. 20, 1973, Billie Jean King defeats Bobby Riggs, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3, in a widely publicized exhibition tennis match dubbed the "Battle of the Sexes." The match was set up after the 55-year-old Riggs routed Australian star Margaret Court four months' earlier on Mother's Day.

Thank You As We Start Another Year

This week's issue of The Quincy Sun begins this newspaper's 43rd year in circulation.

Forty-three years.

That's a long time.

But time has a way of passing by too quickly.

This week, we hit the pause button to reflect on this newspaper's history while thanking all those who have supported this publication for more than four decades.

The Sun's first issue rolled off the press Sept. 26, 1968. Events of that year included the assassinations of Martin Luther King, Jr. and Robert Kennedy, riots at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago, and a war raging in a place named Vietnam.

The war would soon hit home. A Vietnam War Memorial unveiled on Veterans Day, 1968, in Mount Wollaston Cemetery was engraved with the names of 27 sons from Quincy who had given the supreme sacrifice in combat.

By the war's end, another 19 names would be engraved on that memorial.

Locally, Jim McIntyre was in his second term as the city's mayor. The MBTA Red Line was progressing into Quincy.

The shipyard was booming with a workforce of 8,000 and openings for another 500 jobs.

An average home in Quincy cost $25,000. The median household income was about $11,000.

A postage stamp cost six cents; and this newspaper was a dime on the newsstand.

Obviously, a lot has changed since the late 1960s. Some for the better, some not so much.

But one thing has remained the same: The Quincy Sun has been the city's local community newspaper.

Since that first issue, The Sun has aimed to report on local news and events fairly accurately.

That was the vision and mission of our late founder and longtime publisher, Henry W. Bosworth, Jr.

If Henry were here, he'd probably be writing a thank you similar to this one somewhere in this issue. He never let a single anniversary pass without thanking the many wonderful people who have supported this newspaper since its inception.

My dad was also "fond" of remembering a dire prediction from some corners of the city when the newspaper started. The naysayers said The Sun would set in six months.

Well, here we are -- 43 years later -- The Sun still high in the city's sky.

I think Henry would be extremely proud knowing the newspaper he started is still in circulation. Believe me, we had many discussions and conversations over the years of how important this paper was to him. But as the founder, it wasn't the personal accomplishment he was most proud.

It was the goodwill the newspaper has in the community.

From time to time he'd share with me a note from a reader complimenting or thanking him for publishing The Sun.

Sometimes it was an out-of-state reader who said the Sun was their only true link to their hometown.

Other notes expressed gratitude for highlighting a community initiative or other worthy project.

That's really what The Sun is all about.

We are a true community newspaper because of the community.

We aim to report on news that affects the citizens of this city, while also providing a forum for community causes. We don't Tweet, we're not on Facebook. Instead, we prefer spreading news the old-fashioned way: with newsprint and ink.

Sometimes I get e-mails, phone calls or a letter from the leader or organizer of a local charity or benefit group.

"Can you please put this notice in your newspaper?" he or she asks.

My first reaction is: of course.

But my second thought is: without this group . . . and so many others like it, we really wouldn't have a newspaper.

Community causes are the fabric of this newspaper. Over the years so many groups have stepped forward and submitted items to help them achieve their goals. They're not only "feel good" stories, they're initiatives that help families, neighbors and the city as a whole.

No one shared this philosophy more than Henry Bosworth.

"Yes, we can help you," he'd reassure someone or some group when they sought publicity.

It remains part of our mission: to bring Quincy news to our readers.

As we begin our 43rd year, I also want to thank all of our loyal advertisers, readers, news sources and news carriers who have helped sustain The Sun all these years. We've also had a lot of dedicated employees who have helped keep The Sun shining.

By my count, some 2,184 editions have been produced, printed and circulated since that first issue.

The newspaper has experienced tremendous changes over the years, especially on the production end. Today, the entire newspaper can be produced on a computer. Gone are typesetting machines and paste-up tables. Today, finished pages are electronically transmitted to a pre-press department half a state away within seconds.

But one thing hasn't changed: The Sun remains an independently owned newspaper, one of the few in the state.

The past year and a half – following the sudden passing of my father – have been difficult to say the least for his staff and family. We all miss Henry. Each and every one of us lost someone special. And our lives will never be the same.

The office just doesn't quite seem the same without him, either.

But we've pulled together to keep his legacy alive by publishing The Sun each and every week.

Personally, writing a column for Page 4 has been the most challenging for me. This space is just not the same without his words and insights. But I know he would want me to at least try to write a column. So I try.

Thank you, once again, to everyone who has stuck with The Quincy Sun.

We hope to celebrate many more anniversaries with our supporters well into the future.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1943 real photo postcard is a view of the old City Home that was located on the City Farm on Sea Street across from Mount Wollaston Cemetery. The City Farm or Poor Farm as it was first called was on land left for public use by William Coddington in the earliest Colonial days. He intended that the land be used to support public education, but there are vaious other uses of it today. The Town of Quincy had erected an almshouse on this site in 1814 as a "refuge for the idigent." This building erected in 1898 replaced the original. Somewhat out of sight, set back from Sea Street and located behind the Police Station, the building was made more visible, as shown here, when Broad Street was constructed in the 1940s. The Home was managed for many years by the City's Welfare Department until it was demolished in 1968 to make way for a new Registry of Motor Vehicles office. The Registry had been in cramped quarters on Hancock Street across from the Woodward School. The City built and leased the new building to the Registry until 1988 when they moved to the renovated Sears Roebuck Store in Quincy Center. In 1989, the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition acquired the Registry building to once again house the indigent on this site as Father Bill's Place. The old City Farm is now home to the City's Public Works Department. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Closing Star Of The Sea An 'Inconvenience' Of Faith

Sunday, Sept. 5, was a beautiful, sunny day in Quincy.

My husband Joe and I went to the noon Mass at Star of the Sea. We have been active communicants at Star of the Sea after moving to Squantum, 16 years ago. Since 2005 The noon mass is the only weekly mass allowed by the Boston archdiocese in the Squantum church.

Pastor O'Brien said the mass and ended his homily by asking rhetorically, or so I thought, "When was the last time you were inconvenienced by your faith?" Boy was I surprised when I only had to wait about 15 minutes to be, one more time, "inconvenienced" by my faith. And it is truly a MAJOR "inconvenience."

Just before the end of mass, a man, later identified as Bishop Dooher, materialized and went to the front of the church. I assumed he was there to ask for money! My husband, who is smarter than I am, said: "here we go" or words to that effect. The Bishop read his prepared statement, thanking Father O'Brien for his stewardship of Star of the Sea over the last several years. Cardinal O'Malley had allowed the church to have one mass a week while the appeal to its suppression was being reviewed. He said that as the last appeal to Rome to keep the church open had been denied, that Star of the Sea would not be reopening. In fact, the Bishop announced that the weekly mass would not continue, and, oh by the way, the mass that had just been celebrated, was the last mass at Star of the Sea.

How cowardly!! Just think: of all the weekends the archdiocese could have selected and they choose the Sunday of Labor Day weekend when the fewest parishioners would be in attendance of almost any Sunday in the entire year! (The possible exception to that would be the Sunday of July 4th weekend) We are not even being provided with the opportunity to say good bye. Saying good bye to the physical building is one thing but it would seem even more important to say good bye to the people we have worshiped with, prayed with, and actively been catholic with over the last 5 years.

The church, at least to my way of thinking, is manifested in its people and is shaped and formed, in large measure, by those you or I worship with. The church is, by its teachings, a community of the faithful. So why after 5 years of attending this mass, in this building, with these people am I being denied the opportunity to say good bye? Isn't this the same church that preaches love, forgiveness, and compassion? Is this a prime example of the saying "do as I say, not as I do"?

Am I supposed to view this as yet another "inconvenience" of my faith?

My faith is strong or at least I hope it's strong enough to weather yet one more blow delivered by the hierarchy of the church. My faith is strong but at the same time, my faith in the hierarchy of the Catholic Church is nonexistent. Over the years I have struggled with concerns about remaining catholic but so far my faith has kept me active in the church that espouses my faith.

But for how much longer?

I'm tired of the struggle. I'm tired of the anger, heartache and tears that have been caused by the actions (or lack thereof) of the Catholic Church. Once again I must deal with one central, undeniable, fact: I care more about the Catholic Church than the Catholic Church cares about me.

Mayor Suggests Veterans Be Housed In Point School

By FRANK McCAULEY

This Week
64 Years Ago

Mayor Charles A. Ross recommended that the Washington School in Quincy Point be used as a housing project for veterans and their families.

The building has not been used as a school for several years due to the lack of pupils in the area it serves and during the War was leased by the Fore River Shipyard.

The permission of the School Committee would have to be secured before the building could be transformed into a dwelling place.

Wendell Clark, vice-chairman of the School Committee, said that he would have no particular objection to the proposition and he expressed the belief that the Committee as a whole may give favorable consideration to the proposal.

(Editor's note: This suggestion by Mayor Ross never came to fruition. The school was used for the storage of city records. For a short period of time it was again used for a school before Broad Meadows Junior High was constructed. It would be torn down in the late 1960s and a senior citizen housing complex named Pagnano Towers was erected in 1971.)

$130,000 COMMUNITY CHEST DRIVE LAUNCHED

With a quota of $130,000 to be raised for the support of the city's essential youth and welfare agencies during the year of 1947, the Quincy Community Chest's first all-local place-time drive for contributions since the close of the War, got underway.

A special announcement issued by campaign headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce building, urges the city's professional men and women, the hundreds of employees of business and industrial concerns and all municipal employees be ready to sign pledge cards that will be brought to them by citizens who have volunteered for the task of solicitation.

Philip K. Barker, general chairman of the Chest campaign emphasized the fact that the 1947 quota of $130,000 will be donated entirely to Quincy local agencies and interests.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Fire Issues And Incidents

I received the most recent copy of the NFPA JOURNAL while I like to share some incidents highlited within a portion of the magazine. Once again, they're issues frequently brought to your attention in this column, while there're behaviors we can identify and modify if we find they apply to us, our lifestyle or our home. I'll shed some light on each incident, beginning with the caption as stated within the reference.

"Two die in fire caused by portable heater." Here's an incident where a space heater was left in a bedroom while children were asleep. That's strike one! Space heaters should not be used within a bedroom while a bedroom occupant sleeps. The description of this incident continues with clothing strewn in and around the space heater igniting those contents. There should be a minimum 3 foot separation from combustibles when a space heater is used, while poor housekeeping is never a good idea in and around heating appliances.

"Woman dies in a fire caused by overheated extension cord." Here's an incident where heavy kitchen appliances overload an extension cord, the extension cord then overheats igniting nearby combustibles. As the article is written, it appears that the electrical draw on the cord, far exceeded its rating, thus the overheating and failure of the cord. While I'm on the subject, as I have written in the past, I recommend you check any extension cords currently used within your home. Overloading is an invitation to a disaster as seen in this example, while cords should be examined for cracks and degradation. Do not hesitate to discard tired extension cords.

"Smoking materials start dorm fire." In this example, a cigarette butt is dropped into a trash can igniting its contents. As it is so often noted, careless disposal of smoking materials start many a fire. If smoking within your residence, consider placing the ashtray within the sink overnight. Ashtray material should only be discarded with assurance that there are no existing hot embers. A freshly smoked cigarette should never be immediately disposed of within a trash can unless the stub is more than adequately soaked in water, or left away from combustibles to assure extinguishment over time.

"Medical oxygen intensifies fire stared by smoking materials." As I have so often included within this column, cigarettes and medical oxygen use are a disastrous combination. In this incident, a cigarette had been dropped onto an upholstered lift chair igniting the material. The fire was far more intense where an operating nasal cannula was spewing oxygen onto the fabric, saturating it, greatly intensifying the fire.

"Residential sprinkler douses apartment fire." Investigators determined oil left unattended in a pan on a stove top ignited and extended to the cabinets. Cooking equipment is the leading cause of home fires. Unattended cooking is the principal behavioral factor behind these fires. It is too easy to begin cooking and become distracted with other matters. If you must leave the kitchen, bring a potholder with you as a reminder of your efforts.

"Unattended candle ignites contents of bedroom." Unattended burning candles account for 60% of all candle fires. Statistically, December has almost twice the number of home candle fires compared to an average month. Stay in the room with burning candles. Be sure to snuff out candles before falling asleep, going out, or leaving a room. Burn candles inside a one-foot circle of safety giving them ample free space from combustibles that can come in contact with flame. Use candles out of the reach of children and pets. Burn candles on a noncombustible surface such as a ceramic saucer or plate.

We can learn from each of these examples and modify any behavior we have in common with them. I write these articles where I believe it is our ability to learn and adjust our behavior to avoid similar results. Through our own conscious effort, we can disassociate ourselves from these potential and common causes of fire, and save ourselves and others the anguish of loss and destruction, which they so often bring.

'Not A Pot Of Gold,' Puleo Says

City's Unclaimed Funds At Nearly $1 Million

By LAURA GRIFFIN

There's nearly $1 million in the city's Unclaimed Funds Account, according to Nick Puleo, Director of Municipal Finance (DMF), who warned that it sounds like a pot of gold or found money, but that total may not represent "real money."

Puleo told City Councillors last week that the Unclaimed Funds Account with a balance of over $964,000 has not been examined since 1988.

The account includes the city's cash set-asides as well as unclaimed city checks to individuals, vendors, and employees ranging from one cent to $7000.

"Some of the money goes back to the 80's," said Puleo who warned that a good portion of the unclaimed funds, also known as "tailings," could be accounting mishaps whereby checks may have been cashed, but not cancelled properly or reissued under a different name.

At least $186,000 of that account was cash, though, and was spent last week when city council approved $150,000 for outside legal counsel to represent the city in the Woodward School lawsuit and $35,000 for consultants for financial planning for the DMF.

Puleo said his department is investigating the balance of over $600,000 in checks to determine how much could be available to the city.

"It's money we should be able to take back as miscellaneous," Puleo told councilors, explaining that the legal process will take a minimum of one year for the 700 to 800 unclaimed checks.

The city must follow specific procedures for every unclaimed check valued at over $100, according to Puleo who cited the statute, MGL 200A, Section 9A.

That law requires the city to send letters of notification to each check recipient and, then public postings of the checks similar to those issued by the State Treasurer's Office for unclaimed bank accounts.

Finally, the city cannot access the funds until one year after the recipients have been notified by mail so Puleo said it will be a while before the city can access all available funds

Quincy College Board Meets Sept. 22 Despite Resignations

President Harris Will Leave By Christmas

The Quincy College Board of Governors must meet Sept. 22 for their annual meeting as required by state charter despite the diminishing number of board members.

This week, two more members submitted their resignations from the board, reducing the board membership to six of a possible 13.

Another resignation may be underway.

Board member Joanne Condon-Walsh and Edward Browne submitted letters of resignation to Quincy College President Sue Harris and there are reports that a third Board member will, also, resign before Sept. 22.

Terms for two other members, former Board Chairman David Dennis and Jo-Ann Bragg, expired Aug. 30. Bragg chose not to seek a reappointment and the Appointing Council did not reappoint Dennis at their first meeting.

Those four openings, plus previous resignations and a long-term vacancy leave six members currently on the board, but subject to change.

The Board will still meet Sept. 22, according to Harris, who said Tuesday that the Board will function despite losing half its membership and that the numbers have been low occasionally in the past.

"The remnant of the board has always functioned until the transition was over," said Harris who praised all board members for their work.

Contacted Tuesday, City Solicitor James Timmins agreed that the board can function with fewer members.

"It's difficult," Harris said of board members who serve as unpaid volunteers in a position that "demands a lot of time and attention."

Harris submitted her resignation last March, stating she wished to retire and enjoy traveling and other activities that she put on hold.

It was Harris' resignation and the process of choosing her successor that triggered a summer of turmoil at Board of Governors' meeting and the majority of the board members' resignations.

At the time, Harris said she'd stay on board through the transition of her successor was chosen, but that may not happen for a while.

Harris said Tuesday she plans to discuss her departure with board members in the near future and hopes to leave by Nov. 1 or at least before Christmas.

College Keeps Growing, Expanding Plymouth Campus

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City Council unanimously supported expansion of the Plymouth campus of Quincy College at their Sept. 7 meeting when they approved extending the college's lease at Cordage Commerce Center and the issuing of a Request for Proposals (RFP) for additional space.

Quincy College is healthy and keeps growing, according to President Sue Harris who cited "increased enrollments and the requirements of our accrediting association" in her formal request for approval of the RFP for the Plymouth campus.

"Quincy College needs to expand our campus in Plymouth to accommodate faculty, more classrooms, a larger nursing lab and a science lab," continued Harris.

Councillors considered the expansion a tribute to Harris' leadership of the college for the past five years and wished her well in her retirement.

"You have very big shoes to fill," said Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, referring to the Board of Governors' difficulty in identifying her replacement.

As president for five years, Harris oversaw both the development of the Newport Avenue campus and initiated the college's efforts toward independence from the city. She has been associated with Quincy College for 19 years

Gutro called the college a "point of pride" for the city and a wonderful resource for the city and its neighbors and praised Harris' efforts for Quincy College independence.

City Council president Kevin Coughlin joined in praising Harris, adding that the college's "future looks very bright."

Quincy College administration's charter requires the mayor and council approve the lease expansion and RFP and will now advertise an RFP.

Mayor Thomas Koch requested the council approve the motion.

son. Until last Sunday, however, we never thought about how the "older" son felt. He had, after all, been faithful to his father and, when his brother came home, no one bothered to even go out into the fields to bring him into the party. He was out in the fields the whole time, working to help the Father.

We are prayerful that the Catholics Come Home initiative is successful, but what can these "lost sheep" find? A truly welcoming and familiar faith community? Or a sign on the church door saying, "Moved, Left No Forwarding Address."? We applaud the Archdiocese in reaching out to alienated Catholics who no longer attend mass, but they need to realize that there are a lot of alienated Catholics who are still in the pews. They need to address their needs and concerns as well.

Later in the service, the Prayer of the Faithful included tearful intercessions for deceased family members and friends from Star of the Sea, and especially for Dawn Dibiduo Green, who's memorial Mass was scheduled to have been celebrated at Star of the Sea this past Sunday. Memorial Masses at Star of the Sea had been booked up to 14 months in advance, prior to Bishop Dooher's abrupt closing of the church on Sept. 5. There has been no indication as to what will happen with the donations that have been given for those Masses.

In another moving gesture, parishioners held hands during the Lord's Prayer.

We also utilized the prayer service as an opportunity to correct some misinformation published by the Chancery following the bishop's visit two weeks ago.

The Chancery's press release two weeks ago said Bishop Dooher presided at our final Mass, when in fact, he did not. Bishop Dooher told parishioners that Star of the Sea would be closing because the "Friends" had exhausted all appeals. Again, this is not true. First of all, our reopening had nothing to do with any appeals, according to the official press release from the Chancery before Star of the Sea reopened. Secondly, our canonical advocate in Rome has over forty years of experience practicing law at the Vatican, and he tells us that our appeals are not over. In fact, he started working on our next appeal earlier this week. Therefore, based on the bishop's own reasoning, our noon Mass should be reinstated immediately.

During our remarks, we also read a portion of the Chancery's own brief that was filed with the Vatican court that most recently ruled against Star of the Sea:

"...maximum discretion was given to His Excellency the Archbishop of Boston so that he might save the entire archdiocese from monetary ruin, provoked by the 'sexual abuse crisis' [emphasis in original]. It is in this context that all actions of this process of reconfiguration and 'closing of parishes' are to be understood, not excluding the suppression of wealthy parishes, not excluding the suppression of parishes of maximum vitality..."

This whole time, we've been told that the downsizing of the Archdiocese was all about changing demographics, and yet, here it is in black and white, once and for all, that this has been about the sexual abuse crisis. We are paying for the sins of others.

The often quoted reason for suppression is the "lack of clergy." There are numerous existing alternatives to the "one priest, one parish" model, which could be utilized. The church could be a "worship space," or it could be paired with another parish in a model called "twinning" in which a pastor is responsible for more than one parish. It's working in Dorchester and other areas; there's no reason why it can't work in Squantum. The Archdiocese needs to "think outside the box" and consider that, like their congregants, priests might have to commute to work.

The Chancery's blatant disregard for Canon Law is outrageous and appalling.

The Friends will hold a town meeting at the First Church of Squantum this Sunday, Sept. 19 at noon to discuss further appeals, civil litigation, and other worship options. Some members have proposed having a weekly prayer group meeting or a lay-led Eucharistic service using hosts consecrated by priests in good standing. We are at a critical juncture, and we encourage our membership to attend on Sunday to discuss our immediate next steps.

Woodward School Lawsuit Could Cost City Millions

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Woodward School's lawsuit against the City of Quincy, as Trustees of the Adams Trust, has already cost the city almost $300,000, but could cost millions in the long run, according to City Solicitor Jim Timmins.

Woodward School's lawsuit claims the city stopped paying the school income from the Adams Trust in 1953 and undervalued trust lands when they were sold, thereby reducing the funds due the school.

"No adequate account had ever been provided by the City to Woodward," according to Attorney Sarah Kim of Bingham McCutchen LLP who has represented the school since 2008 when the suit was first filed.

"As a result, the community and Woodward have no understanding of how the city has managed these valuable charitable trusts during the course of the past 50 years," Kim said in the prepared statement.

Judge Robert Langlois began rulings on the case in 2008 and reopened the pretrial hearings Monday in Norfolk Probate Court. The case will resume Friday, break and be continued until final testimony the week of Nov. 15.

"He wants to keep this on a tight track," Timmins said of the judge's scheduling.

Timmins said he does not expect Judge Langlois to issue a final decision until January or February. To date, the city has or will pay approximately $295,000 related to the lawsuit.

In 2008, Judge Langlois ordered the city to pay for a Special Master and for an audit of the trust back to its inception in 1953. Judge Langlois' ruling on the audit cost the city over $96,000 and an additional $49,000 in legal bills.

Treasurer Deborah Coughlin said Tuesday that the city paid Newburg & Co., of Wellesley for the audit and an invoice from the Special Master, Attorney James McLaughlin.

Then, last week on Sept. 7, City Council approved a $150,000 appropriation to pay outside legal consultants, Attorney John Leonard of Boston and his firm, to represent the city in the lawsuit.

Leonard's firm specializes in probate law, according to Timmins who told the councilors last week that unsuccessful efforts were made to reach a settlement.

Timmins said that the judge's order for an audit of the fund back 50 years has been difficult.

"When you go back 50 years, you have problems with records. The city sold some lands that were held in trust," said Timmins who said that Woodward School is no alleging damages for undervaluing and, then, selling trust lands.

"It quickly adds up to a considerable amount of money," said Timmins who said the figure could reach "multi-million dollars," explaining the need for experts in the probate and trust field.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, an attorney, questioned the problems with the trust.

"In 2005, the treasurer decided not to issue a payment," said Raymondi, suggesting that an $8,000 payment in 2005 under Mayor William Phelan precipitated the legal action, with the "failure to pay funds over to the school that should have been made, a non-payment of $8,000. The city's in a mess for millions of dollars."

However, Councillor Joseph Finn responded the lawsuit goes back 50 years. "This is not about a single action that occurred," he said.

Raymondi also questioned why the city is not protected through a 'claims preclusion' which should exempt the city from any actions prior to the last settlement.

"It is a defense that is being considered," according to Timmins.

In her statement this week and in 2008, Kim emphasized that Woodward School has no quarrel with President Adams' descendants regarding the trust.

If the court dissolves the trust, the remaining funds could be assigned to a male heir of the Adams family.

According to Timmins, the cash value of the trust is roughly $350,000 at this time.

Woodward School For Girls began its 116th year Sept. 8 with over 100 students in grades 6 through 12. The school is located at 1102 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

A Job Well Done

On Monday, Sept. 6, at approximately 11:40 p.m., Officer Dan Church was working in plain clothes and assigned to the task force in the Wollaston Center/ Montclair section due to recent robberies in the that area. Dispatch received a call from a Small Street residence that an unarmed robbery just occurred.

LT. DAN MINTON

Communications gave a description as four males wearing baseball hats, two of which were wearing shorts and the other two were wearing pants. Officer Church responded to the Montclair residence to speak to the victim while other units searched for suspects.

The Officer interviewed the victim, a 13 year old male, who had abrasions on arms, his left shoulder, and back. The victim said that he was westbound on West Squantum Street walking home from the North Quincy MBTA station. As he was crossing the Safford Street intersection, he saw four males, two of which were wearing white short sleeved shirts, walking eastbound on the opposite sidewalk. Shortly after he crossed the Safford Street intersection, two of the males crossed the street and approached him.

One of the two asked the victim if he could "spare a buck." The victim said that he didn't have any money to which he was asked "Well, what do you have?" He said that he didn't have anything but "this" as he displayed his blue Apple IPOD Nano. The two males threw him to the ground and took his IPOD.

As they were assaulting him, the two males on the other side of the street ran toward him yelling "Get the f#$% down!" and "Stay the f#$% down!" After taking the IPOD, the four males then ran eastbound on West Squantum Street. The victim ran home (approximately one block away) and told his father, who called the Police. Officer David Levine, while searching the area, came upon two possible suspects in the area of Hancock Street and Glover Avenue. He reported that he first saw the suspects coming from the Holmes Street area and when they spotted him, they immediately began to run to Hancock Street northbound.

Officer Levine was able to find the two suspects sitting in the back seat of a parked vehicle operated by a female. Suspect #1 said that he was just coming from a pizza restaurant, which was about a block away from the robbery. He then refused to answer any more questions, but suspect #2 stated that he was in the area and saw someone getting thrown to the ground approximately "200 yards" away from where he was walking.

He said that he saw the "four" parties then run eastbound from the victim. When asked to describe the suspects, he said that he was unable because he was "like 300 yards" away. When asked what the suspects were wearing, he said that one was wearing a "red shirt". When asked what kind of shirt it was, he said "a long sleeve shirt." He said that another was wearing a "black shirt." When asked what kind of shirt it was, he said a "sweatshirt." When asked if he was sure that it was a sweatshirt, he said that he was. He said that another was wearing "a white shirt." When asked what kind of white shirt, he said "a long sleeved shirt."

While clarifying this description, he looked down at the white short sleeved shirt he was wearing. I asked what the fourth party was wearing to which he said "He was wearing a" and then stopped. He said there might have only been three suspects. Officer Church explained to him that he had said that he was 300 yards away and had described much of their clothing but was unable to distinguish how many people were involved. He responded "Well, I was probably like 400 yards away."

Officer Church then spoke to the female driver of the vehicle. She said that she got a call from suspect #2 at 11:50 P.M., stating that he needed a ride from McDon-

Manet Community Health Center Names Joseph Peppe, MD, Chief Medical Officer

Joseph Peppe, MD, has been appointed Chief Medical Officer (CMO) of Manet Community Health Center and will join the multi-site community-based health center next month, announces Henry N. Tuttle, Manet Chief Executive Officer.

"We're pleased to have someone of Dr. Peppe's caliber, capabilities and experience lead our medical team," said Tuttle. "We're excited by the prospects of working together to improve our clinical programs and serve our patients."

JOSEPH PEPPE, MD

A resident of East Boston, Dr. Peppe will become only the third Chief Medical Officer in Manet's 30-year history. Dr. Peppe currently is Associate Medical Director at South Boston Community Health Center.

"I am delighted to be joining Manet and take part in furthering its goals of providing accessible, quality care to residents of the South Shore," said Dr. Peppe, who is Clinical Instructor in the Department of Family Medicine, Boston University, and an Attending Physician at Boston Medical Center.

Dr. Peppe earned his Medical Degree from the University of Massachusetts and completed his internship and residency in Boston University's Family Medicine Program.

Over the past several years, Dr. Peppe has risen in leadership positions at South Boston. His experience in implementing quality improvement measures helped to influence Manet's selection. "One of our priorities is ensuring consistency and continuity of care across our five practice sites," noted Tuttle.

Dr. Peppe chairs the Quality Improvement Committee at South Boston Community Health Center, serves on the Boston University Family Medicine Clinical Quality Committee, and has spoken on managing quality performance at Boston University's Primary Care Training Institute.

He has been an enthusiastic advocate of the health center model of care since he was introduced to it during medical school and worked in a center set inside a public housing project.

"It made sense to me to provide care where people need it—in their own communities," he said. "Having a community-based board of directors and drawing staff from the surrounding area keeps you grounded with what's happening in community health."

Dr. Peppe has been a member of a working group that directs the Family Medicine residency at Boston University Medical Center—experience that complements Manet's goal to develop its own residency program. In addition, he serves on the Neighborhood Health Plan Pharmacy and Therapeutics Committee.

Until Dr. Peppe's arrival in mid-October, Robert Shiner, MD, Physician Lead at Manet's North Quincy location, will continue as Interim CMO, a post he took on earlier this year with the departure of William Brandon, MD, MPH.

Tuttle thanked Barbara Morris and Elizabeth Swanton of Manet Board of Directors and other members of the steering committee for their hard work in the search for and hiring of Dr. Peppe. "With this strong community component in our selection process," Tuttle said, "we know we've found the best possible candidate."

Manet Community Health Center was founded in 1979. Today, it serves the broad health needs of South Shore residents through a family-practice model of care. In calendar year 2009, Manet provided 51,889 visits to 13,926 patients at its five locations.

Manet has been accredited by The Joint Commission since 1999, demonstrating it meets the highest standards of quality health care.

West Nile Virus Detected In Mosquito In Wollaston

City Health Inspector Drew Scheele Monday confirmed that Norfolk County officials have identified a strain of the West Nile virus in a mosquito trapped in Wollaston.

Scheele recommended that residents take precautions to avoid infection. Those precautions include limiting outdoor activities after dusk, dumping outdoor water pools, such as those collecting in watering cans, old tires, and wheel barrels, and replacing or patching window and door screens.

"You have to wait until the first frost," Scheele said, referring to ridding the city of the hazards from mosquito borne infections He stressed that effective mosquito repellents should include a substance identified as DEET.

Scheele said that Norfolk County Mosquito Control oversees the three traps set in undisclosed locations in the city.

"We have several positive mosquitoes every year," said Scheele who warned that a West Nile infection could be as deadly as the more publicized EEE or Triple E virus (Eastern Equine Encephalitis), which is also transmitted by mosquitoes but is generally not found in this area.

In fact, Scheele said there's been no Triple E detected in Quincy in the 13 years "since I've been here" as it's generally confined to Plymouth County and Cape Code. In addition, Scheele said that salt marsh mosquitoes do not transmit West Nile virus.

The two viruses have similar symptoms, such as high fever, headache, neck stiffness, and muscle pain or ache, according to Scheele. The odds are low for serious repercussions for most persons. However, those most at risk from complications are over the age of 50 or weakened by other illnesses.

THE ALLERTON WAY
Allerton House Assisted Living at Hancock Park
Quincy, MA
by Kelly Richards

Angelo (Red) and Geraldine (Gerrie) DiGravio are quick to say that living at Allerton House at Hancock Park in Quincy, they "don't have to worry about a thing."
The couple was encouraged by their three children, who live in Norwell, Hull and Rhode Island, to make the move to assisted living community when they began to require assistance due to health issues. Red says, "Anything we need, we just press a button and someone is right here to see what they can for us."

Angelo (Red) and Geraldine (Gerrie) DiGravio enjoy living at Allerton House Assisted Living in Quincy.

Red and Gerrie first met when he was in fifth grade and she was in fourth. Their paths crossed over the years-at school, at church and at Sunday school. Now married for 65 years, Red jokes, "Her parents were none too thrilled with me. His dad worked with mine at the Quincy Shipyard and used to tell him to keep me away from his daughter." Red pursued a Navy career during World War II, but decided that military life was too difficult for a young family. He joined the Quincy Fire Department, working with the alarm systems for all eight stations until his retirement 20 years later.

The DiGravios take great pride and joy in their three children, five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Red says, "We have plenty of room to entertain and a kitchen to make smacks. It makes it nice."

He also is impressed with the wonderful, accommodating staff, citing an example of a time when he needed medical attention and the Allerton House nurse drove him to a doctor's appointment herself. "She's always 'Johnny-on-the-spot," he says. As another example, he notes, "We can go down for meals, but if we're not feeling well, they'll bring them up for us. You can ask for anything, anytime here at Allerton House."

Terrorist Attacks Still Surreal For Local Firefighters

Arienti's first reaction was to call the department to find out if it would be deploying firefighters to join in on the search and rescue efforts at the horrific scene at Ground Zero. It's the firefighters and police officers, Arienti said, who are the first line of Homeland Security during an attack. Oftentimes, they have no idea just what kind of situation they will be facing when they arrive on scene.

"You really don't know what you're walking into and hopefully you'll be walking home the same way," he said.

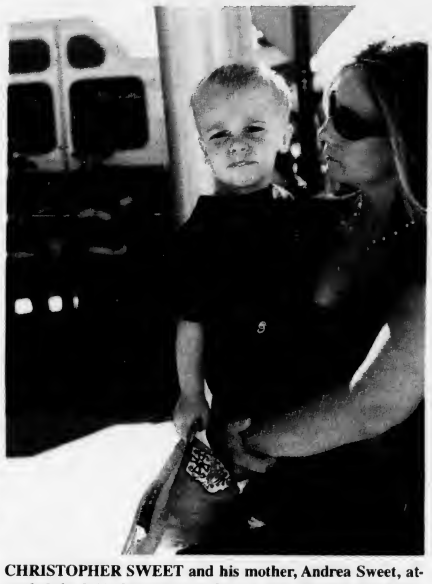
Arienti attended a Make-A-Wish fundraiser that evening that had been planned months before. He wasn't surprised that there were only 10 people in attendance, given the events of the day. The evening ended with the group singing "God Bless America." It's then that enormity of emotion from the day hit Arienti like a punch to the stomach.

"I couldn't finish the song," he said. "It was too much."

Arienti did head to New York City on a handful of different occasions to attend the funerals of firefighters who died when the towers collapsed. Along with several other colleagues, Arienti went to 2-3 funerals a day on each trip to the city. And although he knew the firefighter brotherhood ran deep, Arienti was still overcome by just how far reaching it went.

"I met firefighters as far away as Ireland," said Arienti. "They came from all over the world."

The most emotional of the funerals was the first one Arienti attended, that of NYFD Captain Patrick Brown. The sight of the fire truck with Brown's coffin on top, moving slowly towards Saint Patrick's Cathedral, was an image Arienti will never forget. The funeral was enormous with more than 10,000 firefighters on hand. Those who weren't able to get into the packed cathedral listened to it on speakers outside.



MEMORIAL WREATH is placed at the Quincy Firefighters Memorial Walk outside Fire Headquarters on Quincy Avenue during the city's 9-11 observance Saturday. Similar observances commemorating the lives lost in the terrorist attacks nine years ago were held at the city's other fire houses.

Arienti never met any of the families of those who passed away, but did meet many of their friends. The kindness shown to the firefighters from the public is still something has stuck with him. "We met friends of the deceased," he said. "A lot of the firefighters came from the suburbs. They opened their departments and offered us food and beverages after the services.

"No matter what happens out there, it's a great profession to be part of. I'm proud being part of such a great brotherhood."

In Quincy too, the respect showed the firefighters the weeks after 9/11 was overwhelming. "The citizens of Quincy are great," said Arienti. "They're great people, special people."

CHRISTOPHER SWEET and his mother, Andrea Sweet, attended the 9-11 observance at Quincy Fire Headquarters Saturday. Andrea is the wife and Christopher the son of Quincy Firefighter Stephen Sweet. Amy Kelly Photography

ALEXIS, a Portugese Water Dog, strikes a "Doga" pose with the help of her owner, Real Life Yoga Studio owner Dee Lyon.

'Doga' Popular For Canines And Owners Like

Dee Lyon Yoga Studio 'Going To The Dogs'

By JOE REARDON

"Alexis" isn't what you'd call your average run-of-the mill Portuguese Water Dog. The playful canine, which turns to jello with a rub to the belly, has been trained as a therapy dog and oftentimes is brought by her owner, Dee Lyon, into nursing homes. She is a huge mood brightener for the elderly. She also brings Alexis to her classes.

"She enlightens the seniors and picks their spirits up," said Lyon, the owner of the Real Life Yoga studio at 101 Adams St. "I've brought Alexis to class with me a few times and the people absolutely love her."

Twice a month it's the dogs' turn for yoga at Lyon's popular "Doga" class. Held in the play yard behind the studio. The class is open for four dogs with their owners.

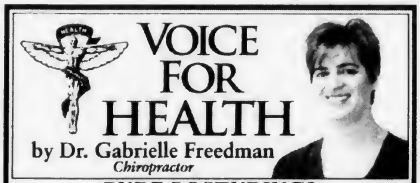
After a short "meet and greet" where the dogs get used to one another, the canines take their place on their mats with their owners. From that point, the owners go through a variety of stretches, at the same time patting and rubbing the dogs to relax them. In a matter of minutes the animals are completely at ease, oblivious to their environment.

"For the most part they're all socialized dogs," Lyon said.

Much of the reason for the dogs' relaxation, Lyon said, is that they can feel the soothing heartbeat of their owners in several of the poses.

"You keep the dog comfortable so there's more of a connection," she said. "You stretch and lean against the dogs, giving them a gentle hug. The dogs like the belly rubs the most."

When it came time to do a certain pose during the hour-long class, Lyon was careful to warn the owners. "We're coming into the cat pose but don't tell the dogs," she said with a laugh.



The class runs more smoothly when the owners exercise their pet for a while beforehand. Water and treats are made available to the dogs and all the dogs remain leashed during class.

At the end of the class, Lyon gives the dog owners an article on keeping their pets healthy with Reiki, otherwise known as palm healing. Through the use of the technique, those who practice it believe the can transfer healing energy to another body, whether it be human or animal.

Lyon also handed out recipes for "Woof Woof Meatloaf" and "Frozen Strawberry Pupsicles" treats she assured the owners the dogs would love.

Lyon said that Doga has exploded in New York City and believes it's just a matter of time before it takes off in Massachusetts. "I'm trying to help make it catch on," she said.

Lyon's studio caters to the yoga and exercise needs of all ages with an array of classes. From Kids Yoga (ages 3-5) to Belly Dancing Lessons, there is a class for everyone. For more information call (617) 285-5219.

PURE POSTURING?

Poor posture and back pain enjoy a "chicken and egg" relationship that makes it difficult to figure which comes first. It is now widely maintained that poor sitting posture is a major contributor to low back pain and that poor standing and lying postures are contributing factors, as well. The vicious cycle completes itself once the back starts to hurt. Muscles such as the hamstrings and back muscles may tighten in response to pain while others, including the abdominals, begin to weaken. As a consequence of this imbalance, posture is further adversely affected, which only serves to place additional stress on muscles and joints. The chiropractor can help break the vicious cycle of poor posture and back pain.

We believe stress, poor posture and accidents, including sports injuries and the like can all stop the body machine running smoothly. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we are ready to work with you to alleviate your discomfort and restore you to better health as quickly as possible. We welcome you to call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Poor posture adversely affects how you are perceived by others, especially at first impressions.

Nutritious Meals Can 'Egg On' Learning

(NAPSA)—There are many ways to help your children succeed in school. These can include reading to them regularly, teaching them effective study skills and showing them how to be organized. In addition, a good way to help them go to the head of the class is by improving their diet.

According to recent research at the National Institutes of Health, a diet rich in omega-3s can help brain and nervous system development. It can also reduce the risk of high cholesterol and cardiovascular disease.

Fortunately, omega-3s are easy to find in grains, fish and green leafy vegetables. They can even be found in foods kids love, such as eggs. For example, one brand of eggs provides three times more omega-3s than do ordinary eggs.

"With increased amounts of vitamins A, B2, B12, D and omega-3 plus several other vitamins and minerals, Eggland's Best (EB) eggs are a convenient nutrient booster," said registered dietitian Julie Upton, MS, RD, co-author of "Energy to Burn: The Ultimate Food and Nutrition Guide to Fuel Your Active Life." "As a healthy breakfast or snack, EB eggs provide the nutrition and energy to help you stay nourished and active all day long."

More Nutrient News

Parents may be pleased to learn that when compared to ordinary eggs, all EB egg varieties—large, extra large, jumbo, cage-free and organic—now contain:

• Four times more vitamin D to aid calcium absorption for healthy bone development;

• Almost 50 percent more lutein for maintaining eye health;

• Ten times more vitamin E for cellular and tissue health;

AS PART OF a healthy diet, eggs can be a simple way to provide the nutrients many kids need to succeed in school.

• Over 75 percent more vitamin B12, which plays a key role in the normal function of the brain and nervous system.

Additionally, these eggs are a good source of vitamin A and vitamin B2, have 25 percent less saturated fat and 19 percent less cholesterol than regular eggs.

For a healthy and great-tasting treat, try EB Grab & Go Granola Bars. Save time by making these granola bars on Sunday so the family will be set with breakfast for the week:

Ingredients

1 cup oats, quick cooking or old-fashioned
1 cup Shredded Wheat cereal
1 cup walnuts
1½ cups dried fruit (such as a combination of dried apricots, dried plums, dried cherries and dried cranberries)
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
2 large Eggland's Best eggs
⅓ cup honey
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ cup mini chocolate chips

Preparation

• Preheat the oven to 350°F. Lightly oil or coat an 8 x 8-inch baking pan with nonstick cooking spray and set aside.

• Place the oats, cereal, walnuts, dried fruit, cinnamon and salt in a food processor and pulse until the mixture is finely chopped (the dried fruit should be the size of a dried pea or lentil).

• In a large bowl, whisk together the eggs, honey and vanilla. Add the oatmeal mixture and chocolate chips and stir to combine. Transfer to the baking pan and flatten down gently with the back of a spoon or spatula to spread evenly.

Bake 25 to 30 minutes until the edges turn golden brown and the bars are done. Let bars cool completely in pan before slicing and serving.

Notes and Suggestions:

These bars freeze really well. So if you have leftovers, wrap individual portions in plastic baggies or aluminum foil and freeze.

Yield: Makes 16 bars

Your Home's Exterior

(NAPSA)—No matter where a home is located, there's a pretty good chance that it will face Mother Nature's fury at some point.

Giving a home a fighting chance against natural disaster starts with exterior cladding. Of course, nothing is going to survive 100-year floods, being in the center of a firestorm, baseball-sized hail or sustained 170 mph winds, but, for everything else, careful consideration of a home's siding is critical to withstanding "lesser" disasters.

Practical, Beautiful Protection

Over the last 20 years, a different material has emerged as a builder favorite for exteriors. Fiber cement is widely used because of its noncombustibility rating and use in several one-hour fire-resistance-rated wall assemblies, in addition to being rated to withstand 150 mph winds and earning a FEMA Class 5 flood resistance rating. It's as beautiful as it is durable, too, designed to closely mimic the look of wood.

Since 2007, a national survey by Builder magazine has consistently rated James Hardie fiber cement siding products No. 1 in the U.S.; more than 4 million homes are clad in James Hardie siding. In addition to providing highly rated disaster protection, the company's products are engineered for climate, meaning they perform best in specific climate conditions, called HardieZones. The HZ5 product line, formulated for the upper half of North America, is optimized to protect against freezing temperatures, snow, ice and moisture and maintains its dimensional stability under severe weather conditions. The HZ10 product line, designed for North America's lower half, is resistant to moisture damage, cracking, splitting, rotting, swelling, salt air and high winds. Both are resistant to termites and flame.

Coach Paul Bregoli Earns 150th Career Victory

Raiders Open Fall With 1-0 Victory Over Fontbonne

By SEAN BRENNAN

An extra hand helped push the North Quincy Red Raiders past Fontbonne Academy, 1-0, last Friday at Teal Field in the non-league season opener for both teams.

North Quincy's Shannon McCleary aggressive play inside the box with five minutes remaining in the second half resulted in a handball by a Ducks defender with a penalty kick being awarded to the young forward as a result. After a quick timeout by NQHS head coach Paul Bregoli, McCleary stepped up and buried the PK, giving the Raiders the one-goal advantage, which held up despite a last-minute attack by Fontbonne.

The 1-0 victory gave North Quincy (1-0-1) some momentum as the team began a four-game Patriot League stretch against some of the best girls soccer programs on the South Shore (Hingham, Whitman-Hanson, Silver Lake and Duxbury). (NQHS played to a 1-1 deadlock with Hingham Monday afternoon. Junior Taylor McKay buried her first varsity goal in her second varsity start to push the Red Raiders even with the Harborwomen.)

"After the game I told the girls that the referee 'handed' the game to us," said the affable Bregoli on Monday. "It wasn't an obvious call, but Shannon made an aggressive move and their defender got her hand on the shot. That is what happens sometimes when you look to score.

"I had to call a timeout before the PK because no one wanted to step up and take that penalty shot, but Shannon finally did and she made it count. It was a huge win because our next four games are going to be tough."

This year's edition of the North Quincy Red Raiders (see below preview) are young; there are only six seniors on the team with the majority of the varsity roster being underclassmen. That inexperience may prove costly as the team begins its grueling Patriot League schedule, but for one game, at least, North Quincy's youth displayed guile and grit and it showed from the opening kickoff.

"We really did a nice job of controlling the game from the start," said Bregoli. "We played some great possession soccer and changed the point of attack when we needed to. We are a young team, so having some success early in the season is a good sign.

"The girls played well and the coaching staff was happy with what we saw against Fontbonne."

Sarah Gardiner, Stephanie DiPietro, Jillian Carchedi, Kaleen Campo, and Sara Sullivan (seven saves, shutout) put in standout performances against Fontbonne.

On a side note, Paul Bregoli picked up his 150th career coaching victory with his team's 1-0 win over the Ducks. Bregoli, this season, is coaching his 16th year on the sidelines for the Red Raiders.

Never one to toot his own horn, Bergoli gave all the credit to the quality student-athletes he has coached since starting back in 1994.

"It is a milestone but I need to acknowledge all of the pretty good players I have coached over the years," he said. "You can't make chicken salad without the chicken."

NQHS Soccer Preview

The 2010 soccer season started with a 1-0 victory over Fontbonne Academy in non-league action.

The win gave NQHS some momentum as the team looks to make noise in the ultra-competitive Patriot League, and more importantly the victory gives the Raiders a head start in their quest to be a contender in the league's Keenan Division. North Quincy is going to have its hands full against teams from soccer hotbeds such as Duxbury, Whitman-Hanson, Silver Lake, and Hingham in the race for a division title.

Six seniors lead the team this fall. Four-year starters Jillian Carchedi and Shannon Coleman are at the top of that list and both standouts, along with fellow seniors Sarah Gardiner, Jill Keezer, Courtney Byrne and Maggie Lynch will be looked at to provide some leadership to the rest of the roster, which is littered with talented underclassmen.

Returning this fall after seeing considerable playing time in 2009 are juniors Sara Sullivan (keeper), Kaleen Campo, Jonlyn Lydon, Courtney Timmins, Taylor McKay and Jessica O'Donovan, sophomores Danielle Paschall, Caitlin Bulger, Liz Kelly, Shannon McCleary, Lauren Campo, and Jaclyn Scuzzarella, along with first-year players Abby Smith, Haley McKay, Delia Devane, Arianna Viscione, and Stephanie DiPietro.

"We are going to have a young team overall, but we have quality from the top to the bottom of our roster," said NQHS head coach Paul Bregoli. "The sophomores played minutes last year, so they should be even better this year and our junior class, led by Sara Sullivan in net is talented as well.

"Jill Carchedi, Shannon Coleman and Sarah Gardiner have all started for us the last few years and they are going to step up and provide that leadership that we are going to need once we get to the iron of the Patriot League schedule."

If the combination of experience and untapped potential can get in synch, this year's North Quincy squad could surprise some of the powerhouses in the area. But, according to Bregoli, that maturation is going to have to come quickly.

"We are really going to have to mature quickly, especially with the early part of our schedule being so strong," he said. "If we can maximize our potential, we are going to be a tough team to play against this fall."

NQHS Jayvee Roundup

The NQHS jayvee program opened their 2010 season with a 2-1 victory over Fontbonne Academy.

Juliette Callahan and Brianna Mullaney scored the goals and Kayla Sugrue played well and Christine Kelleher made timely saves in net.

The team lost, 5-1, to Hingham on Monday; Kelly Bryne (goal) and Caitlin Bulger played well.

SUN SPORTS

ONE TEAM, ONE GOAL: With a roster filled with underclassmen, this year's North Quincy girls soccer team is going to have to come together quickly. That process got off to a rousing start with a 1-0 non-league win over Fontbonne last week. The victory also marked Head Coach Paul Bregoli's 150th career win manning the sidelines at NQHS.

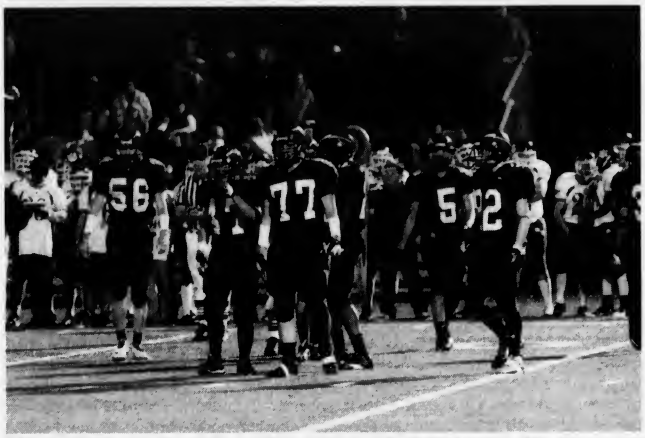
Red Raiders Will Be Looking To Surprise Teams This Fall



By SEAN BRENNAN

This fall, the boys soccer program at North Quincy High School is out to surprise all of the so-called big boys in the challenging Patriot League.

And leading the charge are senior captains Anthony Andronico (keeper), Nick Carbone (midfielder), and Ricky Long (defense) who along with fellow senior Wesley Cot (defense) make LINEBACKER BOBBY LAWLESS (#56) and defensive lineman Danny Chau (#47) are in hot pursuit of Boston Latin's quarterback during action at Veterans Memorial Stadium last Friday. North Quincy (1-0) held Boston Latin to six points and came away with the victory on a last minute touchdown run from senior Seyi Adesuyan.

Home Game Tonight Against Oliver Ames HS

By SEAN BRENNAN

It wasn't pretty. It wasn't even average. But for NQHS head football coach Jim Connor, it was a win and that is always all that matters.

The final score of the Red Raiders non-league season opener against Boston Latin Academy last Friday night was 13-6 and that result was good enough.

"A win is a win," said Connor. "It was ugly. We had a bunch of turnovers, but we pulled it out and that is how you want to start the season. It was a our first game and we are going to need to work on tightening up some aspects of our game, but we will take it."

North Quincy (1-0) won on the strength of a productive running attack and a stifling defensive effort. The Raiders' corral of backs accounted for over 250 yards rushing and both touchdowns, including senior Seyi Adesuyan's 40-yard game-winning scamper in the final minutes of the fourth quarter. Adesuyan finished the victory with 135 rush yards and two touchdowns. His first quarter 60-yard scoring run gave the Raiders the early advantage.

Seniors Mike Curran (60 rush yards) and Kyle McKay (40 rush yards) along with junior Marquis Chase (30 rush yards) also contributed to the Red Raiders "ground & pound" attack, which helped the team maintain ball control throughout four quarters.

"We ran the ball well," Connor added. "I think we had over 250 yards on the ground and that is a credit to the play of our offensive line. They were dominant controlling the line of scrimmage and our backs did a nice job of getting the tough yards."

With the running game producing at a high level, all senior quarterback Joe Schmitz had to do was run his offense. He did that well enough and can now say that he is 1-0 as a starter for North Quincy.

"Joe wasn't asked to throw the ball that much but he did a nice job starting his first varsity game," said Connor about his first-year starter at QB. "This game was the beginning of an 11-game career for him and to come away with a victory should only give him more confidence as the season moves along."

On the defensive side of the ball, North Quincy limited Boston Latin Academy to only six points. The Raiders also came away with four turnovers including two interceptions and two fumble recoveries. Junior Johannes Harten's INT with 20 second left in the game sealed the victory for North Quincy.

"Our defense was excellent," said Connor. "They came up with some big turnovers and really at times bailed us out. Boston Latin had ball possession on our side of the field a few times and the defense shut them down. We still have some things to work out, but for the first game of the year it was a good showing by them."

There is no rest for the weary for Coach Connor's boys. The team gets right back into action when they host non-league opponent Oliver Ames HS today (Thursday) at Veterans Memorial Stadium (7 p.m.). This will be the first time North Quincy will have played against this Hockomock League opponent.

"What we have seen watching film on Oliver Ames is impressive," Connor stated. "They play in a tough league and if we want to win we are going to have to limit turnovers and play stout defense. It was important to start out the season with a victory, but we have already moved on to the next opponent."

North Quincy will play at East Bridgewater HS on Sept. 24. An away game against Pembroke HS is set for Oct. 1 at 7:00 p.m.

A non-league game at Malden HS (Oct. 9) will be followed by back to back home games versus Hanover HS (Oct. 15) and Duxbury HS (Oct. 22).

HEAD COACH JIM CONNOR and QB Joe Schmitz (#13) talk strategy during the first half of last Friday's season-opener against Boston Latin. Schmitz, a first-year starter behind center, and the rest of the NQ offense escaped, 13-6, in the non-league contest.

SENIOR RUNNING BACK Mike Curran (#5) follows his blockers for a first half first down run. Curran (60 yards rushing) and the rest of NQHS stable of backs accounted for both touchdowns and over 250 yards rushing for the game.

Red Raiders Will Be Looking To Surprise Teams This Fall

up one of the smallest senior classes in recent memory for Head Coach Rich Hanlon. Reinforcements are abundant once you scan the underclassmen on the roster and the combination of the two should make for some competitive soccer from the Red Raiders this season.

"This year we do not have as much depth as we have had in the past," said Hanlon on Monday. "It is going to be a case of keeping everyone healthy, but this team already has a tremendous attitude and we are going to go out each game looking to surprise some teams."

For the Red Raiders, their strength comes from the goal out and, so far, Andronico is bringing the heat. The last three seasons he has honed his craft primarily at the jayvee level, but when Ryan Louis, the all-league keeper for NQHS the last three years, graduated last June, Andronico seized the starting gig. So far, so good according to his coach.

"Anthony has been incredible for us so far," said Hanlon. "He seems to be getting better and better each time out. His performance in the preseason was encouraging, but he has played three years at the JV level, so he knows what he is doing. But he has been a big surprise."

Keeping the vital territory in front of Andronico clear of opposing forwards is also in good feet. Ricky Long is already one of the better sweepers in the Patriot League and according to Hanlon he is bound to improve even more during his senior year.

"Right off the bat Ricky is already one of the best sweepers in the league," he added. "He is an important part of our team defense and we feel good about what he is going to bring to the defense, again, this season."

Moving up the pitch to the midfield position the Red Raiders have all-star Nick Carbone manning the middle. Another big plus for North Quincy. Carbone was rock solid in 2009 and he should also improve his game as this season moves into October.

"(Nick) is really coming into his own," said Hanlon. "He seems quicker and his confidence is sky high. He is going to be a force to watch."

Cot, the fourth and final senior of the team, is a solid veteran who will provide the leadership this team is going to need with a roster of underclassmen filling out the rest of the starting eleven.

Pacing the underclassmen core is super sophomore Matty Costa (team captain) who is set to star at midfield with Carbone and junior Paul Curtin, forming what could be a deadly 1-2-3 punch in the middle for North Quincy.

On the back end, sophomore Robbie Routhier will saddle up next to Cot and in front of Long and Andronico to complete a defensive wall that should give opposing Patriot League offenses fits.

Other juniors to watch for as the leaves turn colors are Connor Clifford (midfield), Tim McAuliffe (midfield), Ian Hunter (defense), Chris Lamont (forward), Iany Martins (forward), Ryan Ketner (defense), and Omar Abo-Sido (midfield).

Shane McDevitt (midfield), Kyle Waters (defense), and Steve Beaton (midfield) round out the sophomore class.

The Red Raiders (0-0-1) opened the season last week with a 1-1 tie with Archbishop Williams High School. Archies scored the game-tying goal in extra (extra) time, a result that didn't sit well with the North Quincy coaching staff.

"That result was ended in a tie that felt like a loss," Hanlon said with a tinge of disappointment in his voice. "Archbishop Williams scored their goal in extra time, but it seemed like the referee allowed the game to go an extra 40 seconds past what we thought was the allotted time allowed.

"Even their coach came over and said he was happy with the tie but felt like the extra period went longer than expected. We got a point out of it but it still felt like a loss."

North Quincy is going to have to battle for every point this year. The Patriot League is always one of the best leagues in the area for boys' soccer and this year is no different. This week NQHS will face Hingham (Monday), Whitman-Hanson (Wed.), and at Silver Lake on Friday. Next week the team hosts Duxbury on Monday and travels to Hanover on Friday. Tough sledding for any team.

"The Patriot League is always tough and this year is going to be more of the same," said Hanlon. "We are going to have to battle teams in every game we play."

Home Game Against Canton Today at 4 p.m.

Cohasset Out-Muscles Quincy, 45-7

Quincy opened the 2010 season last Friday at Cohasset High School. The result was not kind to the Presidents as the team dropped its non-league opener, 45-7.

A loss to Cohasset is by no means a deathblow to a season filled with promise. The Skippers finished last season 9-2 overall and made the MIAA postseason, plus that team returned a number of all-league players. The Presidents lost to Cohasset in 2009, 39-0, also in the season opener for both teams.

But it is a long season and Quincy has the talent to quickly turn it around. They'll have the opportunity today (Thursday) when they open their home schedule with a non-league game against Canton High School (4 p.m., Veterans Memorial Stadium).

Against Cohasset, Quincy saw an all-world performance from senior running back Thomas Filbotte (14 carries, 115 yards, two TDs). Cohasset quarterback Jeff Cavanaro (rush TD) also shined, connecting with wideout Jeff Carrier for two long touchdown receptions.

The Presidents scored their lone touchdown on a run by junior running back Jalen Green.

Quincy's next four games are at home. That part of the schedule starts today and continues with games against Plymouth South (Sept. 24, 7 p.m.), Randolph (Oct. 1, TBA), and Duxbury (Oct. 8, 7 p.m.).

Jamie Cochrane Memorial Race A Huge Success

By JOE REARDON

Hopkinton's Keiron Tumbleton was familiar enough with the tricky winds of Quincy Shore Drive to know that the scenic, mile-long section of Sunday's 3rd Annual Officer Jamie Cochrane 10/5K Memorial Road Race would figure greatly into his time, one way or the other.

With a 10K effort scheduled for Sunday in his 70-80-miles-per-week training regiment, Tumbleton was looking for a benchmark time to gauge where he's at heading into two half-marathons slated for the fall.

The personable Irishman made it a solo show as he forged ahead at the half-mile mark, put his head down to buck the wind, and proceeded to destroy the 251-runner field with a time of 34-minutes 41-seconds. Elliot Columb was the top Quincy finisher, taking second in 36:16. Saint Louis, Missouri's Matthew Simonson was third in 37:57.

The headwind on Quincy Shore Drive proved to make the flat course more daunting for Tumbleton. "I was definitely looking to go faster but that wind really hit me," said Tumbleton, whose 5-year-old daughter, Autumn, picked up a medal in the children's race. "It's a fast course. There's only a few little bumps. It was a phenomenally well-run race. We hope to run it again."

Bridget Bergan of Boston was as dominant on the women's side as Tumbleton was on the men's. She finished well over minute in front of runner-up Aife Carney-Parrella of Quincy (45:03) in 43:44. Hanover's Ashley Jordan continued to own the 20-29 division with her third consecutive win. Jordan sprinted hard across the finish line for a time of 45:05 to put her a step behind Carney-Parrella in third overall. Quincy's Eileen Flaherty was fourth (47:02), followed by Milton's Mary Fierabend, who rounded out the top five in 47:43.

Another local, Linda-Marie O'Connor was sixth in 47:57 and Allison Smith of South Hamilton clinched the seventh position in 48:13. Sara Lupica of North Easton was eighth in 48:19, followed by Jean Snow of Salem with her 48:57. Dorchester's Kelly Keegan was a strong 10th in 49:00.

The popular race is held in honor of Quincy Police Officer Jamie Cochrane. Cochrane, and eight-year veteran of the department was killed while riding his motorcycle on Sept. 10, 2006. Proceeds from the event go to various charities locally.

Co-race director Gregg Hartnett, Cochrane's cousin, said the event has become very family-friendly over the years with fun runs for the kids as well as moon walks and other activities.

"Family-wise, it gets better and better every year," said Harnett. "It was a great day with a great turnout."

The incomparable Hassan Haydar of Quincy tore apart the competition in the 60-69 division, averaging a cool 6:38-mile pace to win in 41:10. Quincy's Mark Costello was a distant second in 43:36 and Jorge Espada of Dorchester clinched third in 46:50. Joseph Oliva of East Boston was able to sail through the 50-59 division for the 48:14. Quincy took the next two places with Lance Peterson (50:00) and Rick Nichols (50:27) claiming the second- and third-place medals, respectively.

Behind Tumbleton in the 40-49 division, Scituate's Ted Coyle claimed the silver medal in 40:11 and Quincy's Vincent Gratch took home bronze with his 42:56 effort. Columb was an easy winner in the 30-39 category. Chris Barlow of Mansfield ran hard (39:05) to edge out Quincy's John Boveri (39:12) for second.

Quincy's Michael Conley was second to Simonson in the 20-29 competition, clocking a 46:09. Bridgewater's Kevin Bligh was third in 50:10. Quincy runners swept the 15-19 category with Matthew McGue winning in 49:05 and Conor Doyle registering a 55:52 for second. Michael Styles of Hingham was timed in 59:41 for the 14-and-under win. William Higgins of Quincy was well back in second at 1:06:58.

On the women's side, Joanne Morris of Quincy had a strong race, averaging 8:45 mile pace for a 54:14 win in the 60-69 division. Rebecca Schroder of Cambridge sprinted across the finish line in 1:08:25 to clinch the runner-up slot. Loretta Patch turned the 50-59 division into a one-woman race as she averaged 8:30 pace for a decisive 42:44 victory. Hingham's Lori Silva took second in 59:22 and Marilyn Buckley was more than a minute back in third. The Quincy resident checked in at 1:01:01.

Quincy residents went 1-3 in the 40-49 age group as Linda-Marie O'Connor came away with the win in 47:57 and Kathy Tracy was third in 50:16. Sara Lupica of North Easton was sandwiched between the two in second with a 48:19.

Bergan, Carney-Parrella and Fierabend dominated the 30-39 category. Jordan won for the third time at 20-29 with Flaherty and Snow following her across the line. Kelsey LaForest of Quincy clocked an impressive 55:00 to win the 14-and-under division, well ahead of Hull's Daniela Marchione (1:11:43).

Quincy's Matthew Molski had little trouble against the field in the 5K. Molski quickly distanced himself from the pack and was an easy winner in 17:15. Matt McGroarty made it a 1-2 sweep for the locals, crossing the finish line outside Veterans Stadium in 18:26. Weymouth's Matthew Cherner was third with his 18:54. As 581 runners finished the quick 3.1-mile layout.

Quincy women dominated the 5K race with six finishers in the top 10, including Emily Bryson's runaway win in 19:56. Ashley Barbour of Concord, NH was a distant second behind Bryson at 22:29. Julia Bryson of Quincy nailed down third in 22:45.

Milton's Don Murray's 30:56 gave him the win in the 70-and-over division with Cambridge's Robert Mancell nailing down a 33:46 for second, almost 30 seconds in front of third-place finisher Bill Klier of Weymouth's 34:25. Quincy went 1-2-3 in the 60-69 division as Bob Hanna (22:14), Robert Boyd (26:18) and Bob Rantuccio (26:27) dominated up front.

In the 50-59 race, Quincy's Charles Djerf was first in 23:46, nearly a minute ahead of runner-up Jack Graney of Milton's 25:36. Bruce Byorkman of Bridgewater averaged 8:30 pace for third in 26:22. Quincy's James McDonough ran 19:00 to thoroughly dominate the 40-49 division. Chuck Keefe of South Boston was nearly three minutes back with his 21:52. Ken Kehoe of Hanover was third with his 22:35.

Cherner topped the 30-39 group in 18:54. Boston's Robert Wong clocked 20:39 for second and Joaquin Robles of Quincy ran 22:07 for third. Behind Molski, Michael O'Malley of Quincy ran a swift 19:47 for second in the 20-29. Quincy's Matthew Martin took the bronze in 21:51.

McGroarty buried the 15-19 division and Derek Mathies of Quincy was second in 22:52, edging Winthrop's Jack Nee (22:53) in a furious sprint finish. Quincy's Michael Mullaney of Quincy was head and shoulders above the competition in the 14-and-under group, averaging 7:00 per mile to finish in 21:42. Runner-up Jake Treanor of Scituate was a distant second in 25:43. Quincy's Chris Doyle clinched the bronze at 26:20.

On the women's side, the competition was tight and furious. Lisa Lynch ran 34:45 to cop the 70-98 division with Valerie Robertson of Weymouth taking second in 59:23. Elizabeth Mitchell of Weymouth ran 30:01 for the 60-69 division win, finishing comfortably ahead of runner-up Bonnie Singleton of Hingham (35:42). East Bridgewater's Eileen Barburto was close on Singleton's heals in 36:02.

Ann Marie Freeman of Milton ran 27:53 to take the 50-59 group and Barbara Canavan of Weymouth ran 30:34 for second. Quincy's Susan McPherson followed in third with her 31:10. Quincy's Carolyn Mullaney outdistanced Maura Page of Weymouth, 22:55 to 24:17 to win the 40-49 division. Weymouth's Anne Clogston posted a 26:53 to take the bronze medal.

Quincy's Cindy Kerins pushed hard to take the 30-39 competition in 23:42, just 11 seconds in front of Milton's Maureen Butler (23:53). Quincy's Nicole Crispo closed towards the end for a strong 24:14 third-place showing. Barbour was the big winner at 20-29, defeating the Quincy duo of Kate McNally (25:08) and Caitlin McCleary (25:57).

Quincy runners made a clean sweep of the 15-19 group as Danielle Mullaney (24:56), Briana Mullaney (24:57) and Loren Miller (26:12) all medaled. Emily and Julia Bryson went 1-2 in the 14-and-under group, and Emma Sullivan of Weymouth took third with a 26:34.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Personal matters claim a good deal of the Lamb's time in the early part of the week. But by midweek, pragmatic considerations (work, school, job-seeking, etc.) begin to take priority.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The seasonal shift ignites the Bovine's creative aspects. You could do well if you try to combine your penchant for innovation with the more pragmatic demands of the week.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Ideas come easily to you this week. And never mind that some might suggest they're unworkable and/or impractical. It's your vision that counts. Work them out and see what turns up.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Personal matters continue to dominate the early part of the week. By midweek, more workaday issues once again begin to emerge. Balance your time to give both the attention they need.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A new contact could provide an expanded opportunity. But be sure you get all the facts before you consider signing on. Ask questions, and be wary if you don't get the right answers.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An unexpected development could cause some supposedly resolved disagreements to reignite. Deal with the situation before it leads to some really serious problems.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A clash of work-linked viewpoints needs to be discussed openly, honestly and calmly by all concerned before it can impede progress on an ongoing project.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The Scorpion's pragmatic side helps you accept the possibility that a change of plans might be the wise thing to do. Be sure to weigh all your considerations carefully.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Some people might not take no for an answer. Never mind. Keep your resolve if you're sure you don't want to be involved in a potentially sticky situation.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) All other facts and figures aside, it's what you learn about potential colleagues that can be most helpful in assessing any decisions you're likely to make regarding a new project.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might want to reconsider some of your outside commitments if they continue to demand more time than you can spare. Be honest with yourself when making a decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Pay attention to that inner voice of Piscean wisdom counseling you to remove those rose-colored glasses and take an honest look at any decisions you might face this week.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a penchant for persuasion that would make you a fine candidate for a political career.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

While most people do not like to think about their own death or that a close family member, funeral pre-planning and pre-financing can ease possible problems associated with death. There are many reasons that people pre-plan their own funerals.

One of the most important is that pre-planning permits free choice. It makes one's wishes known; it eases the burden placed upon the family at a time when clear decisions may be difficult to make.

Pre-planning does away with any possible disagreement among the bereaved as to what to do and how much to spend. Pre-planning gives one a peace of mind in knowing arrangements have been made in advance.

If you have any questions concerning pre-planning, please feel free to contact us the Deware Funeral Home or stop in for consultation. We will answer all questions honestly and frankly and in the strictest of confidence. At no obligation, of course . . .

A Job Well Done

ald's. The driver and three others got into the car and picked up suspect #2 at McDonalds, but were told to wait for suspect #2's friend. As they sat expecting someone to come out of McDonald's, suspect #1 ran into the parking lot from the south (the business is located north of its parking lot) and got in the car.

The female said that she was pulled over by the Police instantly after exiting the parking lot. Officer Greg Mar informed Officer Church that he saw the two suspects running eastbound on West Squantum Street approximately one block from the location of the robbery. The victim was transported to that location and stated that one of the males was the one who threw him to the ground and took his IPOD.

He added that the other male was one of the suspects who came from across the street yelling at him to stay down. Based on available information, both suspects, ages 17 years old and Quincy residents, were placed under arrest for Unarmed Robbery. Officer Jimmy Whedbee also stopped two males in the area of Felton Street and Glover Street and they were wearing clothing matching the description given by the victim. The information was gathered from these males and forwarded to BCI for further investigation. Nice Work!

QUINCY POLICE/PROJECT LIFESAVER SAVES AUTISTIC BOY

On Wednesday, Sept. 8th, at approximately 4 p.m., a frantic mother called "911" to report that her 8 year old son, who is autistic and non verbal, walked away from their home in North Quincy. Fortunately, this child was part of the "Lifesaver" program, and had an electronic bracelet on.

Dispatcher Carol Flynn and Officer Roger White, both trained in the program, activated the search.

As Officer White organized the search perimeter, Dispatcher Flynn, knowing that autistic children are drawn to water, drove northbound on Quincy Shore Drive with the tracking device on, then picked up a signal. Officers Bill Lanergan and Steve Kelly were dispatched to the area.

An off duty Quincy Police Officer, notified because he was trained in Lifesaver, spotted the child approximately 100 yards out in the ocean and notified Dispatch to send the Police Department's Marine Unit as he made his way out to the victim. The officer was able to approach the child and carry him back to shore, where Fallon Ambulance EMTs' examined him and released him to his mother. Once the child was reported missing, it took 14 minutes to locate him. Without this program, the outcome could have been much different!

WHAT IS PROJECT LIFESAVER? This is a program offered by the Quincy Police to citizens of all ages who require 24 hour monitoring and may have a tendency to walk away from home, etc.

An electronic tracking device is attached to the client's arm or leg. If that person goes missing, the caregiver immediately contacts the Police Department, who set up a perimeter, then activate the frequency for the tracking equipment to locate the client.

For more information about Project Lifesaver, contact Dispatcher Carol Flynn at 617-479-1212 between 4 p.m. and midnight.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days, and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. E.K. 9/16 towns in the Norfolk-Plymouth District which - besides Quincy - consists of eight precincts in Braintree and the towns of Holbrook, Abington and Rockland. Tobin, for example, defeated Keenan by 84 votes in Braintree (1,676 to 1,592). But Keenan's hefty Quincy vote turned out to be insurmountable.

Keating, Perry, Morrissey, Keenan, Chan Nominated

Keenan will face Republican Dan Dewey of Squantum and Independent Laura Innis in the Nov. 2 election.

In the Democratic contest for State Representative in the 2nd Norfolk District, Tackey Chan of 66 Meadowbrook Rd., Quincy, defeated Joseph Keegan of 21 Moreland Rd. to secure his party's nomination. Chan won by 112 votes – 2,684 to 2,572.

Chan, a former assistant attorney general making his political debut, will face Republican John Iredale, 200 Rock Island Rd., and Independent Karl Roos, 8 Park St. in the final election Nov. 2.

The turnout in Quincy was lighter than expected as only 28.43 percent of the city's 54,519 registered voters went to the polls. Turnout here was still stronger than in other South Shore communities.

Election officials stressed that numbers released to The Sun were unofficial as the paper went to press late Tuesday night. Tabulating election returns was compounded by a flurry of write-in ballots, notably for former Quincy city councillor Timothy Cahill who is running for governor as an Independent.

Cahill's and the names of other Independent candidates did not appear on any ballot Tuesday because it was a primary for Republican, Democratic and Libertarian parties.

In the race to replace retiring U.S. Rep. William Delahunt in the 10th Congressional District, Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating of Quincy and State Rep. Jeff Perry of Sandwich won Quincy enroute to securing the Democratic and Republican nominations respectively. Keating and Perry advance to the Nov. 2 final election against three Independents: former Quincy Mayor James Sheets; former state representative Maryanne Lewis of Scituate and Joe Van Ness of Martha's Vineyard.

In the Democratic primary, Keating cruised past O'Leary in Quincy, receiving 8,795 votes to O'Leary's 2,237.

In the GOP primary, Perry finished first here with 1,464 votes. Former state treasurer Joseph Malone was second with 1,118 followed by Raymond Kasperowicz of Cohasset with 282 and Robert E. Hayden, III with 242.

Two Republican candidates also ran sticker campaigns to secure the GOP nomination for state attorney general. James McKenna and Guy Carbone needed to obtain at least 10,000 write-in votes state-wide to appear on the ballot opposing Martha Coakley in the Nov. 2 election. If either received 10,000 votes, then the write-in candidate with the most would be on the ballot.

Results from the state contested and local uncontested races will appear in next week's Quincy Sun.

WELCOME TO QUINCY – Principal Catherine Cameron and Cardinal Sean O'Malley visit the pre-school class of teacher Joan Dunn at the recently-opened Quincy Catholic Academy, the city's newest parochial school. 4% To 12% Hike In Occupancy

Business Up At Local Hotels, Motel

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The city's two hotels and one motel have experienced more business this year than last, according to City Auditor Susan O'Connor.

O'Connor told city councillors Monday that hotel managers reported occupancy increases ranging from four percent to 12% so far this year over last year's occupancy.

"I have spoken with each establishment in the City of Quincy and revenues are up from last year which is a good sign," said O'Connor.

However, O'Connor stressed that the same managers reported that last year's tallies represented one of the most disappointing records so every increase is a boon.

O'Connor addressed councillors with a report on revenues from the Hotel/Motel room occupancy tax designated for Open Space and Recreation.

The Hotel/Motel tax established in 2001 offers cities and towns the option of collecting taxes of up to 6% of the payment for each occupancy.

Of those funds, the municipalities can spend 85% only for Open Space as defined under the statute and 15% for promotion of tourism and historic preservation projects.

The city adopted new regulations last fall allowing a hike in the room occupancy tax from 4% to 6%.

As requested by the councillors, O'Connor's report and projections on the finances focused only on the 85% of those funds available for Open Space.

Her charts depict the payments still due on the $10 million bond the city executed in 2003 for the purchase of open space, such as Avalon Estates. That $10 million bond debt will be paid off in 2025.

O'Connor stated that her estimates were "based on my conservative assumptions of 75% projected revenue and 2% annual growth."

"It is my assumption that at the end of this Fiscal Year, based on four quarters being posted, the city should have generated more revenue than the actual debt payment which is due this year," O'Connor stated in

McLaughlin Retiring As City Library Director

Library Director Ann McLaughlin will retire at the end of January after serving 40 years in the city's library system. McLaughlin informed Library Trustees at their Sept. 18 meeting.

During her 17 years leading the library, McLaughlin oversaw the renovation and expansion of the main library, Thomas Crane Library, Washington St., Quincy Center.

According to library sources, the $16 million addition was completed in 2001 under former Mayor James Sheets and added 42,500 square feet of space to the historic structure which has been ranked as one of the most beautiful libraries in the country.

ANN McLAUGHLIN

McLaughlin has said that seeing the addition completed was one of the high points of her career, but she's very, very proud of the library's 25-year-old literacy program. She graduated from Simmons College, where she also earned her Master's degree in library science.

The Library Board of Trustees will begin a search for her replacement and recommend a finalist to the mayor.

Prescription Drug Disposal Day At Police Headquarters

The Quincy Drug Task Force, in conjunction with the Drug Enforcement Agency, will host a 'Prescription Drug Disposal Day' Saturday, Sept. 25th, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Quincy Police Headquarters, 1 Sea St., Quincy.

Cities and towns across the country will be taking part in this first-of-its-kind national initiative.

In Quincy, the Drug Task Force will be participating in this event for the third time. The issue of prescription drugs being used by young people in their homes is an issue the Task Force had discussed at its earliest meetings.

"I am delighted that the DEA is approaching this problem with the same intensity that the Task Force has shown for the past two years," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "This type of collaboration can only serve as a positive development in our fight against substance abuse."

Officials said the initiative addresses a vital public safety and public health issue. Many Americans are not aware that medicines that languish in home cabinets are highly susceptible to diversion, misuse, and abuse.

Rates of prescription drug abuse in the U.S. are increasing at alarming rates, as are the number of accidental poisonings and overdoses due to these drugs. Studies show that a majority of abused prescription drugs are obtained from family and friends, including from the home medicine cabinet. In addition, many Americans do not know how to properly dispose of their unused medicine, often flushing them down the toilet or throwing them away – both potential safety and health hazards.

"The National Prescription Drug Take-Back campaign will provide a safe way for Americans to dispose of their unwanted prescription drugs," said Michele M. Leonhart, Acting Administrator of the Drug Enforcement Administration. "This effort symbolizes DEA's commitment to halting the disturbing rise in addiction caused by their misuse and abuse. Working

State's Archeology Month Will Kick Off At Quincy's Lyons Turning Mill

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Lyons Turning Mill has been called Quincy's Stonehenge for the stately skeleton of a building that remains from the city's heyday as the premier destination for the finest granite.

Now a tour inside the building and around the site is planned for the public.

Next week on Saturday, Oct. 2, the Turning Mill will get wider attention as officials kick off the state's 2010 Archeology Month at the mill on Quarry Hills Drive, off Ricciuti Drive. Rain date is Saturday, Oct. 23.

From 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., guides will offer visitors information on the artifacts on display as well as descriptions of the original building and its machinery. Old photographs of workers and the mill will also be shown.

The Turning Mill is listed on both the National and state Registries of Historic Sites as mill workers polished columns and blocks for courthouses and banks across the country.

Brian McNiff, spokesman for the project, said archeology month is intended "to highlight the archeology treasures in the state."

The Turning Mill is also the site proposed for the Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum, according to Al Bina, chairman of the group which has over 150 members from Portland, ME to Philadelphia.

"We are going to have an archaeological dig of the area," Bina said of plans for the site. The Massachusetts Historical Commission has required the dig before the group can proceed with building the museum.

The Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum group will hold an open meeting for members and the public Wednesday Oct. 6 at 7p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

Quincy Historian Tom Galvin will offer a presentation on the Turning Mill and granite industry with photographs and documents.

In addition, Bina will offer an update on the museum project and preservation efforts.

Bina said the museum group is moving ahead with a preservation and restoration project for the turning mill, thanks to last year's $100,000 grant through the Community Preservation Act and previous awards of $20,000.

The group has begun advertising bids for the first phase which targets protecting the property.

Bina said his photographs on the group's web site attract considerable attention, particularly for film-makers and even photographers locally. Oftentimes, brides having their reception at Granite Links have their photographs taken at the turning mill.

LYONS TURNING MILL in West Quincy will be the site of the state's kick-off of Archeology Month Saturday, Oct. 2. Tours of the building and site will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Faxon Park, Souther Tide Mill

Projects Underway To Enhance Park, Historic Landmark

Funds are available and the city is moving forward on the master plan for Faxon Park and for developing a master plan for the Souther Tide Mill site, according to city officials.

Addressing city council Monday night, Chris Walker, spokesman for Mayor Thomas Koch, described recent improvements to the Souther Tide Mill and future plans for the site while Kristen Powers, Park Director, said engineering specifications to repair the stone wall at Faxon Park should be completed next month.

Walker said that workers recently repaired and reinforced the historic tide mill located off Southern Artery, thanks to a $50,000 gift from contractor Jay Cashman and some of the $130,000 in Community Preservation funds.

The work should protect the century-old structure while officials review responses to the city's Request for Proposals (RFP) for its future. Responses to the RFP are due Tuesday, Oct. 28.

The RFP specifically excludes the abutting city-owned property eyed for a dock for recreational boating and licensed to Thayer Academy in 2009.

In 2009, councilors challenged that license which, if legal, would be in effect in perpetuity in return for Thayer's investment of $250,000 in the dock site and access.

Walker stated that state environmental officials are still reviewing the Thayer Academy plan and, also, informed councillors that the mayor will appoint a commission to develop a master plan for the tide mill site this week.

On Tuesday, Walker said that no action or review had been taken on the council's questions regarding the license issued to Thayer Academy.

Faxon Park

Powers reported that Park Planning Associates, a consulting firm, is finalizing its study of the stone wall marking the perimeters of Faxon Park and that bids for repairs to the stone wall could be advertised in October.

That study and some repairs will be funded through a $200,000 grant earmarked for Faxon Park this year by the Community Preservation Committee, according to Powers who said early estimates indicate repairs will cost $30 to $40 a square foot.

Powers said the grant would not cover the nearly mile-long stonewall built in the 1940's under WPA (Work Projects Administration) enacted under President Franklin Roosevelt.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi said the CPC's grant and work on the wall show, "We are taking repairs of the park seriously."

Phase 1 of the stone wall repair will begin at the entrance off Quincy Avenue and ranks as the first step in developing the master plan for the 88-acre Faxon Park.

Water Meter Replacement and Automated Meter Reading System Project

Information for Residents

The Quincy Department of Public Works is updating 24,000 water meters throughout the city. The project includes the replacement of both the water meters and external reading system. The completed project will greatly improve the reliability and accuracy of water meter reading operations and will increase the efficiency of the DPW. The city has contracted with Easton Winwater Services, who will be performing the installations. Easton WinWater Services will need access to each water customer's house or business for this work. Please be aware that Easton WinWater Services will contact customers directly via U.S. mail. Residents of Quincy are reminded not to respond to unsolicited phone calls or home visits. All personnel installing water meters are issued identification and will arrive in uniform and in marked vehicles. A link to names and pictures of each installer can be found on the DPW website. If you believe you have been contacted by someone other than Easton Winwater or the city, please call the Quincy Police Department at 617-479-1212.

The meter replacement work will begin in September in the North Quincy/Squantum area, and will progress throughout the city by water meter reading route over the course of a two-year period. There is a systematic implementation plan for this project and therefore customers are asked to not contact Easton Winwater Service or Public Works for their meter replacement until they have received a notification letter from Easton Winwater. For a current update on this program please visit the DPW website at http://www.quincyma.gov/Government/PWD/WaterMeterRepacement.cfm

THE WATCH AS ART

Some men are no less passionate about wristwatches than women are about diamonds. Most men have a watch for work and a watch for play, and many have specific timepieces for hobbies and outdoor pursuits in between. Some men collect watches in the way that art collectors go after French-Impressionist paintings. In fact, some watches are equally valuable. Recently, a Swiss museum paid nearly $6 million for a gold watch. This was not just any gold watch, of course. It was a yellow-gold Patek Philippe perpetual calendar chronograph wristwatch. The timepiece produced by the independent Swiss watchmaker was made in 1943-44 and features an avant-garde case design that led some to hail it as the "Mona Lisa of all watches."

Whether your taste in watches leans toward contemporary or traditional, sporty or fun, or casual or dressy, we know you'll find something to suit your style at our jewelry store. Our designs are innovative and our craftsmanship flawless. And we know our sales personnel are sure to please because we believe in old-fashioned personal service. Third Generation To Serve As Executive Director

Son Brian Succeeds Father Paul Baharian At 1000 Southern Artery

PAUL BAHARIAN DAY is Friday. Councillors Michael McFarland (left) and Daniel Raymondi, Ward 2, (right) salute Paul Baharian for his 27 years as executive director of the senior housing facility, 1000 Southern Artery. Baharian stepped down after serving 27 years. He succeeded his father Bedros, who retired in 1983. His son, Brian, is the current director.

Friday will be "Paul Baharian Day" in Quincy to honor the former Executive Director of the senior housing facility at 1000 Southern Artery, the residence for some 700 senior citizens.

Baharian who served 27 years as director of the facility will be honored Friday at a reception at Southern Artery. He retired Sept. 1, but will continue as a member of the Board of Directors.

Paul's son, Brian Baharian, has been appointed to fill the position. Brian will be the third generation of his family to fill the position originally held by his grandfather Bedros Baharian, one of the founders. The facility, built in the 1960's, is the second oldest senior housing complex in the state.

City Councillors designated "Paul Baharian Day" during this week's ceremony honoring him for his dedication to the senior housing facility.

Nearly a dozen staffers from 1000 Southern Artery applauded as Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi presented the commendation in council chambers.

Councillor Michael McFarland joined Raymondi in praising Paul Baharian's contributions and friendship.

"Paul shared his father's vision of providing safe and quality affordable housing for seniors under the sponsorship of Quincy Point Congregational Church, " said Raymondi.

Raymondi cited Paul Baharian's leadership, and compassion and, also, his sound management skills stating that he "leaves 1000 Southern Artery with a solid financial foundation, with services and programs that enhance the quality of life for all of our seniors and with the knowledge that he has carried on the legacy of his father in providing a home for thousands at 1000 Southern Artery."

A 1963 graduate of North Quincy High School, Paul Baharian succeeded his father Bedros who retired in 1983. Prior to that, he had worked at South Shore Bank for 16 years.

During his retirement Paul Baharian and his wife Bonnie will split their time between Florida and Quincy.

Their son and the new director, Brian, has spent the last 10 years managing private housing in New Hampshire. He lives in Weymouth with his wife and children.

A graduate of the UMass, Boston, Brian Baharian holds professional designations as a CAM (Certified Apartment Manager) and ARM (Accredited Residential Manager) from the National Apartment Association.

The 1000 Southern Artery complex has 641 apartments located in three buildings. Buildings are interconnected. The first residents moved in during April 1966.

Quincy Key In Primary Victories

So goes Quincy, so go the districts and the state?

You could say that judging by the results from last Tuesday's state Democratic and Republican primaries.

In each and every contested race, the overall winner won Quincy. That's true for Norfolk County District Attorney, Norfolk-Plymouth District Senate seat, 10th Congressional District and several state-wide races.

If you want to win . . . win Quincy.

Two glaring examples from Tuesday's Democratic primary: the race for Norfolk County district attorney and State Senate in the Plymouth-Norfolk District.

Both winners for their party's nomination – Democrats Michael Morrissey and John Keenan – can point to Quincy as the main factor in their victories.

MORRISSEY

Morrissey, a Quincy veteran legislator who has served on Beacon Hill since winning a House seat at the age of 22 in 1976, was the winner in a three-way race for the Democratic nomination for district attorney. Morrissey polled 25,388 total votes, defeating his nearest competitor, Braintree State Rep. Joseph Driscoll by 5,498 votes. Finishing a distant third was Milton attorney Michael Chinman.

There are 28 municipalities in Norfolk County, including Quincy. Morrissey won 10; Driscoll 17 and Chinman one (his hometown of Milton). Morrissey pulled off a huge victory in Quincy, receiving 8,849 votes. Driscoll received a mere 1,697 votes here - a margin of 7,152.

That cushion was more than enough to help Morrissey offset Driscoll's pluralities in the 17 towns he won. Driscoll's biggest win came in his hometown of Braintree where he defeated Morrissey by 1,314 votes (3,299 to 1,985).

Other towns where Morrissey finished first: Avon, Bellingham, Canton, Cohasset, Dover, Foxboro, Needham, Sharon, and Weymouth where he won by 623 votes.

Driscoll's win column included Brookline, Dedham, Franklin, Holbrook, Medfield, Medway, Millis, Norfolk, Norwell, Plainville, Randolph, Stoughton, Walpole, Wellesley, Westwood and Wrentham.

Chinman won only Milton - 68 votes more than Morrissey.

On a smaller but just-as-important scale, Quincy was the X-factor in the race for the Democratic nomination for State Senate in the Plymouth-Norfolk District. The district comprises all of Quincy, the towns of Holbrook, Abington and Rockland and eight precincts in Braintree.

KEENAN

If this race were a golf competition by match play, State Rep. Stephen Arthur Tobin would have defeated City Councillor John Keenan. Tobin took Holbrook, Abington, Rockland and Braintree. Keenan won only Quincy. But in politics, you win by total votes – not the number of municipalities.

And Keenan won the biggest prize in the district – Quincy – by 2,130 votes. Keenan's vote here was 6,669 to Tobin's 4,539. That surge carried Keenan to a 1,395-vote victory in the district. The raw vote district-wide was 9,535 for Keenan; 8,140 for Tobin.

Here's how the rest of the district broke down by vote:

Avon: Tobin 574, Keenan 430.

Braintree: (8 precincts): Tobin: 1,676, Keenan 1,592.

Holbook: Tobin: 622, Keenan 310.

Rockland: Tobin 729, Keenan 534.

Keenan faces Republican Dan Dewey of Squantum and Independent Laura Innis of Quincy in the final election Nov. 2.

HERE'S A LIST of the other winners in last Tuesday's contested races, the Quincy vote and final vote:

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY

• Congress, 10th District: William Keating, 8,795 votes; Robert O'Leary, 2,237 votes. Keating won the nomination by 800 votes (28,617 to 27,817).

• State Auditor: Suzanne Bump, 4,334 votes; Guy Glodis, 3,685 votes, Mike Lake, 1,946 votes. Bump won the nomination - the total state-wide vote was not available at press-time).

• State Treasurer: Stephen Grossman, 5,896 votes; Steve Murphy 4,300 votes. Grossman won the nomination - total state-wide vote unavailable at press time.)

REPUBLICAN PRIMARY

• Congress, 10th District: Jeff Perry 1,464; Joseph Malone, 1,118; Raymond Kasperowicz, 282 and Robert Hayden, 242 votes. Perry won the nomination by 16,486 votes over second-place Malone (31,361 to 14,875. Hayden was third with 2,314, Kasperowicz fourth with 2,101.)

• State Auditor: Mary Connaughton, 2,444 votes; Kamal Jain, 240 votes. Connaughton won the nomination. Total state-wide vote unavailable at press time.)

EVEN THOUGH his name was not on any ballot last Tuesday, Tim Cahill was on plenty of voters' minds as they went to the polls for the state primaries.

CAHILL

Cahill, the two-term state treasurer who is running for governor as an Independent, received more than 800 write-in votes in Quincy, according to City Clerk Joseph Shea.

Cahill, as an Independent, has already qualified for the Nov. 2 general election by collecting signatures. Independent candidates do not go through a Primary process like Democrats and Republicans.

But that didn't stop a significant number of Primary voters from expressing their support for the former city councillor's campaign for the state's highest elective office.

According to Shea, Cahill – who switched from the Democratic party to unerolled last year – received 758 write-in votes in the Democratic primary here and another 80 write-ins on Republican ballots for a total of 838.

Shea said he was unsure the Cahill write-ins are a record here but added it's the best showing for write-ins since the 2000 presidential primary when Republican candidate John McCain received a high number of write-ins on the Democratic ballot.

In case you're wondering, GOP gubernatorial candidate Charlie Baker received 67 write-ins in last week's Democratic primary; Green-Rainbow Party candidate Jill Stein 19 on the Democratic ballot; and Deval Patrick 7 write-ins on the Republican ballot.

THE 2011 CITY ELECTION cycle is still a year away but it appears a familiar name will launch a bid for councillor at-large soon.

DAVIS

Jay Davis, who served three terms as Ward 4 city councillor before being unseated by Brian Palmucci last fall, says he will campaign for one of the three at-large seats on the City Council next year.

Davis, whose tenure as Ward 4 councillor include two years as City Council president, says he will kick-off his candidacy later this fall.

"I am frustrated by the lack of leadership on city-wide issues including economic development, education and public safety. I'm upset at the direction our city is heading into," Davis says. "I want to address issues all over the city."

Davis says he will run at-large even if there is not an open seat. A seat could become vacant if Councillor John Keenan is elected state senator. However, even if Keenan wins the senate race, he could decide to keep his councillor at-large seat.

NORFOLK COUNTY SHERIFF Michael Bellotti will officially kick off his re-election bid tonight (Thursday) from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St.

Music will be provided by D.J. Mark McGillicuddy.

Refreshments will be served.

Suggested donation is $20.

DEWEY

DAN DEWEY, Republican candidate for State Senate, will host a Septemberfest Thursday, Sept. 30 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at The Irish Pub, 51 Billings Rd., North Quincy. Suggested donation is $20.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN early 1920's postcard view of the Walker-Barlow Drug Store in Wollaston. The store was in the corner of this building that was in what was called Depot Square off Beale Street next to the Wollaston railroad depot. Upon the death of its owner in 1925, a young Howard D. Johnson bought the business that was basically a lunchroom with a soda fountain also selling newspapers, sundries and cigars to railroad patrons. Johnson focused on selling a rich creamy ice cream that he purchased locally and it soon became his most popular product. In 1928 he opened a seasonal ice cream stand on Wollaston Beach and in 1929 he opened his first full menu restaurant in the new Granite Trust Building in Quincy Square. The rest is history. This store remained open until the late 1960's when the property was taken for the MBTA's Wollaston Red Line Station parking lot. A granite marker on Beale Street marks the location of this first Howard Johnson's store. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Major Delay Averted In MBTA Extension

(Editor's Note: The stories for this column were gleaned from the first edition of The Quincy Sun.)

By FRANK McCAULEY

This Week
1968
42 Years Ago

A threatened potential year and a half delay in the MBTA extension to Quincy has been averted and 22 North Quincy homes spared from demolition.

Mayor James R. McIntyre disclosed that the planned North Quincy transit station will be relocated 350 feet, preventing an ominous "long term" construction snag and the taking of the homes.

But, despite the development, the mayor does not expect trains to be running to Quincy until early 1970, mainly because of a construction slow-down caused by the ironworkers' strike. MBTA General Manager Leo Cusik had predicted the Quincy line would be in operation by Christmas 1969.

PEAK ENROLLMENT AT JUNIOR COLLEGE

Quincy Junior College has reached another milestone in its 10-year history with a fall total record enrollment of 1,687 students.

The figure announced by President Kenneth P. White is 122 students higher than last year's.

The growth the school has undergone in just a decade is shown by the comparison of this figure with the first enrollment in September 1958. Total students that opening year – 35!

The college, keeping pace with its growth, now has three deans assisting White. They are Hugo Saluti, Joseph J. Fluhr and Richard Mula.

Star Of Sea Church A 'Lose-Lose' Situation

As a former North Quincy resident who lived inside Sacred Heart Parish, I have been watching from a distance over the past couple of years the struggle faced by Catholics living in Squantum. When the archdiocese announced in 2004 that Star of the Sea would be merging with Sacred Heart Parish in North Quincy and the Squantum church to be shuttered, I was glad to see Catholics refuse to be passive sheep.

Squantum Catholics did not give up and eventually got the archdiocese to allow on Sunday Mass a week. However, parishioners appealed the closing but on Sunday, Sept. 5 at their noon Mass, they were told basically Star of the Sea was to be no more and that they could go to Sacred Heart for Mass.

Once again, the faithful in Squantum didn't retreat and are now being forced to hold noontime prayer services on Sundays in front of their church taken away from them.

I can identify with their cause, as I have been a member of the Mount Carmel group in East Boston who has been in vigil since Oct. 12, 2004. Each Sunday we attend a communion service at Our Lady of Mt. Carmel and hoping for the day that the archdiocese will reopen this church, which was built over 100 years ago by Italian Catholic immigrants. We stand together with parishioners of Star of the Sea. Their fight is our fight. Too bad the archdiocese continues to play hardball with Catholics in the pews because the harder they play, the emptier the pews. In the end it is a lose-lose situation for all concerned.

The Catholic Church in America reached a tipping point back in 2002 when the media uncovered the sex scandal. Catholics were shocked and the credibility of the Catholic Church sunk in the eyes of many Catholics. Good luck to Star of the Sea Catholics from Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Survivors Group in East Boston.

Grateful For The Folks In The Community

I just want to take this opportunity to thank some of the folks that make you glad you live in Quincy.

The "Independence Laundry," that advertises in your paper, for the excellent service they perform for a very reasonable price. And Free pick-up and delivery and a perfect job to boot. And nice, nice people.

The South Coastal Bank for having a free "shredding day." What a blessing. The Brinks gentleman who took my giant box of old etc., etc., etc. out of my trunk so quick, so easy, the young woman, who works for South Coastal who gave me water and some school supplies for my great-granddaughter and she acted like it was fun to help me.

The teller and workers at the Colonial Federal Bank (you know the one on Beach Street, the "Cheers" of banking – "where everyone knows your name." So nice. Now that's a real treat.

So, I am so glad to have the opportunity to meet these people; it gives you hope that things aren't as bad as they seem.

Please let's not start a campaign to learn to "hate" another group of our fellow men!

Vote.

Community Collaboration To Mark ENC's Production Of Seussical

The magical world of Dr. Seuss will soon musically come to life in Quincy, as the Eastern Nazarene College Theatre Department and members of the local community present Seussical the Musical.

Based on the beloved children's story Horton Hears a Who and other classic Dr. Seuss works, the musical will be presented at ENC's Cove Fine Arts Center Thursday, Oct. 14 at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 16 at 4 p.m. and 7:30 p.m., and Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 21-23 at 7:30 p.m.

In addition to featuring ENC students in the cast, the production will include 10 local children. Local adults will also join ENC students and professors in performing with the show's orchestra.

"ENC's mission behind this production has been to truly make it a collaboration between the college and the Quincy community," Director Tara Brooke Watkins said. "Through the very framework of the casting choices, we hope to send the Seuss-like message that there is a place for everyone in this world."

For the first time, Watkins noted, an ENC student has been given the key role of music director for the production, with student Michael Amaral overseeing the production's combined ENC/community orchestra. ENC Prof. Michael Ballard, meanwhile, is the musical's set designer.

A 2002 graduate of Eastern Nazarene, Watkins has served as artistic director at Riverside Theatre Works in Boston for the past six years. Her directing credits include The Importance of Being Earnest, No Exit, Big River, The Music Man, Peter Pan, The Trojan Women, 42nd Street and more. She has also worked at Plimoth Plantation, where she portrayed a pilgrim.

Tickets for Seussical the Musical are $15 general admission, $10 for ENC faculty/staff and outside students, and $7 for ENC students and children 12 and under.

After 26 Years Working In Cafeteria

Kay Mahoney Retires From B.C. High School

KAY MAHONEY

Kay Mahoney, of Quincy, a fixture in Boston College High School's student cafeteria for more than two decades, retired Sept. 10 after 26 years on the job.

In keeping with school custom, Kay received a standing ovation from the BC High community on her last day on the job. During both lunch periods, she stood on the bridge high above the cafeteria with Principal Stephen Hughes while scores of students and staff thanked her for her dedicated service to BC High.

Mahoney began her career in BC High's cafeteria when it was still located in the basement of McElroy Hall. For the last several years, she could be found stationed at a register, cashing out a steady stream of students each lunch period.

"Kay tells me that it is for the love of our students, their youth and energy that helps keep her young at heart. It will be different for us not having Kay on the last cash register," said Shaun Hubbard, BC High's director of food services. "Her work ethic and professionalism are an inspiration for all. She will be missed."

Gerald McCarthy Interns At Waltham District Court

Quincy Teen Participates In Summer Program For Blind And Visually Impaired

Gerald McCarthy, 18, of Quincy, spent much of his summer working at Waltham District Court as part of the Carroll Center for the Blind's 'The Real World of Work Experience' summer work program.

The Carroll Center for the Blind in Newton teaches newly-blind and visually impaired people of all age the skills training and education they need to live, learn and work independently.

Gerald began his paid internship at the courthouse on July 12th, where he operated the switchboard, greeted patrons, copied materials and observed actual court cases. Gerald worked three days a week for four weeks.

For many of the 10 students who participated in the Carroll Center's 'Real World' program, it was their first paid employment. The experience helped to reinforce the skills they learned at the Carroll Center which proved to be useful in the workforce. In addition to job skills, 'Real World' classes also focused on how to get along with your colleagues, the importance of reporting to work on time and the ability to accept helpful criticism from supervisors.

"It was a good experience for these young people," said program director Marianne Gilmore. "Every one of them felt welcomed and respected by their peers. They learned to rise to the occasion when asked to perform specific duties in the workplace because they fully understand that is what an employer expects from all their workers."

For more information about the Carroll Center for the Blind in Newton, and the 'Real World of Work Experience' program, call 617-969-6200.

Open House Saturday At Josiah Quincy House

Tours are on the hour; last tour starts at 4 p.m. Call 617-994-5930.

Built as a country estate in 1770, the Quincy House was surrounded by fields and pastures overlooking Quincy Bay. Its elegant architectural details befit the status of the man who built it, the Revolutionary War leader Colonel Josiah Quincy.

Among the houses unusual features is its "monitor" roof. From this prospect Col. Quincy had a clear view of Boston Harbor, where he watched troop movements during the Revolution. In 1775, he scratched "Governor Gage sail'd for England with a fair wind" into one of the windows of the monitor roof. That pane of glass was carefully preserved by the family, and is on display in the house today.

Much of the historical information pertaining to the house and Quincy family was documented in the early 1880s by Eliza Susan Quincy.

together with our state and local partners, the medical community, anti-drug coalitions, and a concerned public, we will eliminate a major source of abused prescription drugs, and reduce the hazard they pose to our families and communities in a safe, legal, and environmentally sound way."

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

'Smoke Alarms: A Sound You Can Live With!'

"Smoke Alarms: A Sound You Can Live With!" is the NFPA's official theme for Fire Prevention Week, which is this October 3rd through the 9TH. The NFPA has been the official sponsor of this observance for nearly 90 years, while reemphasis has its place with such an important subject as smoke detectors and their positive impact on our welfare as indicated by statistics.

As a brief review, this week was established to commemorate the Great Chicago Fire, a conflagration that killed more than 250 people in October 1871. The fire began on the 8TH, while much of the damage was sustained on the 9TH; 100,000 were left homeless while the fire destroyed more than 17,400 structures.

In 1920, President Woodrow Wilson issued the first National Fire Prevention Day proclamation, while October 9TH, the date of the worst sustained damage from this fire, is always within the dates of observance for this week. Fire Prevention Week is the longest running public health and safety observance on record. (taken from a NFPA Press Release)

This year's theme is meant to keep the focus on the positive impact of properly placed, working smoke detectors. As I have so often suggested, few think fire will ever happen to them, statistics however, indicate it can and we should be prepared for its occurrence. There's no better way to do so than having smoke detectors ready and waiting.

As I have hilited so frequently, they do save lives. The positive trend in statistics is a good indication of that fact. The presence of smoke alarms slowly emerged within residences in the late "60's", early "70's" while fire death rates have been on the decline since then.

Smoke alarms, if properly located and maintained, can provide the early notification needed to evacuate a home in a timely manner. Having time to do so is essential. The heat, smoke, noxious fumes, obscuration and confusion that can result from a smoke filled room or home can severely hamper timely evacuation decisions. Correct decisions are essential for survival. Smoke alarms can afford that time if properly located and maintained.

Fire Prevention Week is a great time to embrace the fire prevention message overall, recommitting yourself towards your own welfare. Where fire death rates have declined so, statistics validate the benefits of working smoke alarms and a healthy fire prevention outlook. With relatively little effort, we can take steps to minimize the occurrence of fire within our homes and substantially increase our chances of survival in the event a fire occurs. Therefore, kindly use Fire Prevention Week as a reminder to dedicate time and effort toward a safer household. Thank you for doing so.

Koch Will Not Appeal Decision On Turowski

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Mayor Thomas Koch will not appeal the Civil Service Commission finding last month that former Mayor William Phelan and former Police Chief Robert Crowley denied Police Sgt. Paul Turowski a promotion in 2005 due to political influence.

According to City Solicitor James Timmins, Koch cited an earlier January Civil Service decision regarding Police Sgt. Edward Kusser who won a similar appeal by the Civil Service Commission last January.

Both men charged they were denied promotions during Mayor William Phelan's term so that favorites or relatives of the sitting mayor could be promoted.

Referring to the Turowski decision, Timmins said he saw "no possible basis to appeal that decision."

Timmins said different persons serving on the Civil Service Commission reached the two decisions. He told City Council Monday that both police officers appeared to be denied promotions and were "caught by the same issues."

Sgt. PAUL TUROWSKI

Contacted Tuesday, Former Chief Crowley stated that the city's legal team offered a lackluster defense and didn't even try to win either case.

In a formal statement, Crowley indicated the city's legal team offered little to no response to the charges.

His formal statement follows:

"The City of Quincy had a duty and responsibility to provide me with competent representation before the Civil Service Commission. It is my opinion that the city retreated from that obligation.

Crowley continued, "If one is to believe that my recommendations to bypass were based on personal retribution and not objective criteria, then nothing could be further from the truth. If any actions were personal, the culpability lies solely on the quality, or lack thereof, on the adequacy of the representation provided to me."

In the Turowski case, the commission voted 3-2 in favor of Turowski's appeal. With that decision, the city must place him at the top of any future Civil Service list for police lieutenant.

Lt. Kusser's case was decided last year. He was promoted in January to lieutenant.

According to Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, Kusser is expected to retire this spring. Raymondi suggested that Turowski be promoted to lieutenant as well.

Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest and Raymondi decried the politics they said denied promotions to Kusser and Turowski.

Laforest cited the favoritism and nepotism cited in the Civil Service Commission decisions.

Timmins did not discuss any monetary settlement between the city and Sgt. Turowski.

her written report.

According to her projections, the, revenue designated for Open Space will increase from $777,875 in fiscal year 2011 to over $1 million in fiscal year 2021.

During those years, the bond payment will be reduced from $825,206 this year to the final payment of $153,281 in 2025.

While the bond payment is dwindling, the leftover balance will increase from $403,677 to $5.5 million in 2025.

Those figures include receipts from President City Inn on Hancock Street which could be the site of a new middle school would offer no income.

O'Connor estimated that the total for Open Space would be reduced to just over $5 million without the income from President City Inn.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi asked what kind of open space, park and recreation projects could be funded through the 85% revenue of the Hotel/Motel tax.

O'Connor said the statute defines environmental projects, such as sea walls; the purchase of open space and improvements to parks and recreation facilities.

However, she said it is possible that the funds could be for tree planting, maintenance and protection of open space and parks.

O'Brien's Bakery Serving Up Treats At New West Quincy Location

By JOE REARDON

A Quincy institution may be in a different location, but there's little doubt its strong following will continue.

When O'Brien's Bakery moved from its Beale Street location in 2008, it began Brian Jackle's nearly two-year odyssey to secure a new setting that would fill the needs of a bakery that had, for more than 60 years, churned out a mind-boggling array of treats.

Jackle's quest finally came to an end when he secured a spot for the iconic bakery on 11 Vernon St. in West Quincy in a building that once served as a dry cleaner. The location couldn't have been better. With more than 3,000-square feet, far more room than the Beale Street location, Jackle will be serving up various items including Swedish, soda and Irish breads, pastries, and made-to-order wedding cakes.

The bakery opened for business on Sept. 10 with the grand opening and ribbon cutting scheduled for Sept. 25. Customers called for cakes that read "O'Brien's Bakery Is Back."

"We make dog bones to wedding cakes and everything between," said Jackle with a laugh.

Jackle is ready to get back to work after completely gutting the building and installing a massive oven, that can hold up to 24 sheet pans at once. "I've been going crazy for a year and a half being unemployed," he said. "We've been pushing hard since mid April. I've been in here 12 hours a day."

The building is made up of three major sections; a store front, prep room and baking area. Jackle power washed the entire interior, laid the floor tiles and sheet rock. The only thing not done by the family was the plumbing and electrical work.

Once up and running in full production, O'Brien's will employee at least 20 individuals. They expect to expand into fancy desserts, to go along with the staple of butter cookies and half moons. There will also be lunch and some breakfast items on the menu.

Traditionally, the busiest holidays have been St. Patrick's Day where they sell up to 4,000 loaves of Irish bread, and Thanksgiving and Christmas where the number of pies hit 4,000 as well.

"We put out a lot for a little place," Jackle said.

Brian's mother, Muriel, is elated to get back to business and anxious to see both old and new customers. "I miss our customers," she said. "I hope they get back."

Muriel married into the bakery business 50 years ago and has been a part of it ever since. "This is what I know," she said.

The family originally had a bakery in Hyde Park, They moved to West Roxbury and Brockton before buying the bakery on Beale Street in 1996. Scott Jackle, Brian's brother, ran the business until he passed away in 2000. Brian, a cabinetmaker by trade, promised him that the bakery would live on.

"I know he's up there watching us," Brian said. "I promised him on his death bed to make a bakery that's one of the best around."

Estate Planning, Asset Protection, Other Topics For Seniors Oct. 5

Information vital to seniors and their families will be presented by a trio of experts at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, Tuesday, Oct. 5.

There will be two sessions – one at 2 p.m. and another at 7 p.m. Sponsored by Keohane Funeral and Cremation Service, Ron Kearns, Esq., Joe Reardon, and John Keohane will speak about key issues, including estate planning, asset protection, Veterans' benefits, preplanning funeral expenses, and options concerning cremation.

Anyone interested in learning about these essential elder care concerns is invited to attend this free seminar.

Kearns, an expert nurse attorney from the Senior Resource Center will discuss financial and legal strategies and requirements for effective estate planning and asset protection, including accessing Medicaid and Veterans' Funding benefits.

Reardon, CPC, a funeral director and Certified Pre-Planning Consultant, said those who are nearing or are in early retirement want to solidify their retirement plans and include funeral arrangements as part of their overall strategy.

"Getting started may be difficult because we are all procrastinators," Reardon said. "But when the advance plan is done, people tell me they are thrilled … it gives them a feeling of freedom. Later, when death occurs, the emphasis shifts from making arrangements to focusing on the person and the memorable experience the family can create to celebrate their loved one's life."

Keohane, funeral director and co-owner of Keohane Funeral and Cremation Service in Quincy will speak about the choices available today regarding cremation.

"One of the important things to remember is that choosing cremation does not limit your ceremonial choices in any way," Keohane said. "You can still memorialize your loved one in a manner that is personal and meaningful to you. This seminar is an opportunity to explore options in a comfortable setting. You will be able to relax with your neighbors, enjoy a cup of coffee and ask questions."

Keohane Funeral and Cremation Service is a full service firm with locations in Quincy, North Quincy and Hingham. To register for this free event, call Joe Reardon at 617-773-3551 or email joe@keohane.com.

Rice Eventide Home Expanding To South Weymouth

With more potential to serve senior citizens over the years than from its smaller location on Adams Street in Quincy, the William B. Rice Eventide home will be expanding its services at the SouthField on the former South Weymouth Naval Air Station sometime in 2013.

The senior community will be located on 9.4 acres of the SouthField area and include 192 independent living apartments and 46-skilled nursing beds.

Despite the move, Eventide Executive Director Joyce Haglund said Eventide would still like to stay in the city in some capacity. "I don't think I'm going out on a limb to say Eventide has been serving Quincy seniors for more than 80 years and would like to continue," said Haglund. "We've been in Quincy a long time and Eventide would like to remain a presence in the city. Obviously that would depend on a lot of things."

The new senior community is looking to restore the home's goal of providing the elderly with a broad spectrum of services across a continuum of care, to provide an enhanced physical environment for residents and staff, and to insure the long-term economic viability of Rice Eventide.

"We really need to expand our facility to remain competitive," said Haglund.

The facility will be located adjacent to new homes being built by Whitman Homes and by Interactive Building Group, with only a short walk to the South Weymouth commuter rail station. Rogerson Communities, a leading provider of senior housing and services for Greater Boston's elders, has been secured to contract the project. It is being designed locally by Sheskey Architects. Construction on the project is slated for 2012.

"We are delighted to have found a new location to grow Rice Eventide," said Haglund. "This vibrant new neighborhood will be great for our residents and staff."

Twice over a 20-year span, Eventide looked to change its zoning in Quincy to expand but weren't able. "This (moving) was not a decision that was taken lightly by the board," she said.

Eventide at SouthField will be a part of the new SouthField community that will include thoughtfully integrated residential, retail, commercial and recreational uses, all close to public transportation. "The addition of Eventide to SouthField is very welcomed," said Kevin Donovan, CEO of the Tritown Developmental Corporation. "They are a very experienced, not-for-profit with one of the best reputations in the state. They operate one of the finest nursing homes in the South Shore." Rice Eventide was included among U.S. News & World Report's 2010 "America's Best Nursing Homes."

Tickets Available For St. Mary's Church Dinner

Friends and parishioners of St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, will celebrate the 170th anniversary of the parish Saturday, Oct. 16, announces Rev. David Callahan, the church pastor.

St. Mary's parish was first established in the 1840's and became the "Mother Church of the South Shore" serving Abington, Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Milton, Randolph and Weymouth, according to Quincy's historians. The current granite church was built in the early 1900's through the efforts of many volunteers.

Fr. Callahan said a dinner and celebration will be held in the church hall after the 4 p.m. Saturday Mass Oct. 16.

Current and former parishioners and friends of the parish are welcome, according to Fr. Callahan who said the anniversary committee is seeking artifacts, old photographs of people, and parish events for a presentation.

Tickets are available at the rectory after Masses or by calling Joan Kavanaugh, 617-479-2673 or Mary Joyce, 617-471-0972.

★ ★ ★ On The Campaign Trail - State Election 2010 ★ ★ ★

With the campaign season underway for this fall's state election, The Quincy Sun will publish, from time to time and when space is available, press releases submitted from candidates and their committees. The Sun retains the right to edit releases for space purposes.

Independent Roos Calls On Democrat Chan, Republican Iredale To Debate

Karl Roos, Independent candidate for State Representative in the 2nd Norfolk District, has called on his Democratic and Republican challenges, Tackey Chan and John Iredale respectively, to debate.

Roos is calling for debates in open forums with the other candidates, noting that there were no debates or open forums during the Democratic primary.

Chan defeated Joseph Keegan for the Democratic nomination in last Tuesday's primary. Iredale was unopposed on the Republican ballot in the state primary.

"People should hear where we stand on the issues, what our ideas are for helping businesses create jobs, address taxes and spending, and identify our priorities with state government," Roos said. "Every voter should hear how our opinions and actions differ to make an informed decision."

"We should not rely on glossy mailings and advertisements to make voting decisions. We do not rely on those when choosing a doctor, dentist, or hiring anyone to work on our car or home.

"When we vote, we are hiring that person to represent our interests and those of our community. The person elected should use our tax dollars wisely and judiciously to accomplish the goals of the electorate and community."

Roos also noted he has not accepted any money from special interest groups, political action committees or lobbyists.

"While I respect these groups, their interests and their political activism, I want it to be clear that I am not beholden to any organized group. My obligations are one hundred percent to the constituents of the area I would represent, the 2nd Norfolk District.

"This has put my campaign and me, personally, at a huge financial disadvantage, but this only serves to clarify that I am relying entirely on the support of people, like myself, so that I can serve with a pure purpose and clear goals," Roos added.

Laura Innis Announces Independent Campaign For State Senator

Laura Innis of Quincy announces she is an Independent candidate for State Senate in the Plymouth-Norfolk District that includes Quincy.

This 4th of July, Independence Day, Innis received the 2010 Good Neighbor Award for her work to restore the beaches of Adams Shore. Her community service work was an opportunity to use professional skills to benefit her community. That experience convinced her she could do more for Quincy as a legislator.

Her 25 year career began at the Massachusetts State House and has provided excellent training to serve as state senator. A natural collaborator, one of her current roles is to bring the many programs of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health together to maximize resources and reduce duplication.

Innis said she believes that government needs to be more accountable and more creative.

"We need to stop raising property taxes and think out of the box to generate revenue for cities and towns. What's harming our communities the most is not the budget crisis, it's the allocation crisis." She said she wants communities to examine their assets and implement strategies to utilize those assets in a way that improves the quality of life for residents and helps fund municipal services.

A perfect example, Innis said, is Quincy's Souther Tide Mill. The historic site is located on premier waterfront land with significant income potential.

"This land is a goldmine and could generate revenue for the City of Quincy. Rather than giving it to Thayer or contracting with a private investor to profit, the city should make the money for our Parks and Recreation programs," Innis said.

"Contractors and residents are eager to volunteer their time and talents and much of this can be done for little money."

For many years a dedicated group has raised funds and designed plans for the area. Proposals included a Farmer's Market, outdoor concert gazebo and use of the waterway for recreation: walking, canoeing and kayaking in the beautiful Town River. Last year the city entered into an arrangement with Thayer Academy of Braintree outraging many who have championed the cause.

Recently, without public input the city posted a Request for Proposal (RFP) for the long term lease and development of the property. Innis expressed concern about the details of that lease.

"The Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) the city signed with Thayer waived or required the city to pay any permit fees. It also required taxpayers to pay for the lease or construction of trailers or buildings equipped with restrooms, telephone, power, water.

"The City of Quincy is responsible for significant funding to benefit a private school in another town. People have had enough of this type of sweetheart deal and need Government to work for us," Innis said.

The communities of Abington, Braintree, Holbrook, Quincy, and Rockland have many assets, Innis said.

"We have been fortunate to have benefited from the hard work of our parents and grandparents. It is time to reinvest in America. We need to put our ingenuity back to work."

Innis is the mother of two young children in the Quincy Public Schools. She said she is committed to making things better for the next generation.

Innis worked her way through Bridgewater State College and believes education is a good investment. She wants everyone to have a chance at higher education.

Innis said she believes libraries, fire stations and schools are an important part of the community.

"Our families need help. Health care, energy costs, food, the essentials, are much too expensive. Companies continue to reap record profits while we watch our incomes shrink.

"We pay more money for health care yet our population is less healthy. We can do better. No one who values education would have issued 230 teachers pink slips."

She said she is running as an Independent for State Senate in the Norfolk & Plymouth District "to ensure that our representation matches our shared priorities."

Republican Dewey Running For State Senate As A 'Reformer'

Dan Dewey, Republican candidate for State Senator in the Plymouth-Norfolk District which includes Quincy, said he is running as a reformer of state government.

Dewey, making his first bid for elective office, said if elected, he hopes his message of reform will resonate with voters frustrated with taxes and ethical lapses in the legislature.

Dewey's first exposure to public service was in the U.S. Marine Corps where he earned the rank of Sergeant and served in Vietnam. He holds a B.A. in Business and went on to earn an M.B.A. and a Masters in Criminal Justice from Anna Maria College.

Dewey says he wants to take his belief in public service to Beacon Hill, where he says, "It is in short supply."

"The leaders on Beacon Hill are very focused on climbing the ladder at the State House, but they forget the communities that elected them.

"We have watched the State Legislature raise our taxes, cut local aid funding, and offer state university tuition discounts to illegal immigrants. Nobody who has been in touch with the people of this district would support such an agenda."

Dewey raised his family in Quincy, and is a member of many civic organizations. Most recently he was Commander of the Quincy Veterans Council and Commandant of the Marine Corps League, William R. Caddy Detachment.

Keating Supports Federal Prescription Monitoring Program

Bill Keating, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 10th District, says he supports enactment of a nationwide federal prescription drug monitoring program to address the nation's mounting crisis of prescription drug abuse.

"People are overdosing and dying every day from prescription drug abuse," Keating said. "We need to crack down on 'doctor shopping' and prevent easy access to dangerous drugs like OxyContin to the residents of Cape Cod and the rest of this district. That is why I support federal efforts to crack down on prescription drug abuse, including online purchases."

A Prescription Drug Caucus Congressional Forum was held Wednesday in Washington to discuss the prescription drug abuse crisis facing our nation.

One proposal would model Massachusetts law and create a nationwide federal prescription drug monitoring program that will prevent abusers and doctors from filling multiple prescriptions.

Members of the caucus also discussed implementing laws and regulations that promote proper disposal of prescription drugs.

Keating, a former state senator and current Norfolk County District Attorney, said he has shown a strong dedication to battling prescription drug abuse. Keating said he helped to fund the startup of Learn2Cope.org, a support group for parents and family members dealing with loved ones addicted to drugs. It was financed, in part, with confiscated drug money.

"This is a tremendous problem plaguing the Commonwealth," said Joanne Peterson, founder of a parents support organization.

"This is a silent epidemic in Massachusetts and it is vital that the Congress support programs like Learn2Cope and our efforts to end prescription drug abuse," Peterson added.

McCauley Endorses Perry For Congress In 10th District

Former Quincy Mayor Francis X. McCauley has endorsed Jeff Perry for Congress in the race for the 10th congressional district.

McCauley, who served four terms as Quincy's mayor, said Perry possesses the right combination of skills and experience to represent the residents of the 10th district, which stretches from Quincy to the Cape and Islands.

"As a four-term state legislator, Jeff Perry has been a fiscal watchdog on Beacon Hill, fighting for lower taxes and reduced government spending," McCauley said. "We need Jeff Perry in Washington to fight against the big-government mindset that has sent our national debt skyrocketing in just 18 months under the Obama administration."

McCauley said Perry's election could help restore the balance of power, enabling Congress to remove Nancy Pelosi as Speaker of the House.

"A vote for Jeff Perry is a vote to wake up Washington and give our government back to the people," McCauley said. "A vote for his Democratic opponent would be a vote to keep Nancy Pelosi in power and a vote for politics as usual."

During his 32 years in elective office, McCauley was known for his careful management of Quincy's finances, turning an $11 million city deficit into a $10 million surplus in just five years. For his efforts to rein in wasteful government spending and reduce taxes, McCauley received the Financial Leadership Award from the National Conference of Mayors.

"We need to put a stop to the trillion-dollar bailouts and failed stimulus spending that threatens to undermine the stability of our entire economy," McCauley said. "Jeff Perry will help restore fiscal sanity and put a stop to the big-government bailouts and out-of-control stimulus spending. His opponent would simply be another vote Nancy Pelosi could count on to advance her radical left agenda."

McCauley adds his name to a growing list of Perry endorsements that includes former Gov. Mitt Romney, Sen. Scott Brown, former Lt. Gov. Kerry Healey, Congressman Lamar Smith (R-Texas) and more than 40 other elected officials, candidates and Republican town committee chairs.

Bellotti Announces $335,000 Federal Grant For Program To Prevent Inmates From Reoffending

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti announces the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office was one of only 13 county correctional agencies in the entire country to receive a U.S. Department of Justice local demonstration grant designed to stop inmates from committing crimes again after their release from jail.

The $335,000 grant will be used to augment and enhance Sheriff Bellotti's existing Repeat Offender Re-entry Initiative, through which inmates are notified that they face significantly harsher penalties if they re-offend. At the same time, the initiative links inmates with transitional housing and job resources and substance abuse treatment centers prior to their release so that they are more likely to avoid their prior pitfalls when they leave jail.

Attorney General's Office, which participates in Sheriff Bellotti's re-entry program, has hailed the initiative as "a model for the entire state."

"Virtually all of our inmates return to their communities, so it is imperative that we do all we can to keep our neighborhoods safer by working to make sure these inmates don't commit new crimes," Sheriff Bellotti said. "It's a win for the community, and it helps transform a convicted criminal into a productive and positive member of society."

The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office was the only county correctional agency in New England to receive the Second Chance Act Prisoner Reentry Initiative grant.

CARDINAL SEAN O'MALLEY greets the students and faculty of the Quincy Catholic Academy during a recent Mass at Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy.

CARDINAL SEAN O'MALLEY, Rev. John O'Brien, the pastor of Sacred Heart Church, and Quincy Catholic Academy Principal Catherine Cameron chat after the first Mass of the school year for the academy students.

'We're Blessed To Be A Part Of The Quincy Catholic Academy'

Cardinal Sean O'Malley Visits Quincy's New Parochial School

Nearly 500 students, faculty and parishoners listen intently to Cardinal Sean O'Malley's sermon at the Sacred Heart Church at the Quincy Catholic Academy's Sept. 15 Mass.

By JOE REARDON

When Sean O'Malley became Cardinal of the Boston Archdiocese, he received a large manila envelope in the mail that he almost immediately recognized as being from his father.

Inside, Cardinal O'Malley was surprised to find every single one of his report cards from elementary school right through college.

It had a lasting impression on O'Malley, one that he shares freely with youngsters in catholic schools, hoping it has the effect on them that its had on him.

"It showed me how important a catholic school education was for my parents," said Cardinal O'Malley. "We are blessed to be part of the Quincy Catholic Academy. Let's begin by humbly placing ourselves in God's presence."

The leader of the Boston Archdiocese told his story as part of the homily last Wednesday at the first-ever mass for the students and faculty of the Quincy Catholic Academy at the Sacred Heart Church. The mass celebrated the Annunciation of Mary, where the archangel Gabriel told the Virgin Mary that she was to become the mother of the Son of God and she would name him Jesus Christ.

Cardinal O'Malley said in his sermon that Mary didn't understand God's plan but she trusted him. "Mary is always saying yes to God," he said. "That yes made all the difference in the world."

The Quincy Catholic Academy includes all parishes of Quincy, plus the St. Mary's and St. Ann's Schools that were shut down. The enrollment of the kindergarten thru eighth-grade school numbers 400. Principal Catherine Cameron said the academy and its students should thrive in the coming years. The school offers a new math program known as Envisions, SMART boards for the middle school students and, on the horizon, a middle school robotics club.

"We're a new school, lots of friends and lots of new teachers," said Cameron. "It's really exciting. There are great possibilities in this new school and that's what we're excited about.

"This is really exciting for us. It's a great way to start the school year."

Cameron went on to say she has received a number of emails from parents saying how much the children like their teachers and how excited they are in the new school. "We are so grateful to have our spiritual leader Cardinal Sean O'Malley to be here with us this morning," she said.

Nine-year-old fourth-grader John Joyce was looking forward to the school year very early. "I'm excited about the new year," Joyce said. "He (Cardinal O'Malley) was great. He was very interesting."

Fourth-grade teacher Linda Ranieri said the excitement of the school year has been felt by the students and faculty alike. "It's a new beginning and we're all looking forward to it," Ranieri said. "Just the idea that a Catholic education is going to continue in the city of Quincy, we're fortunate to the opportunity and be part of it."

QUINCY CATHOLIC ACADEMY students are all smiles as they enter the Sacred Heart Church for their first mass of the school year. The student body of nearly 400 students celebrated the Annunciation of Mary with Cardinal Sean O'Malley.

Houghs Neck Church Honors Rev. M. Alicia Corea

CHURCH MEMBERS Jaime Gordon (left) and her daughter, Cassie Gordon, say farewell to Rev. M. Alicia Corea at a reception held Sunday at Hough's Neck Congregational Church. Corea served as the church's minister for 56 years.

PASTOR JOHN CASTRICUM presents Rev. M. Alicia Corea with a plaque dedicating the church's hall as "Rev. M. Alicia Corea Fellowship Hall." Looking on is her son, William.

Fond Farewell Reception For Longtime Minister; 'Rev. M. Alicia Corea Fellowship Hall' Dedicated

Houghs Neck Congregational Church bid a fond farewell to its former longtime minister yesterday, when generations of congregation members gathered following the morning's worship service to honor the Rev. M. Alicia Corea.

Corea – who along with her husband, the late Rev. Peter Corea, served as the church's co-ministers for more than 50 years – is moving to California to be closer to her son and his wife. But not before her "church family" gathered to share stories of the impact she made on the church and the community at large.

"Alicia may not have been the very first ordained female minister, but she attended seminary at a time when female seminarians were still a rarity," Pastor John Castricum told attendees at a reception in the church's Fellowship Hall. "She tolerated some not-so-kind remarks from those who thought a woman's only place in the church was teaching Sunday School or baking for church fairs. And she blazed a trail for all the female ministers who followed."

Castricum, the church's pastor for the past five years, noted the indelible mark Corea made on the local community during her 56 years of service as the church's minister.

"No matter where I go in Quincy, when I tell people I'm the pastor at Hough's Neck Congregational, they say, 'That's Alicia Corea's church, isn't it?'" he said, adding that the Hough's Neck Community Council, Hough's Neck MOTHERS Club and the church itself all offer college scholarships in her name to local youth.

As part of the congregation's farewell reception, the church choir performed the anthem, "A Blessing of Love," which it first performed upon Corea's retirement from full-time ministry in 2003. The congregation also presented her with several gifts, including a prayer shawl hand made by a member of the congregation and the first copy of a new CD of favorite anthems performed by the church choir in which Corea sang for decades. The highlight of the reception came, however, with the announcement that the church's Fellowship Hall would be formally dedicated as "Rev. M. Alicia Corea Fellowship Hall."

As part of the dedication, Castricum read the inscription on a plaque to be installed in the hall: "Rev. M. Alicia Corea Fellowship Hall, dedicated Sunday September 19, 2010 with profound love and gratitude for the lifelong service and devotion shown by M. Alicia Corea to the members of the Hough's Neck Congregational Church and the wider community. Her gentle presence and steadfast faith helped plant the spiritual seeds that will flourish and thrive for years to come."

A Job Well Done

On Monday, Sept. 13, at approximately 5:15 p.m., Officer Matt Patten was dispatched to the area of 210 South Street on the report of a possible assault that just took place.

LT. DAN MINTON

While en route, Quincy Police communications stated that a woman was in front of this address, bleeding from injuries which she obtained after being thrown from a moving vehicle. Quincy Police communications dispatched an ambulance to the location too.

Upon arrival, Officer Patten discovered two females and one male on the sidewalk. One of the females was crying, holding the right side of her head and bleeding from the right shoulder. The Officer attempted to question the injured female as to what happened but she was so upset, she was unable to respond initially.

After a few minutes, the female was able to communicate that she was thrown from a vehicle. The second woman then stated that she witnessed the female fall out of the vehicle. She said that she was traveling north on South Street behind a black SUV type vehicle at approximately thirty miles per hour. The witness said she observed the front passenger door of this vehicle open very quickly and a white female exit the vehicle in an "awkward manner as if being pushed." She saw the female victim hit the road hard, with such speed and force that it caused the victim to roll several times before stopping in the street.

The victim rolled to a stop as the suspect vehicle turned right onto Winthrop Park and left the scene of the incident. The suspect began to calm down and then gave her account. She said that she was in the black Explorer owned and operated by her boyfriend when they began to argue. She stated they recently moved into an apartment together and received a five hundred dollar gift card as a bonus. The discussion of how to use the card escalated into an argument, which became very heated and she ended up kicking the windshield causing it to crack. She said that this angered her boyfriend. He then reached over her lap and in a quick motion opened her door, and with one push, sent her flying out of the vehicle.

At this time, the ambulance arrived on scene and began treating the victim for her injuries. Before leaving for the hospital, the victim was advised of her domestic violence options, including a court issued protective order, but she refused any help.

Communications notified all units that this particular vehicle should be stopped if seen. A check of the license plate indicated that the plate was owned by a third party and that the suspect had been cited for numerous motor vehicle violations in the past. Detective O'Brien knew the suspect from past incidents and provided an address in West Quincy. Detective O'Brien went to this location and observed the suspect vehicle parked in the driveway

While watching this residence, the Detective observed the suspect exit the house and remove belongings from the suspect vehicle and then re-enter the residence. Sergeant James McNeil, Officers' Jimmy Whedbee, Dan Parisi and Detectives O'Brien and Barkas joined Officer Patten at the suspect's residence.

After knocking at the door, a male who identified himself as the suspect's brother, said no one else was home. After explaining the severity of the issue and that not being compliant on his own part could bring unwanted legal complications his way, the brother changed his story and called out to the suspect to come to the door.

The suspect, a 26 year old Quincy resident, was then placed under arrest and charged with "Assault with Intent to Murder and Assault and Battery by means of a Dangerous Weapon (pavement).

Save Green By Building Green

(NAPSA)-You can help the ecology and your own economy by going green.

There are many green home improvements that can help increase energy efficiency at home while actually saving money and providing a healthy return on investment.

To help establish a green home while saving cash, consider the following tips:

• Save on your energy bill. Replacing leaky, single-pane windows with high-efficiency, Energy Star-qualified windows can save hundreds of dollars a year. With more efficient windows, you use less energy, which also reduces greenhouse gas emissions from power plants.

• Add insulation. According to the Department of Energy, ensuring your home has adequate levels of insulation can save up to 30 percent on energy bills.

• Take advantage of incentives and rebates. Applying for government rebates can further increase the return on investment for a green upgrade. To look for rebates and incentives, visit the Database of State Incentives for Renewables & Efficiency at www.dsireusa.org.

• Quality products pay you back. Using quality products pays off. You don't have to replace them as often, diverting tons of materials from landfills each year. A good example is CertainTeed's Cedar Impressions Siding. The polymer siding comes backed by a lifetime, limited warranty; it's a long-lasting, low-maintenance and durable product.

• Increase your resale value. Some green products increase the value of a home in the long run. For example, a recent Cost vs. Value report conducted by Hanley Wood, LLC, shows that if a homeowner chooses fiber cement, 83 percent of the cost can be recouped when the home is sold.

• Protect the community. Choosing products with the environment in mind is a great start to ensuring a healthy community and preserving the environment in your neighborhood. Select products that are produced by companies that embrace sustainability in their operations.

SOME GREEN PRODUCTS can increase the value of your home.

THIS IS A HAMMER

By Samantha Mazzotta

Basic Flooring Tools

Q: What kind of tools should I have on hand if I want to do flooring work – like stripping old wood floors, or putting down tile or hardwood? – Kyle J., Sanford, Fla.

A: Besides your standard toolkit – things like a putty knife and scraper, a hand saw, a ruler, a level, hammer, utility knife and measuring tape – a few specialty items can make floor work easier. Here are a few items to look into if you're planning work in the near future.

• Carpenter's square: This L-shaped ruler absolutely rules when making straight measurements.

• Chalk line: Sometimes called a plumb line, this is a string covered with chalk that, when stretched along a length of floor, then plucked so that the string snaps against the floor, leaves a straight line to follow that can be easily erased.

• Masonry chisel: This heavy-duty, wide-bladed chisel can be hammered to force its way through tough-to-loosen surfaces.

• Floor scraper: With a long handle and a reinforced edge, the floor scraper allows you to scrape up large swaths of old tile or vinyl flooring from a standing position.

• Pry bar: Very handy when removing old nails from flooring.

• Trowels: These rectangular tools, which come with either notched or flat edges for different types of patterning when spreading grout or compound, are essential flooring components.

• Putty or wallboard knife: Also called a scraper, this handheld, wide-bladed tool allows you to apply and smooth grout or plaster more easily. Comes in different widths, but you'll definitely want a 4-inch wide knife to start.

• Heavy-duty stapler: Uses for this go well beyond flooring; it's almost as essential to the toolkit as duct tape.

• Power tools: A cordless drill is another must for the general toolkit. For flooring work, consider adding a reciprocating saw to your collection, which allows you to make detailed cuts in small spaces.

• Pencil: Don't start work without one.

HOME TIP: Always use proper safety equipment when working on your home's flooring: Eye protection and respirator in dusty environments, and sturdy work gloves for added protection.

Tire Tips That Save Money, Promote Safer Driving

(NAPSA)-Car care experts urge vehicle owners to pay special attention to four of the most important features on their car or truck-their tires. Regular tire maintenance saves money and promotes safer driving.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, 660 fatalities and 33,000 injuries occur each year as a result of crashes attributed to low tire pressure.

Here are four things you need to know to care for your tires:

1. Rotate tires: Because each tire on a vehicle performs different tasks, they wear at different rates. Regular rotations allow tires to wear and wear out evenly, minimizing tire noise and allowing tires to be replaced in sets of four, which is preferable. Check the owner's manual for recommended rotation intervals, but every 7,500 miles is the average.

Irregular tread wear occurs fastest when the tire is at full tread depth, so the first rotation is especially important.

2. Check tire pressure: Underinflated or overinflated tires can cause premature or irregular wear, poor handling and reduced fuel economy. To find the recommended tire pressure for your vehicle, look on the vehicle door edge, door post, glove box door or inside the trunk lid. It also appears in the owner's manual.

The air in tires is measured in pounds per square inch, or psi. The simple act of regular tire pressure checks can help maximize tire performance and durability, save fuel and help reduce the risk of tire failure. Digital gauges make tire pressure checks easy, so never "eyeball" tires because they can look fine even when they're underinflated.

Even in vehicles equipped with tire pressure monitoring systems, Goodwrench recommends checking them at least once a month-including the spare-when the tires are cold (the vehicle hasn't been driven for three hours).

3. Check tread depth: The tread connects a tire to the road. When that tread is worn, the tire can't make optimum contact with the pavement. Worn or bald tires are especially dangerous in wet conditions.

Tire wear depends on several factors, including driving style and tire maintenance habits. Tire tread gauges are inexpensive and can be found at auto parts stores. One way to know when to replace your tires is when tread wear indicators appear. These "wear bars" look like narrow strips of smooth rubber across the tread.

4. Don't overload your vehicle: A vehicle tire placard also shows the maximum load of the vehicle. An overloaded vehicle puts excessive wear on tires as well as vital suspension components. Remember that load also includes baggage carriers and trailer weight.

CHECK THE AIR pressure in your tires-including the spare-at least once a month when the tires are cold.

Travel Essentials To Get Your Car Road-Trip Ready

(NAPSA)-You can keep your car and your family on the road to safety and savings by taking a few simple steps before heading out. Whether you decide to do minor checkups and repairs yourself or have a professional take care of them, consider these suggestions.

If you are a do-it-yourselfer, follow these simple tips to get your vehicle in tiptop shape before setting out:

• Tire Pressure. Check the tire pressure and look for worn-down tread. Place a penny in the tread and if you can see the top of Lincoln's head, the tread is likely too low. Also check to make sure your tires-including the spare-are properly inflated and have been recently rotated. Look for the recommended tire pressure on the placard on your vehicle's door.

• Windshield Wipers. Check the windshield wipers. If they're worn, change them.

• Lights. Take a walk around the car with the lights on. Replace any burnt-out bulbs.

• Oil. Check the oil and oil filter and change them if necessary.

• Air Filter. Check and replace the air filter and cabin filter if your car is equipped with one.

• Emergency Kit. Pack an emergency kit with items that can help you in case you're stranded. A recently released survey found drivers often overlook this important step. In fact, only one in four carries flares or food and water. These safety items can help keep a bad situation from getting worse.

• Test Your Battery. If your battery is 4 years old or older, you are living on borrowed time. Bring it in to a trusted automotive service and retail provider such as Pep Boys for a battery starting and charging diagnostic test. In case of a battery emergency, you can also carry a portable battery jump start in your trunk along with jumper cables. This way you can jump start your car even if no one else is around.

Some activities may require professional assistance. Here are a few service tips to keep in mind.

• A/C System. A well-functioning air conditioning system is important during hot weather. Have your system checked periodically and maintained regularly.

• Brakes. Do the brakes squeak or does the brake pedal feel "soft"? Have your brakes inspected, including all brake linings, hardware and hydraulics, if the last inspection occurred more than 24,000 miles or 12 months ago. The hydraulic system should be assessed for leaks and proper operation. "Sponginess" or "drop" in the brake pedal, a tendency for the car to pull to one side when braking, squealing noises coming from the brakes or a drop in the master cylinder's fluid level can all signify problems.

• Transmission. If you'll be hauling a trailer, boat or the like, you may want to check and change the transmission fluid.

Home Game Friday Against Plymouth South

Presidents Stomp Out Canton HS, 42-14

By SEAN BRENNAN

What a difference a week makes.

Six days after being blown out by a strong Cohasset team (45-7) in their season opener, the Quincy Presidents reversed roles by putting a beat-down on non-league opponent Canton High School, 42-14, last Thursday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy (1-1) got top-notch performances from a number of players on offense, defense and special teams. One of the brightest showings was put in by senior quarterback Ryan Shultz who had missed the first game with a finger injury. Shultz finished a perfect 5-for5 with two TDs helping to a lead a strong offensive game for the Presidents.

"Like the rest of the team, Ryan played well," said QHS head coach Bill Reardon. "He executed what he was asked to do and limited turnovers. It was a good showing by him."

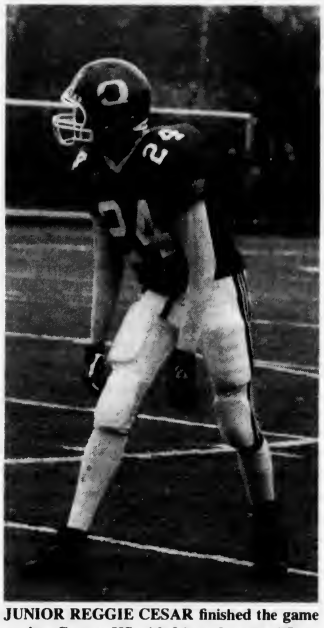
While Shultz settled in and got the Quincy offense in gear after it had been stuck in neutral two weeks ago against the Skippers, it was the Presidents' defense and special teams that highlighted the impressive Week Two turnaround.

Quincy's jumped out to an early 14-0 first-quarter advantage on the strength of these two units. Canton, after failing to make a first down, went back to punt. Quincy sophomore Derrick Stone raced in off the line and blocked the punt attempt setting up the Presidents' first touchdown drive. Junior running back Reggie Cesar's (seven carries, 94 yards, TD) 42-yard TD scamper put an exclamation mark on that possession.

Minutes later fellow sophomore Jaquan Harris intercepted an intended pass down the middle of the field and returned it 42 yards for a touchdown, giving Quincy a 14-0 lead. Harris would later return another interception 35 yards for a TD in the second half.

Up 14-0, Quincy allowed Canton to drive the field and score, but the Presidents quickly responded. Shultz led a nine-play, 65-yard drive that ended with a 22-yard touchdown reception by junior receiver Jalen Green, which gave Quincy a 21-7 lead. Shultz would connect on another second quarter touchdown pass on the Presidents' next drive. This time he found a streaking (sophomore) Derrick Stone for 14 yards.

"We had a lot of our younger players play much better in their second game," said Reardon. "It was a good way to bounce back. We played better. We were better tackling this game, did a better job blocking and just did a better job in every area.



"I think the biggest change from the first game to the second was that a lot of these guys are still learning to play at this level. We are going to need some time to get comfortable and it was good to see that all of the hard work and practice is getting us there."

For the Presidents, this week's opponent, Plymouth South, will be a familiar foe as last season Quincy dropped a 14-0 decision to this team. According to Reardon, this year's Plymouth South version is good, they are fast, and the roster is filled with players with some size.

"We have played Plymouth South the last couple of years so they are not an unfamiliar opponent," he said. "I went and watched them play last Friday and what I saw was that they are big and fast. We are going to have to play like we did against Canton if we want to pick up another win."

Kickoff is set for 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Game Notes: Junior tight end Nick Lepore caught two balls for 30+ yards... Lepore and senior Dan Breen recovered fumbles on kickoff returns by Canton... The Presidents finished the game by forcing five turnovers... Quincy opens the month of October with a home game against Randolph on Oct. 1 (TBA)... A home game against 2009 Patriot League champions Duxbury HS is set for Oct. 8 at 7 p.m. followed by a road tilt at Pembroke HS on Oct. 15.

JUNIOR REGGIE CESAR finished the game against Canton HS with 94 yards and a TD on just seven carries. Cesar and the rest of the Presidents host Plymouth South HS Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Presidents Start Slow But The Future Is Bright

By SEAN BRENNAN

A 0-3 start to the season has not been the ideal beginning for the Quincy High School boys soccer program, but, despite the slow start, this team is heading in the right direction.

The Presidents opened the fall last week with a three game set. A disappointing 2-0 loss to Pembroke HS started the week and was followed by games against Hanover (4-0 loss) and Randolph (3-0). Just because there was not much to show for on the offensive side of the pitch, according to head coach Mark Spendlove doesn't mean there weren't positives to be taken from these first three games.

"All three of our games last week were evenly played," he said on Monday. "Pembroke's two goals came off of our mistakes, which is something this team is going to need to work on, but we did play well. We missed some chances to score goals."

A lack of goal scoring doomed Quincy against both Hanover and Randolph as well. The Presidents have the ability to start producing scoring chances, but work needs to be done.

"We played real well in spills," said Spendlove. "But it has been the mental lapses and a lack of concentration that has hurt us early on. This is a young team so it may take some time to see results, but the program is heading in the right direction."

With such a young team that will have to quickly adjust to the level of play at the varsity level, senior leadership is key. Quincy, this season, has eight twelfth graders on the roster. Leading the way are Alex Dolan, Alexandru Giurca, Armagan Sezer, Eyup Kokel, Long Nguyen, Martin Conroy, Pablo Machado, and Renan Barreto.

Nick Dolan heads the junior class; Antonio Foleis, Dan Mongo, Filipe Correa Pina, Jev Vaflor, Kevin Paterno, and Tim McNally should all see time on the field for Quincy in 2010.

Sophomores Caique Reginaldo, James Struga and Felix Nampanya and freshmen James O'Shea, Roy Bandar, and Bjorn Armiri round out the QHS roster.

"We are a young team, but so far through the first three games our freshmen have really played well," added Spendlove. "They have given us some good minutes. But with such young players we need to work on staying composed and if we continue to work hard, remain focused, and catch a couple of breaks we can turn this season around."

The schedule doesn't get any easier for Quincy. Playing in the ultra-competitive Patriot League, the Presidents play against the best-of-the-best on the South Shore. This week QHS played against Scituate HS (Monday) and Whitman-Hanson HS (Wednesday). The Presidents are set to face-off against city rival North Quincy HS today (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m.

Next week QHS plays at home Monday against West Roxbury (3:30) and at Duxbury HS on Thursday (4 p.m.).

Quincy and North Quincy play for a second time on Oct. 16 under the lights at Veterans Memorial Stadium (7 p.m.).

Red Raiders Fall In Defeat, 14-12, to Oliver Ames

A surprise second quarter onside kick ended up being the biggest play of the game as the North Quincy Red Raiders lost to non-league opponent Oliver Ames High School, 14-12, last Thursday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

North Quincy (1-1) will look to rebound on Friday when the Red Raiders take their show on the road to play at East Bridgewater High School.

Last week's game got off to a rousing start for NQHS. Behind the direction of senior quarterback Joe Schmitz and the power running of senior back Seyi Adesuyan, North Quincy held the ball for nine minutes. The long drive ended when Adesuyan barreled his way into the end zone giving the Raiders an early 6-0 advantage. The subsequent point after attempt (PAT) clanged off the goal post no good.

Oliver Ames responded with a two-touchdown spree in the second quarter. The first TD came on a fourth-and-long from the Red Raider 36-yard line as Oliver Ames quarterback Mitchell Johnson found receiver Andrew Hetzel down the sideline for the score. A successful PAT made the score 7-6.

On the following kickoff, Oliver Ames got bold. The visitors recovered a surprise onside kick, which caught North Quincy off-guard. The Tigers would drive the field and score its second straight TD on a 15-yard pass reception by Joey Gizzi. The PAT was, again, good and Oliver Ames took a 14-6 halftime lead.

In the third quarter, North Quincy took advantage of a bad Tigers' snap on a punt attempt, recovering the ball deep inside Oliver Ames territory. The Raiders running game produced another TD for a 14-12 score.

With a two-point conversion necessary to tie the game at 14, North Quincy drew up a play, but it was snuffed out by the Tigers' defense when Schmitz was sacked in the backfield, keeping their lead at 14-12.

The Red Raiders could do nothing else on offense in the fourth quarter. Oliver Ames hung on to win by two points, giving themselves their first win of the year, and saddling North Quincy with its first loss.

"We made too many mental mistakes," NQHS head coach Jim Connor said. "We played hard, but we have to play smarter."

The road game at East Bridgewater is the first of three consecutive road tilts for North Quincy. Next week the team plays at Pembroke HS in the Patriot League opener.

2nd Annual Smegs Legs Road Race Oct. 9

The 2nd Annual Smegs Legs Five-Mile Road Race & Two-Mile Walk is set for Oct. 9 at Broad Meadows Middle School. The day's events will start at 9 a.m.

The road race is held in memory of Houghs Neck native Chris Smeglin, a former Atherton Hough, Broad Meadows, and Boston College High School alum who went onto graduate from the United States Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Port, NY. After graduation, Smeglin enlisted in the United States Navy to fulfill a lifelong ambition to serve his country and become an aviator.

Dedicating one's life to the United States, while a true honor, can also be the ultimate sacrifice. On October 2, 2008, Navy LTJG Chris Smeglin, at age 24, was tragically killed while stationed in Kingsville, Texas during a bike training session for a triathlon. In respect of Chris' love and desire for fitness, his family, friends and neighbors are asking for your support in their efforts to commemorate the life of this great young man and patriot by participating, volunteering for or sponsoring the 2nd Annual Smegs Legs Road Race.

Smegs Legs proceeds will benefit The Chris Smeglin Memorial Fund, which will raise monies for various local charities. This year's beneficiaries are: Access Sports America (www.accessports.org - sports for children and adults with disabilities), a scholarship in Chris' memory with the Houghs Neck Community Council (www.houghsneck.org), and the Broad Meadows Middle School athletic program.

Event run/walk participants can register before Oct. 1 for $15 (or day of the event starting at 7:30 a.m. for $20). Any support, including donations would be greatly appreciated and acknowledged at the event. If you are interested in volunteering or sponsoring the event, please contact Tori Smeglin at torismeg@hotmail.com. The Memorial Fund's 501©(3) number is available upon request.

Team Building Toward November

Q/NQ Cross-Country Off to Running Start

By JOE REARDON

The formula for success throughout the Quincy/North Quincy girls cross country program has never been a secret to be locked away in a vault during the offseason, out of sight from enemy eyes.

Head coach Geoff Hennessy, now in his 22nd year developing harrier talent in Quincy, has taken the same, amazingly simple formula and applied it every fall since he took over the cross country watch.

"I look forward to every season," said Hennessy. "We just keep doing our workouts and concentrate on staying healthy. We control what we're doing and hopefully get them running their best in November."

Hennessy got a good look at his girls in its season-opening tri meet last week against Whitman-Hanson and Silver Lake in the deep, talent pool of the Patriot League. The Lady Panthers swept the top three positions with sisters Rachael and Abbey Baker grabbing first and second, and teammate Kaley Mientkiewicz checking in shortly behind for the meet-winning sweep. Q/NQ's top harrier, senior Erica Brady, dogged the threesome across the finish line with a strong fourth-place showing.

Hennessy was hardly surprised by Whitman-Hanson's dominant 17-46 victory and liked the effort his girls put in in a tight 26-29 loss to the Lakers on Silver Lake's home course. Going up against the likes of Whitman-Hanson, Pembroke, Hingham and Hanover in dual-meet competition can only benefit Q/NQ during the "big meets" late in the season.

"We're talking about four programs that have won plaques at the state meet over the last five years," said Hennessy. "It's hard to open against Whitman-Hanson. They look like they're ready for the state meet today."

Barring injuries and sickness, Q/NQ has the potential to make its share of noise in November. Behind Brady, the best female harrier in the city, Hennessy fields a team that includes the talented seniors Julia Doyle and Julia Ross, and sophomores Lia Bonoli and Kelsey Fischer.

Hennessy's top five are solid, talented and will only get better jockeying on the trails over the next two months against the rest of the Patriot League. Bonoli, who runs the 600 on the indoor track team, has major accelerating speed and is especially strong over the final 400 meters while Fischer is continuing to steadily improve and has already made the next jump one meet into the season.

Of the young group of freshman hopefuls, Faith Whooley looks to be the best of the lot so far this fall. "She's got a big upside," Hennessy said. "She's little, she's tough and she has a runner's body."

The team is bigger this autumn with a roster of 17 girls and Hennessy is confident some will step up as Q/NQ progresses through its schedule. Hennessy has never been one to look too far into the future, but even he admits to being excited about the buzz surrounding eighth-grade Atlantic Middle School talents Emily and Julia Bryson. The pair garnered serious notice last fall when they unloaded on the seventh-grade field to finish second and sixth, respectively, in the 1st Annual Massachusetts State Middle School Championships at Fort Devens.

Hennessy isn't the only one who believes the pair will make an instant impact as freshmen.

"Coaches from other schools have already asked about them," said Hennessy. "They're quiet kids and very academically oriented. You just put them out there and let them have fun."

Seven Freshmen On The 2010 Varsity Roster

QHS Presidents Looking To Improve This Fall

By SEAN BRENNAN

A strong freshmen core combined with experienced seniors and juniors should make the 2010 Quincy High School girls soccer program a tough team to play against this fall.

Quincy (0-3-1) opened the season with games against Pembroke, Hanover, Randolph and Scituate and, despite not yet picking up a win, the team is showing considerable improvement in the early goings.

"We are extremely young this season," said QHS head coach Don Martin on Tuesday. "I have seven freshmen on the varsity roster; we have to be the youngest team in the league (Patriot League). The opening of the new high school has brought us a lot of attention and we are excited about where this team can go.

"It is our soccer IQ that really stands out this season. Sometimes you just get good athletes but we have good soccer players with high IQs. We are young but we have the chance to get better this fall."

With such an inexperienced (but potentially excellent) freshmen class, the Presidents will be asking its seniors, and especially its two-team captains, to step up and right the ship when it is wavering. Seniors Amanda Hyslip (defender) and Courtney Peters (defensive midfielder) are the captains of that ship. Both will be expected to provide solid defensive play in the middle of the pitch while controlling the pace of play throughout the two halves.

"Both Courtney and Amanda are solid defensive players," added Martin. "They are our team captains and we are going to need them to provide the leadership we are going to need with such a young team."

Seniors Nichole Campbell (midfield), Brittany Haefner (defender), and Giovanna Maurano (defender) should also see time on the field this season for Quincy.

The junior class is led by starting keeper Michaela Walker. Olivia Goldson (midfielder), a transfer to QHS this fall, Janelle Leone (forward), Brelan O'Leary (defender), Elizabeth Pyle (midfielder), Julia Regan (defender), and Victoria Wallace (midfielder) round out the junior class for the Presidents.

"Michaela is back in goal this fall for us and she is going to be a factor," said Martin. "Goldson is a transfer player who should be good and Victoria Wallace, who can be a star player, will be a big part of the team, although she is currently out injured right now."

Jennifer Scarnici (defender) is the lone sophomore on the roster.

The future of the QHS girls' soccer program rests in its freshmen class. Natalie O'Donovan (keeper) will back-up Walker in goal, providing the team with some quality insurance on the back-end in case of injury. Kayla McArdle (defender) and Colleen Andrews (defender) are a future 1-2 punch in front of the goal, and the midfield positions should be in great shape with the addition of Stacey Gallagher, Dominique Lucier, and Alyssa Lydon.

"We are going to need to develop aspects of our game, especially with so many freshmen on the roster," said Martin. "The expectations for the team this fall is to improve on our record last year. It is going to be a process but we have some good pieces in place.

"Unfortunately we have had some injuries early on this season. We are going to have to fight through that. In every game we have played this season we have been pretty even at halftime. The second half is when we have struggled. We are going to have to improve our mental toughness. That is something that we need to work on."

One interesting tidbit about the 2010 Presidents is the number of sisters that are playing together for the same program. The number is five.

Pretty cool stuff according to Martin.

The Presidents last game ended in a 5-1 defeat to Scituate HS on Monday. Freshman Alyssa Lydon scored her team's lone goal and was assisted by Olivia Goldson; Peters and Amanda Hyslip played well.

Quincy plays next this Friday with a home match against Silver Lake HS. Away games against Whitman-Hanson HS (Monday) and North Quincy HS (Thursday) are on the docket for next week.

QY Football League Results

The following are game results for Week One of the Quincy Youth Football League:

Milton Mustangs def. Houghs Neck Manets, 12-0

A fumble return for a touchdown on the opening kickoff gave the Mustangs an early 6-0 advantage. Milton would score again in the fourth quarter.

Joe Boddie, Mike Nazzaro, James Lam all played well for Houghs Neck.

West Quincy Elks def. Squantum Storm, 25-6

Elks running back Dayvon Jones scored three first half touchdowns, the first a 40 yard rush around right end the first time he touched the ball; the second a 15 yard rush in the second quarter, and the third a 15 yard TD reception with seconds left in the second quarter.

Joe Weinstein had a long TD rush for the Elks.

Zack Dangora scored on a seven-yard rush for the Storm. Andrew Kiley and Ryan Higgins provided the blocks.

Ryan Higgins, Marco Penaflor, Ryan Higgins, and Nick Manning had strong games for the Storm.

NQ Apaches def. Quincy Point Panthers, 28-0

Apache quarterback Pat Frasso threw a 40-yard pass to Bryan Lenane to set up an eight-yard TD run by Eric Cohane-Jones. Steve Scolaro kicked the PAT for the 8-0 lead. Later in the second, Apache defender Jake Bergonzi blocked a Panthers' punt attempt and Alex Chen recovered it in the end zone for a TD.

After a Lenane interception to start the second-half, he broke free for a 63-yard rush TD; Frasso threw the two-point conversion to Bergonzi for the 21-0 NQ lead. Apaches jayvee QB Shawn Kelly scored on a 20-yard rush to close out the scoring.

Mike Connolly, Sean Dozier, Freddie Flynn, Zach Roos, Mike McNelley and Kevin McDonough played well for NQ.

The following are week two results for QYFL:

Manets def. Panthers, 13-0

Starting off the season with very light numbers the Panthers are growing every week as a team and as an organization. In Week 2 the Panthers suffered their second shutout loss in a row. The team is young but full of athletes that love to play the game of football. The score doesn't reflect the effort displayed on both sides of the ball.

The Panthers defense led by Anthony Marcello, Garret Cronin, Nick Fahey, Kenny Garcia and Cole Bishop, shut out the Manets in the second half. The Panther offense sputtered at times but running backs Cole Bishop and Kenny Garcia started to show promise as the game wore on. The Panthers took a big hit as two-way player Shane McKenna, went down with an ankle injury. The offensive line played together but will be challenged next week versus the Elks. The Panthers motto in summer camp and now in practice has always been, Everyday We Get Better and Better.

Apaches def. Storm, 20-0

Bryan Lenane scored two touchdowns and had two interceptions to help lead the Apaches to a 20-0 victory over the Storm.

The Storm returned the opening kickoff to the Apaches' 35-yard line, when a big hit forced a fumble, which Apache defender Jake Bergonzi recovered. The Apaches would then begin a long, time-consuming drive that was capped off with a 14-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Pat Frasso to Lenane. The Apaches tried to kick the extra point, but Steve Scolaro's kick hit the goal post.

On the next series, Lenane stopped a potential Storm drive with a big interception. Eric Cohen Jones and Kevin McDonough shared the running duties as each had several big runs during the Apaches next drive. Later in the drive, Lenane scored his second TD on another pass from Frasso. Again, Scolaro's kick for the extra point was unsuccessful, but the Apaches had a 12-0 lead with five minutes to go in the first half.

On their next drive, the Storm were moving the chains and marching downfield on the Apache defense, but again Lenane came up big with another interception at the Apaches' 30-yard line. With less than two minutes to play in the half, the Apaches offense again went to work. Cohen-Jones and McDonough each had some nice runs, and Lenane caught a 35-yard pass from Frasso to set up a first and goal at the Storm 8-yard line. Two plays later, with time running out on the clock, Cohen-Jones scored from five yards out. Scolaro's kick was good for the extra point and the Apaches took a 20-0 lead into the locker room at halftime.

The Apaches opened the second half with an exciting 65-yard touchdown pass from Frasso to Lenane, but the play was called back on a penalty. Later, in the third a long 65-yard run by McDonough was also called back for a penalty. Both defenses tightened up in the second half and neither team was able to score the rest of the way.

Despite hearty support from its 24 cheerleaders and dozens of parents and family members, the Storm varsity fought the North Quincy Apaches to a standoff during the second half of the game and could not make up for three turnovers that led to Apache touchdowns in the first half.

The Storm had only three possessions in the first half all ending in turnovers. All in all, Storm QB Gaglione was 1 for 5 passing for 6 yards, the sole completion going to Solomon Umoren. Umoren also ran the ball from scrimmage eight times for 25 yards, followed by Andrew Kiley with six carries for 20 yards, and Dangora with two carries for 4 yards. The Storm only had 24 plays from scrimmage for a total of 55 yards of offense. The Storm had difficulty with blocking assignments, but newcomer Joey Dwyer showed flashes of effectiveness at tight end.

On defense for the Storm, Umoren again had seven tackles from sideline to sideline, followed by five by Dangora, and two each from Kiley, Marco Penaflor, Gaglione and Evan Aimola, and one jarring tackle by nose tackle Dominic DiPalmo. Will Bronske stopped Lenane after he caught a 32-yard pass and Aimola broke up another pass.

The Apaches defense frustrated the Storm all afternoon, as each time they gained momentum another Apache defender would come up with a big play. Lenane had his two interceptions, while linebackers Bergonzie and Scolaro, and defensive linemen Alex Chen and Freddy Flynn all made big plays to slow down the Storm offense.

The Apaches battled the Storm linemen for control of the line of scrimmage, and Frasso got solid pass protection from his offensive line anchored by Center Sean Dozier. The Apaches also got great two-way performances from McDonough, Scolaro, Flynn, Bergonzi, Jackie Chen, Mike Connolly and Alex Chen.

Elks def. Mustangs, 41-0

The red hot Elks were led by Joey Wienstein with two rushing touchdowns and Dayvon Jones who returned two punt returns for touchdowns. He also had a rushing touchdown.

On defense Jimmy Dalton, John Crump and Bobby Salvucci had great games. Scott Paulack had a great game at quarterback as well as an interception on defense.

Tips On Managing Cholesterol With Diet, Exercise

(NAPSA)-There's actually some good news for those at risk for heart disease. Experts say there are several risk factors for heart disease that can be controlled through a combination of behavior and diet. One of the more important of these factors is blood cholesterol.

Cholesterol can build up in our arteries and cause blood flow to be restricted. This can raise blood pressure and strain the heart; it also raises risk of developing heart attacks and strokes. Here are some tips that can help you manage your cholesterol:

Know Your Numbers

Stay on top of your health by getting your important numbers checked regularly by a doctor or a nurse.

These include blood cholesterol, LDL cholesterol, HDL cholesterol, BMI (body mass index) and blood pressure.

• Total Cholesterol-If your total cholesterol is less than 200 mg/dL, your risk for heart attack is thought to be relatively low.

• LDL Cholesterol-This is your "bad" cholesterol and is one of the most important numbers for determining your risk for heart disease. The ideal level is less than 100 mg/dL.

• HDL Cholesterol-This is your "good" cholesterol and ideally is greater than 60 mg/dL.

• Blood Pressure-Blood pressure is the measure of the blood as it pushes against the arteries in your body. A desirable blood pressure is 120/80 mm Hg.

Get Moving

Another way to help manage your cholesterol is to get some physical activity every day to help keep your heart strong.

Regular exercise also helps to boost your levels of HDL. It can also help to maintain a healthy weight, which makes your heart's job easier while lowering stress.

Chronic stress can strain the heart, just like extra weight. Try healthy ways to vent stress, such as breathing exercises.

Diet And Cholesterol

The American Heart Association recommends a heart-healthy diet as one way to help manage your cholesterol. Such a diet includes:

• Fruits prepared with little or no added sugar, fat or salt;

• Vegetables prepared with little or no added sugar, fat or salt;

• Lean meats and poultry;

• Soy protein: soy milk or soy meat analogs;

• Fish: Preferably fish with "healthy fats," such as salmon or tuna, baked, broiled, grilled or boiled-but not fried;

• Dairy: Low-fat or fat-free milk (1 percent or skim), low-fat yogurt, low-fat cheese;

• Whole grains: cereals, breads, pastas and tortillas made with whole grain, and brown rice;

• Oats, which contain soluble fiber that can help soak up some cholesterol and prevent it from being absorbed by your digestive tract. Eating foods made from oats, such as Cheerios, may help lower cholesterol.

Here is a recipe that uses Cheerios as part of a heart-healthy snack. You can pack individual servings of this snack in small containers or plastic bags for family members who are on the go.

On-the-Run Cereal Snack

Prep Time: 5 Minutes

Start to Finish: 5 Minutes

4 cups Honey Nut Cheerios(r) cereal

1 cup salted peanuts

1 cup raisins

1 cup chocolate chips

1. In large bowl or resealable food-storage plastic bag, stir all ingredients.

2. Store in airtight container.

14 servings (1/2 cup each)

1 Serving: Calories 210 (Calories from Fat 90); Total Fat 10g (Saturated Fat 3g); Cholesterol 0mg; Sodium 110mg; Potassium 240mg; Total Carbohydrate 26g (Dietary Fiber 3g); Protein 5g

EAT BETTER, AGE BETTER

While seniors generally consume fewer calories because of their slowing metabolisms, they must be sure to get sufficient calories to sustain their health. Weight loss at an advanced age for whatever reason may lead to malnutrition and/or worsening of existing health conditions. With this in mind, seniors should make sure their teeth (or dentures) and gums are in good working order. If it hurts to chew, people should make sure their teeth (or dentures) and gums are in good working order. If it hurts to chew, people eat less. Healthy teeth and properly fitting dentures ensure that seniors can avail themselves of all the nutrition in healthy meals. The National Institutes of Health is funding research to determine how oral health may affect memory. It is thought that a healthy diet may be linked with less cognitive decline among seniors.

We recommend a healthy diet for all family members, We want to provide you with the best dental care possible. Whatever your age, it's important to keep your mouth clean, healthy and feeling good. SADDLED WITH RISKS

The high speeds and pronounced vertical drops associated with mountain biking can make the sport as dangerous as football and diving. While wrist fractures are common among mountain bikers, spinal injuries are the most severe. According to a 13-year study of mountain bikers who sustained injuries, the worst injuries were the 40 percent that involved the spinal cord. Of these, more than 40 percent led to complete paralysis. This study offers a sobering view of the potential downside of the sport. While previous studies described the range of injuries sustained by mountain bikers and spinal injuries suffered in a number of sports, no one study had specifically evaluated the risk of spinal injury among mountain bikers. It merits attention.

What sports activity do you engage in? At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we combine the art of 'hands on' healing with modern medical science to restore normal joint and neurological function and improve your overall health. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we want to educate you so that you can make choices you feel good about, are comfortable with, and can be committed to. Remember that we do not use drugs and address the cause of the problem, not just the symptoms. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. The majority of mountain bikers who suffered injuries describe them as being the result of being propelled over the handlebars or falling from great heights.

Is a Daily Vitamin Really Necessary?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My adult daughter is unable to take vitamins without upsetting her stomach. She has taken them with and without food, and at different times of the day, to no avail. She takes no medicine except for thyroid. She has no gastrointestinal problems. – V.H.

ANSWER: Has your daughter tried different brands of vitamins? The filler in some brands might be the cause of her stomach upset. Fillers are inactive ingredients that keep the tablet together.

The question really is: Does your daughter, or anyone, need to take a vitamin (multivitamin or otherwise) daily? Vitamins are nutrients that the body doesn't make for itself (except vitamin D). They're needed in extremely small amounts. The era of beriberi, scurvy and rickets is all but over since the discovery of vitamins. Most doctors have never seen a case of those vitamin deficiency illnesses.

Vitamins don't pep us up and they don't prevent heart disease or cancer as was once thought. In excess, they can be troublemakers. In spite of this, we're conditioned to believe that we need a daily multivitamin. Half of the adult American population swallows one every day.

We can meet all vitamin needs through foods, with the possible exception of vitamin D. A diet that supplies fruits, vegetables, grains, dairy products and some meat provides the necessary vitamins. Meat is the source for vitamin B-12, but vegetarians can get that vitamin in other ways. Vitamin D is a problem for many. Sunshine converts a substance in the skin into this vitamin. Many people don't get enough sunshine exposure to achieve skin production of D, and people in northern climates can't get enough during winter months. All it takes is 15 minutes of sun exposure on the face, arms and legs three times a week. Age is another possible factor in failing to meet vitamin demands if older people subside on a marginal diet of tea and toast.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had a foot reconstruction operation some months ago. The foot doctor said I had to be off Celebrex until the foot completely healed. I had been on it for several years. I have osteoporosis and rheumatoid arthritis. Since being off Celebrex for four months, I don't have any more pain or stiffness than I did while I was taking it. Do I really need it? – V.M.

ANSWER: If a medicine isn't doing anything for you, why take it? You've taken Celebrex for several years and now you've been off it for four months with no worsening of your symptoms. I'd say you made a strong case for not continuing it. Many, many other rheumatoid arthritis medicines are on the market. It's time for a change, or perhaps for a medicine rest if your doctor agrees.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When patients are admitted to a hospital by ambulance and their prescriptions are given to the hospital staff, are they returned to the patients upon discharge? These are expensive medicines. – E.M.

ANSWER: The medicines ought to be given back to the patients upon discharge. If they aren't, an inquiry should be made. If no answer is forthcoming, take the matter to the hospital administrator.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Have you ever had a day that didn't begin just the way you thought it would? You got out of bed with the confident feeling that the day would be a great one . . . And there was no soap in the shower – The toast burned and you spilled your juice and you had to change your shirt. You finally get to work late and find you had left your briefcase home!

Do you wonder why there are days like those? I believe there is a purpose for such days. I believe we can learn from adversity what we sometimes can't learn from prosperity. I believe that adversity causes some people to break down, and others to break records.

When you have such a bad day, try making a list of all the adversities and then ask yourself this question: "What can I learn from these difficult situations and what was God trying to teach me?" There is a reason He brings us good days and not so good days. There is a purpose in all our life's encounters. Each day is a new one and each will bring its lessons with it. Have the courage to face each day with the attitude that you will prosper from it even if it brings some adversity rather than prosperity.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although practical situations continue to dominate this week, there's time for the Lamb to indulge in the fun things in life -- like maybe taking a special someone out for a great evening.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) This week favors relationships. Take time to renew old ones, and make time to go where new friends can be found. On a more practical note, expect news about a business deal.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You should be seeing some progress on that new workplace situation. Meanwhile, family matters might demand more attention, and you'll want to set aside time to deal with them.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A relationship suddenly might present some challenges you never expected. After talking things out, you might want to consider taking some time to assess what you've learned.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A disappointing response to a request might dampen the Lion's spirits. But you might want to ask the reasons behind it. What you learn can be of great importance in a future undertaking.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A once-volatile situation should be settled by now, giving you a chance to refocus on a project you've been planning for. Look for an interested party to rally to your support.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A business matter that unexpectedly turns into a personal situation could create complications. Best to resolve the matter now before too much harm can be done.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Emotions can run high when they involve personal matters that no one really wants to talk about. But this could be a good time to create the means to a workable outcome.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A positive response to a workplace request could lead the way to other long-sought changes. Congratulations. A personal situation also takes a welcome turn.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Patience pays off, as that once-overwhelming work situation continues to become easier to handle on a one-by-one basis. Look for positive news from a colleague.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) It might be a good idea to take more time to reassess your next move in working out a complex situation. You could benefit from a new perspective on the matter.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might want to consider making time to discuss a change of plans with everyone concerned. Be prepared to explain your actions. Also be prepared to listen to alternatives.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a strong sense of what is right, and you try to work from that foundation. Friends see you as reliable.

Archbishop Williams High School Students Participate In Appalachia Service Project

Ten students from Archbishop Williams High School, a Catholic co-educational high school in Braintree, recently returned from a trip to Man, West Virginia where they volunteered their time with the Appalachia Service Project, a Christian ministry that fosters human development by addressing the housing needs of Central Appalachia.

The AWHS students, including Mariah Anastasi, Kelsey McCarthy, and Kristen Spain, all of Quincy, spent a week in the rural community of Man, West Virginia to assist with a number of house repairs, including roof mending, floor and foundation repairs, creating secondary exits and building porches.

"The entire school is proud of the work these students performed in Central Appalachia," said Dr. Carmen Mariano, president of AWHS. "What a wonderful way to have spent a portion of their summer vacation – through their loving labor, these remarkable youths have helped families whose needs are great."

Completion Expected Within Next Two Months

Demolition Resumes At Quincy Fair Mall

Demolition work at the Quincy Fair Mall has resumed with asbestos-bearing material now being removed and the remainder of the building expected to be torn down to make way for the Quincy Center Concourse within the next two months, officials said.

Delays associated with the discovery of asbestos in the mall building relate only to the demolition aspect of the project and will not affect the construction of the road that will cut an east-west corridor from Burgin Parkway to Route 3A, officials said.

Asbestos material was discovered by demolition crews within floors that had been covered over multiple times by subsequent floors installed over the life of the building, and it was not discovered during the original assessment of the building.

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation is overseeing the remainder of the demolition project, including the removal of asbestos-bearing material in sealed trucks that will take it to a facility in Ohio.

Health Commissioner Andrew Scheele repeated assurances that the material poses no public health threat because it is not airborne.

The Concourse is expected to be completed next year, providing a link from the Southeast Expressway to several neighborhoods in Quincy in what the City has long believed will end much of the traffic bottleneck in the heart of Quincy Center today.

The road is also viewed as a vital cornerstone to the City's $1 billion redevelopment plans for Quincy Center.

$30,000 In Mini-Grants Available For Projects Promoting Healthy Communities

The Blue Hills Community Health Alliance (BHCHA), also known as CHNA 20, announces new mini-grants available for 2010-2011.

This year, the grant program will focus on projects that improve primary care, disease prevention and/or health promotion for vulnerable populations. The grants are made possible due to support from Caritas Norwood, Harvard Vanguard, South Shore Hospital, and Weymouth MRI.

A total of $30,000, with grants of $500 up to $3,500, is available to support projects in Quincy and other neighboring towns. The BHCHA mini-grant program has enabled local groups and organizations to make on small but significant projects to improve health and wellness in the area.

"It's amazing to see the reach of mini-grants in so many communities and know that so many individuals, children and families have been positively impacted by these efforts," said Alejandro Rivera, BHCHA chairperson and program director of Impact Quincy at Bay State Community Services.

Descriptions of mini-grant projects from last year and the 2010 grant application can both be found on the BHCHA's website at http://www.bluehillscha.org./

Deadline for submitting applications is Friday, Oct. 15 at 1 p.m.

For more information about the mini-grants or joining the BHCHA, contact Kate Russell at the Regional Center for Healthy Communities, 617-441-0700.

Allerton House Assisted Living at Hancock Park

Quincy, MA

by Kelly Richards

Angelo (Red) and Geraldine (Gerrie) DiGravio are quick to say that living at Allerton House at Hancock Park in Quincy, they "don't have to worry about a thing." The couple was encouraged by their three children, who live in Norwell, Hull and Rhode Island, to make the move to assisted living community when they began to require assistance due to health issues. Red says, "Anything we need, we just press a button and someone is right here to see what they can for us."

Angelo (Red) and Geraldine (Gerrie) DiGravio enjoy living at Allerton House Assisted Living in Quincy.

Red and Gerrie first met when he was in fifth grade and she was in fourth. Their paths crossed over the years-at school, at church and at Sunday school. Now married for 65 years, Red jokes, "Her parents were none too thrilled with me. His dad worked with mine at the Quincy Shipyard and used to tell him to keep me away from his daughter." Red pursued a Navy career during World War II, but decided that military life was too difficult for a young family. He joined the Quincy Fire Department, working with the alarm systems for all eight stations until his retirement 20 years later.

The DiGravios take great pride and joy in their three children, five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Red says, "We have plenty of room to entertain and a kitchen to make smacks. It makes it nice."

He also is impressed with the wonderful, accommodating staff, citing an example of a time when he needed medical attention and the Allerton House nurse drove him to a doctor's appointment herself. "She's always 'Johnny-on-the-spot," he says. As another example, he notes, "We can go down for meals, but if we're not feeling well, they'll bring them up for us. You can ask for anything, anytime here at Allerton House."

FOOT NOTES

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

A RASH JUDGMENT

Foot rashes have a wide variety of causes, including reactions to drugs, eczema, shingles, and chemical dermatitis. Contact with poisonous plants such as poison ivy or poison oak are common sources of foot rashes during warm months when many people walk barefoot or in sandals. Foot rashes can appear on the soles and tops of the feet and even in between the toes. Some foot rashes are extremely itchy. The most common causes of foot rashes are dry skin, exposure to heat, and athlete's foot. Only by having the rash examined will you be able to obtain a precise diagnosis. Your podiatrist can determine the cause of your foot rash and provide you with appropriate treatment.

Whatever is causing the rash that plagues every step you take, don't just accept is as the norm. Relief is close at hand through podiatric attention. There's no need to suffer with skin conditions and other pain-causing foot disorders. To alleviate pain, accomplish optimum function, prevent recurrence, and help you walk once again in comfort, we invite your call. Conveniently located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER, you can reach us at 781-986-3668 to make an appointment. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221. I am also affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

HINT: If you develop a foot rash, think of what is new in your foot's life. Eliminate it for awhile to see if the rash disappears.

$1.3 Billion Plan To Revitalize Downtown

Mayor To Present Quincy Center Agreement Monday

After more than two years of negotiations, Mayor Thomas P. Koch will present the Quincy City Council on Monday night with a comprehensive development agreement that will set in motion the City's $1.3 billion plan to revitalize Quincy Center.

The agreement lays out the financial terms and legal structure that will allow the City and its development partner, StreetWorks Development, LLC, to move forward on plans to create more than 1 million square feet of new office space, over 700 housing units and 570,000 square feet of new retail and restaurant space in Quincy Center.

Following Monday's meeting, Mayor Koch, his negotiating team, and StreetWorks will host two citywide community meetings on the development plans.

Koch To Host Two Community Meetings On Downtown

Mayor Thomas Koch will host two citywide community meetings on the City's Quincy Center redevelopment plans.

The first is set for Wednesday, Oct. 6 at 7 p.m. in the North Quincy High School auditorium. The second will be held Wednesday, Oct. 20 at 7 p.m. in the Quincy High School auditorium.

"We have said from day one of this process that we need to have our community involved every step of the way," said Koch. "We have made tremendous progress since we held our series of neighborhood meetings last year, and we want to share that progress, discuss the important next steps to make this project a reality, and answer any questions our residents have."

Koch stressed that the Quincy Center project will benefit the entire City well beyond the boundaries of downtown, saying that it will be the economic engine that protects core services throughout Quincy and will promote new growth in the other commercial centers around the City.

The Mayor will discuss the financial terms and the benefits of the agreement between the City and StreetWorks Development LLC, and members of the StreetWorks team will discuss the planning components of the downtown project.

"We will stay until the last question is asked," Koch said. "This project is vital to our City's future, and we will be laying out everything for the public in a transparent way so we can move forward together."

Fall Household Hazardous Waste Drop-Off Saturday

The City of Quincy Department of Public Works will host the fall Hazardous Household Waste Drop-off Saturday, Oct. 2, in the rear of the DPW at 55 Sea St.

The drop-off event, managed by Clean Harbors of Braintree, will begin at 8 a.m. and end at 10 a.m.

Residents are encouraged to arrive early as the line often wraps around Sea St. onto Southern Artery. Proof of residency is required.

The City of Quincy provides this free service to protect the environment and assist residents in the proper disposal of hazardous waste.

"The quality of life in Quincy depends heavily upon its residents being able to do the right thing for the environment and for each other," Mayor Tom Koch said.

The next HHW drop-off event is June 4, 2011.

Some of the eligible items for disposal are oil based paints, thinners, strippers, oils and varnishes, all household cleaners includ-

Library Director Retiring After 40 Years

McLaughlin: 'I've Worked With A Wonderful Community Of People'

By JOE REARDON

Looking back now, it seemed like such a small, trivial task. But when she was 6 years-old, receiving her first library card was a monumental achievement for Ann McLaughlin.

McLaughlin's father brought her to the children's room of the Thomas Crane Public Library where her goal, first and foremost, was to neatly print her name on the back of her first library card. When she received her card, McLaughlin felt as though an exciting world had opened up to her.

"This is where I got my first library card too," said McLaughlin. "I can remember thinking I can have whatever I want in this place and then come back and get more."

At the time, McLaughlin had no idea that it was at the Thomas Crane Library

7 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 6 at North Quincy High School and 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 20 at Quincy High School.

"We look forward to presenting an agreement to the City Council and the community that we believe creates a mechanism for unprecedented economic growth for our downtown, while at the same time protects the City's interests," Koch said. "In the end, this will mean 4,000 construction jobs, 5,700 permanent jobs, millions of dollars in new revenue to help us protect our core public services such as education and public safety, and a downtown that will make us all proud."

Added Kenneth Narva, Managing Partner, StreetWorks Development, "The negotiations over the last two years have been challenging at times, but we are very proud of the end result. Ultimately it's about an investment in Quincy, and we believe that Quincy has all of the components to become a major New England destination. We look forward to working with our partner, the City of Quincy, to re-create a new downtown mixed-use neighborhood that will benefit residents and visitors for generations."

Details of the agreement will not be made public until the document is presented to the Council on Monday, Oct. 4th, but the Administration has previously described the basic framework that is at the heart of the development deal a "private-public partnership" that puts much of the initial risk for the project in the hands of the developer.

Under the plan, StreetWorks will be responsible for paying the up-front costs on more than $227 million in public infrastructure improvements. Along with another $50 million in anticipated Federal and State grant funds, these public improvements will include underground utilities, new sidewalks, public places and parking garages needed to facilitate the development.

In turn, the City will use the new revenues from the project to 'buy' back the infrastructure from StreetWorks. Mayor Koch has repeatedly emphasized that existing taxpayers of Quincy will not be responsible for paying for this infrastructure: new taxes and parking revenues from the project itself will pay for these public improvements.

Mayor Koch will be joined by the City's negotiating team for the Council presentation, including attorney Thomas Kiley of Quincy, who coordinated the efforts of the negotiating team. A number of lawyers, financial advisors and development specialists worked with the Administration team on the agreement with StreetWorks, Koch said.

"We enlisted the best in the business to represent us at the negotiating table, knowing that that our first job was to protect the interests of our taxpayers," Koch said. "We are fully confident that we negotiated the most beneficial agreement possible and we are looking forward to answering questions from councillors and the public as we move through this process."

In addition to a presentation from the Mayor and the City's negotiating team on the details of the agreement, city councillors will hear an update on the development vision from Richard Heapes, Co-Founder of StreetWorks.

The Council is expected to schedule a series of subcommittee meetings on the development plan, as well as two public hearings in coming weeks.

Special Education Subcommittee Public Meeting Oct. 6 At QHS's Presidents's Cafe

The subcommittee to Special Education of the Quincy School Committee will hold an open, public meeting Wednesday, Oct. 6 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Presidents's Cafe in Quincy High School, 52 Coddington St.

Subcommittee members include Chairperson Emily Lebo, Anne Mahoney and Dave McCarthy.

Parents and guardians of children with special needs are welcome to attend to keep abreast of special education concerns.

For more information, contact Emily Lebo at elebo@comcast.net.

Environmental Network Meeting On Quincy Center Redevelopment Project Oct. 5

The Quincy Environmental Network (QEN) invites the public to attend a presentation on the Quincy Center Redevelopment Project Tuesday, Oct. 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall.

Guest speakers will be representatives from Mayor Thomas Koch's office and the developer of the project, StreetWorks.

The presentation will focus on the environmental aspects of the project.

The Mayor's Office and the StreetWorks team will discuss the evolution of the project, the "green" building technologies that will be used in the development, and plans to restore the Town Brook Culvert as part of the project.

Light refreshments will be served. A question and answer period will follow the presentation

"We're eager to hear about the green spaces, environmental construction practices, and impact the project will have on the Town Brook," said QEN Spokesperson Steve Perdios. "It's been 18 months since we've seen a draft version of the plan and we hope to see some substantial improvements made."

Members of the QEN have been working for more than two years to raise awareness of the opportunity the Town Brook presents to the downtown redevelopment project. The brook currently runs underground in a pipe under the Hancock Parking Lot and the Ross Garage. QEN members have been advocating for the opening up of the people and for a new park to be built around a "daylighted" Town Brook to beautify the area. It is believed that a new park could add significantly to the retail, housing, and office space proposed for the area, while creating an amenity for all Quincy residents.

For more information on Tuesday's event, call 617-877-5975.

A VIVID EXAMPLE
When an unusually radiant turquoise-colored tourmaline was first discovered in the Brazilian state of Paraiba in the late 1980s, it caused quite a bit of excitement. This variety of tourmaline seems to possess a glow that approximates neon. The Paraiba tourmaline owes its unique color to the presence of copper, an element that never before had been observed in tourmaline, and manganese. The interplay of these two elements results in a variety of fascinatingly beautiful colors, ranging from sky blue and sapphire blue to bluish-violet and purple. However, it is the high concentrations of copper that give rise to the radiant blue and turquoise hues most coveted by connoisseurs and readily apparent to everyone else.
Tourmaline is an exquisite gem of many colors. Some stones even display more than one color, like the "watermelon" tourmaline of pink and green. See the beautiful gemstones of the world at our very special jewelry store. For fine, beautiful jewelry in all of nature's wondrous array of colors, we welcome you to visit our showroom of exciting, inspiring displays. Quincy College Board Tackles Agenda With New Leader

William Grindlay Chairman

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Despite their diminished numbers, the Quincy College Board wasted little time during their annual meeting last week as the six remaining governors elected a new chairman, reviewed finances, enrollment, staff, accrediting and safety issues and discussed a strategy and timetable for selecting a new president or an interim president.

WILLIAM GRINDLAY

In their first vote, board members elected as chairman, William Grindlay of Quincy who has served nine years as a governor. Grindlay acknowledged the clashes and firestorms of the summer, but noted that the board experienced a similar crisis years ago.

"The college and the board will, also, survive this crisis," said Grindlay, adding, "I believe the college will emerge stronger."

While the search for a new president ignited the crisis and ranks as the board's most pressing business, Grindlay said the governors should wait until new members are appointed and are aboard before making the decision on a president or interim president.

The governors voted a new term for Mary Jo Brogna as first vice chairman and elected Francis Byrne as second vice-chairman. Also in attendance were Governors Thomas Feenan, Donald Gratz, and Pedro Viejo-Rodriguez.

Quincy College students "are my first concern," said Grindlay who recalled earning his bachelor's and master's degrees from Bentley and Northeastern through night and weekend courses. "There are many students in the college in the same boat that I was."

There are currently seven openings on the Board of Governors due to five resignations, one long-term vacancy and the seat held by former chairman David Dennis whose term expired Aug.30 and who must be reappointed by the Appointing Council.

Four of the resignations followed a summer of sparring and gridlock over the appointment of a new president and adherence to residency rules mandated by the college charter. The charter limits the number of non-residents of Quincy to four plus an alumnus. Now all board members must file an annual affidavit affirming their residency.

Grindlay recognized that different governors will have different opinions in the future, but cautioned that members "can disagree without being disagreeable. None of us receive any compensation. Keep that in mind."

Board members also had to address other fallout from the turmoil of the summer including a query on the upheaval from the Dr. Barbara Brittingham, Director, Commission on Institutes of Higher Education and a complaint filed with the Attorney General's office charging a violation of the Open Meeting Law.

One of the major issues facing the college is a move toward independence from the City of Quincy. While the college remains a department of the city, the governors and leadership must adhere to the state's Open Meeting Law.

In addition, President Sue Harris informed the board she plans to be fully retired by Dec. 30 at the latest and members agreed that either a permanent or interim replacement will be named by that date or even as early as their next meeting in November. Harris said she would be available during the transition.

And The Endorsement Goes To . .

Political endorsements are as much a part of campaigns as front lawn signs, fundraisers and door-knocking.

Candidates seek endorsements from labor unions, public safety associations and of course, those in elective office.

They're seen as a feather in a candidate's cap and some think they can make a difference in a close election. Others believe endorsements carry little weight at the ballot box.

Nevertheless, in Quincy, the biggest feather of them all is the mayor -- the city's chief executive. Having the mayor's support is seen as a political coup in some respects. It certainly should help, and not hurt, a candidate's prospects at the polls in Quincy.

This year, Mayor Tom Koch has decided who'll he vote for in the hotly contested races for governor and Congress. Both are Independents and both are Quincy guys.

In the race for Congress in the 10th Congressional District, Koch says he'll personally support his former boss, former Mayor Jim Sheets, who is one of five candidates seeking to replace Quincy Democrat William Delahunt in the 10th District.

KOCH

"After Mayor (Frank) McCauley gave me my start in public service, I spent 12 years in the administration of Jim Sheets as his executive secretary and later as Park Commissioner. He played an instrumental role in my career and I have great respect for all he did for the City of Quincy. I will be voting for him."

It may not be an official endorsement, but Koch's support could give Sheets a boost here. The 12-year mayor is running against Democrat William Keating, Republican Jeff Perry and two other Independents: former state Rep. Maryanne Lewis and Joe Van Ness of Martha's Vineyard. Koch was neutral in the Congressional race before the Primary Sept. 14.

SHEETS

Obviously Koch's support for Sheets shows friendship runs deeper than party politics. Koch is a registered Democrat while Sheets, a longtime Democrat, switch to unenrolled earlier this year.

Koch was Sheets's campaign manager when the former Ward 4 councillor won the mayoral election of 1989. Koch served 12 years in the Sheets' administration as both the mayor's executive secretary and later as the city's director of Park, Forestry and Cemetery departments.

Endorsements of any kind in the Congressional race could pay dividends at the polls Nov. 2. The race is seen as tight with Quincy potentially playing a pivotal role in the eventual outcome.

Koch's support in any race should be beneficial. He has a strong political following in Quincy. He's been elected mayor twice by comfortable margins and comes from a well-known and respected Quincy family. He also has relatives living in other parts of the 10th District which spans from Quincy to Cape Cod and the Islands.

Before the Sept. 14 primary, 16 other Quincy elected officials publicly endorsed Keating, the Norfolk County district attorney who moved to Quincy earlier this year. Keating defeated Robert O'Leary in the Democratic Primary here by nearly a 4-1 margin – 6,558 votes. Keating had 8,795 votes to O'Leary's 2,237 votes in Quincy; he won the nomination by 800 votes.

While many believe it's a two-candidate race between Keating and Perry, Sheets – who was elected mayor six times – could be a factor in the final outcome. Some see Sheets siphoning votes away from Keating here. Others think Sheets – as an Independent – could take votes from the Republican Perry who polled 1,464 votes here on Primary Day enroute to his winning the GOP nomination.

But it's been anything but a typical election year starting with Republican Scott Brown's historic win in the special U.S. Senate race this past January. So, no one really knows how things will turn out at the polls until the voting ends at 8 p.m. Nov. 2.

How have other mayoral endorsements panned out over the years?

Back in 1989, during his final year in office, former Mayor Frank McCauley – one of the city's most well-known Republicans – publicly endorsed William Weld, another Republican, for governor. Weld defeated Democrat John Silber in 1990 to become the state's first Republican governor since 1975. The final vote was 1,175,817 for Weld, 1,099,878 for Silber - a margin of 75,939.

Despite winning the state, Weld lost Quincy to Silber. The vote was 18,629 for Silber, 16,606 for Weld. Not a bad showing, however, considering Quincy had significantly more registered Democrats and Republicans (and Independents) back then.

Four years ago, in the Democratic primary for governor, then mayor William Phelan publicly endorsed Christopher Gabrieli. Gabrieli narrowly lost to Democratic nominee Deval Patrick in Quincy by a close vote. Patrick polled 4,983 votes to Gabrieli's 4,889 votes - a margin of only 94 votes. (Attorney General Tom Reilly received 4,219 votes.)

Having the mayor endorsing candidates in state and federal elections is an interesting dynamic. That's because the city's chief executive is elected in a non-partisan election. But state and federal elections are partisan, meaning the candidates represent political parties or campaign as Independents.

In the governor's race, Koch has gone Independent again: he's publicly backing former Quincy city councillor Tim Cahill. Koch announced his support for Cahill, a longtime Democrat who switched to unenrolled (Independent) last year, at a campaign rally earlier this month at Granite Links Golf Club in West Quincy. More than 1,000 Cahill supporters attended the rally.

CAHILL

"I've known Tim for 30 years and we're good friends," Koch says of his bond with the two-term state treasurer. Koch, while serving as the executive secretary for Sheets, adds, "I sat with Tim on the City Council for years. He's been a supporter of mine. He's a friend and Tim's been very capable in every elected capacity he's held." Cahill served six years as Norfolk County treasurer before being elected state treasurer in 2002.

"I have no doubt Tim could do the job as governor," Koch continues. "He understands the importance of state aid at the local level. He has a terrific work ethic and is a former small business owner. I like his approach on tax issues. He also gets a lot of input from well-qualified people before he makes a decision. He always surrounds himself with good people."

Koch also lauded Cahill for overseeing the state's School Building Authority which he called a "huge success."

"He also a good family man," the mayor added.

Months ago, Koch received a call from Gov. Deval Patrick asking him for his endorsement in the governor's race. Koch declined.

"I told the Governor that Tim's been a friend for 30 years. He was fine with that. He was very respectful on the phone," Koch said.

Endorsements . . . sometimes you get them, sometimes you don't.

ANOTHER CANDIDATE has decided to run for City Councillor at-large next fall.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, who was re-elected to a fifth two-year term in 2009, says he will run for one of the three councillor at-large seats in 2011. Gutro also served two years as City Council President in 2006 and 2007.

GUTRO

There is a possibility of at least one council at-large seat opening next fall. That's because Councillor John Keenan is running for State Senate. Although he could run for re-election as councillor if he wins the Senate race Nov. 2, conventional wisdom says he would serve out his term and not seek re-election to the City Council.

Asked if he'd still run for councillor at-large if Keenan's seat is not open next fall, Gutro said simply, "I'm in."

That makes two candidates already for councillor at-large next fall. Last week, former Ward 4 Councillor Jay Davis threw his hat in the ring.

Gutro's decision to run for councillor at-large could trigger a host of candidates for the Ward 5 council seat. "We have a very deep bench of community activists in Ward 5," Gutro says.

A RECEPTION FOR John Keenan, Democratic nominee for State Senate, will be held Wednesday, Oct. 6 from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Commonwealth Restaurant, 79 Parkingway, Quincy. Suggested donation $25 per person or attend as John's guest. All are welcome.

TACKEY CHAN, Democratic nominee for State Representative in the 2nd Norfolk District, will have a fundraiser Wednesday, Oct. 6 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Quincy Yacht Club, 1310 Sea St. Suggested donation is $25, $50 or $100. Donations will be accepted at the door. All are welcome.

PERSONAL: Thank you Phyllis G. for your kind note. I enjoyed your reminiscing, too.

POST OFFICE, SQUANTUM, MASS.

THIS IS AN old postcard view of the Squantum Post Office when it was in a variety store operated by Grace Polson who published this postcard in the 1920s. Located at 735 East Squantum St., the store was first opened in 1912 as Watt's Variety with the post office that was in this building for almost 50 years. Note the stop sign on the utility pole along with the painted silver band that designated trolley stops. Although not readily recognizable, this building still exists in the same location. Dimattia Sails and Yacht Systems have built an addition on the rear and they have been here for almost 50 years. The front porch, now closed in, has served a number of businesses and is now home to Results Real Estate owned by Maureen Glynn. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Union Defies Order, Votes Work Stoppage At City Hall

By FRANK McCAULEY

This Week
1979

Service employees at Quincy City Hospital voted 66 to 8 to ignore a "cease and desist" order and stage a one-day walkout.

Jerry Shea, a staff director of Local 880 said all but handful of the 150 members would stay out of work from 6 a.m. Wednesday to 6 a.m. Thursday. Many of the employees would be picketing during the day he said, to protest lack of progress in negotiations with the city.

Enough workers would remain on the job, on a rotating basis, to handle any emergencies that might arise, Shea said.

"The Mayor is unable or unwilling to give us an offer," Shea said. "The work stoppage is the Union's way of saying: We want to straighten this thing out," he continued. "Our membership is furious."

Over 150 Residents Participate In Medicine Disposal Day

The Mayor's Drug Task Force, in conjunction with Impact Quincy and the Drug Enforcement Agency, collected several thousand doses of controlled and over-the-counter pills as well as dozens of used sharps last Saturday.

The event, the third of its kind in Quincy, was designed to encourage residents to clean out their medicine cabinets and dispose of any unwanted or expired medication. Over 150 residents participated in the free 'Rx Disposal Day'.

"I am delighted that so many Quincy residents participated in this event," said Mayor Koch. "The Drug Task Force has worked for over two years to bring light to this major issue, and this collection effort takes away the opportunity for a young person to begin a lifetime of substance abuse," added Koch.

Research shows that many young people begin experimenting with drugs simply by opening the medicine cabinet at home. Many of the drugs that people have in their homes can be powerful, highly addictive narcotics that should only be taken when prescribed by a doctor.

The disposal day was a partnership between the Drug Enforcement Agency, Impact Quincy and the City. The DEA sponsored a nationwide take-back event for the first time, and dozens of local communities participated.

Quincy has provided a roadmap for other communities seeking to host an Rx Disposal Day. Several other towns including Hingham and Milton sought Quincy's guidance in planning their events.

The Drug Task Force will continue to host prescription disposal days twice a year. Residents are encouraged to visit the city's website for more information.

where she would carve out a place for herself as a living, breathing institution in the city. After 40 years working in the city's public libraries, the last 17 as the Thomas Crane director, McLaughlin will be stepping down and retiring, leaving a void that can be replaced but never duplicated. It's with bittersweet feelings that McLaughlin is stepping down.

"As much as 40 years seems like enough, I'm going to miss the people," she said. "I've worked with a wonderful community of people. Some of them have been here as long as I have."

McLaughlin's rise to the top was hardly meteoric, but rather slow and steady, where she gathered invaluable knowledge along the way. She believes working in other capacities was a huge positive and only helped her when she became the Thomas Crane director.

"Working the way up the system was an advantage because when a problem comes up, I've been there," McLaughlin explained. "I wouldn't ask anyone to do anything I didn't do.

"I felt like the public library was where the whole walk of life comes in. The opportunity to work with new readers and people who have come into the country sounded very rewarding."

Her career began after graduating from Simmons College with a master's degree in library science. McLaughlin's first job was as a library assistant at the North Quincy branch. A few years later she transferred to the Adams Shore branch where she worked as a reference librarian. Not long after she was promoted to the library director. In 1983, she was named assistant director under Warren Watson and has been there ever since.

Along the way, McLaughlin has had several job opportunities in other locations, but she could never imagine herself working anywhere other than Thomas Crane. Born in Quincy, she lived there for several years before moving to Milton. She and her husband moved to Falmouth 20 years ago. McLaughlin has been making the commute from Cape Cod ever since, turning down the chance to become director of the Falmouth Public Library along the way.

"I didn't leave when I had opportunities to leave," she said. "I wanted to stay here."

McLaughlin was quick to dismiss the notion that public libraries have outdated themselves in society, quite the contrary according to McLaughlin. The Thomas Crane numbers are astounding and the library is more popular now, and used more than any time in its history.

Last year, there were a mind-boggling 15 million hits on the Thomas Crane website and library frequenters spent a collective 9,000 hours a week utilizing the building's services. As for books being taken out of the library, upwards of 350 an hour have been checked out on several occasions.

"Public libraries are busier now than they ever have been," McLaughlin said. "Anybody can come in. Our budget goes to subscribing to databases what happens if you have to pay for the information? Our role is as important as it ever was.

"We're more than twice as busy as we were five years ago."

Having a career that put her in a library setting was the perfect situation for McLaughlin. She was an avid reader long before she was thinking of college or just what she wanted to do in life. It was the logical career path for her.

She can still vividly recall her father, William McLaughlin, reading to her as a little girl and the Robert Louis Stevenson's poetry she received as a gift on her first Holy Communion. Her father's love of literature was contagious.

"It's a great thing to pass along," she said.

McLaughlin has often found characters in books and novels that she can relate to with their situations. "In books, people find validation of things you see people living through," she said. "When you like a character you get to know them and they become part of the family. The power of the written word is amazing."

McLaughlin follows the work of author Robert Hellanga and the characters he has brought to life in his various novels. "There are a lot of authors who write in a series, so you really get to know the characters," she said.

The prospect of working in one of the most beautiful buildings in the country was not lost on McLaughlin. Built under the plans of architect Henry Hobson Richardson in 1872, the building had a unique design with the entrance set to the far right, rather than in the middle.

Additions to the building went up in 1908, 1939 and the most recent in 2001 by architects Childs, Bertman and Tsechares, which more than doubled the size of the library. Once called the "best village library in the United States" in Harper's Weekly, Thomas Crane showed up at No. 43 among the most handsome buildings, architecturally, by the American Institute of Architects.

"It's a building you'd want to come in and explore," said McLaughlin. "I never wanted to work anywhere but a public library. And it would be hard to work in some ordinary building after working in this beautiful, historical building."

McLaughlin is especially proud of working on the committee to secure an architect and have a say in the aesthetics for the latest addition that was completed in 2001. "My life was totally consumed with the project," McLaughlin said.

The building itself is arguably the most recognized and beloved in the city. "It's part of the fabric of the city and means a lot to the people," McLaughlin said. "People in the city have a strong need to protect, care for and preserve this building."

And although there's a part of her that is sad closing the chapter on some 40 years of her life, on the same note, McLaughlin is excited what the future holds for her.

One of seven sisters, McLaughlin also has a brother and plans to visit with them and hopes to travel extensively. Alaska is at the top of her list as one of the places she wants to visit and a trip to Ireland is also an adventure McLaughlin now has the time for. "I can do anything I want," she said. "It's a pretty amazing feeling."

McLaughlin always feels a bit nostalgic when she sees young children in the library, many of them for the first time. "I feel very pleased to see the kids," she said. "We welcome kids, we welcome families. When I see kids in here I see how the parents realize how important the library is.

"We are part of their lives too."

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Carbon Monoxide Hazards

Here's a refresher on the hazards of carbon monoxide (CO). There are some subjects worth reviewing yearly, this being one, especially where the heating season is approaching.

Carbon monoxide (CO) is the number one cause of poisoning deaths in the US. However, CO poisoning deaths have been on the decline. The reason given for the decline is the improvement in combustion devices, furnaces, motor vehicles, stoves, water heaters, etc. Automobile incidents comprise ½ the non-fire CO incidents; idling vehicles are the cause of these incidents. 2/3 of all CO exposures occur in the home. CO exposures are not linked to sleeping, but as previously specified, highly seasonal. Fatalities over age 65 are double the rate of the general population (23% fatalities while 12% of the population). There are 2 to 3 times more deaths in males than females. CO production rates can be significantly increased by problems with combustion devices, furnaces, etc, when abnormal conditions of operation exist.

CO is treacherous where it is poisonous, colorless, odorless and tasteless. It is undetectable unless you have the appropriate alarmed device monitoring your in house atmosphere. When breathed, it enters the lungs where it competes with oxygen. It attaches to the hemoglobin in the blood 200 times faster than oxygen causing cells to die. Exposure can result in flu-like symptoms ranging from headaches, nausea, dizziness, confusion, fainting, unconsciousness and death.

Should you suspect an exposure to CO; get out of the house into fresh air; call the fire department from a neighbor's house and seek medical attention.

Prevention consists of appropriately installed, working CO detectors on each habitable level of a dwelling including habitable portions of basements and attics. They must be located outside bedrooms, within 10' of the bedroom doors and within rooms containing approved unvented gas heaters. In an existing home, battery operated and plug in with battery backup are acceptable. In addition, have a qualified technician inspect appliances; check vents, flues & chimneys for blockages & leaks; do not use a gas oven to heat a home; don't leave vehicles running in a garage and never use a grill or hibachi in your home.

Once again I subscribe to that ounce of prevention for protection. Maintain fuel-burning appliances in proper working order, use them as directed, and be mindful of conditions that may restrict their ventilation requirements. Install a carbon monoxide detector as per instructions and in the unlikely event of an exposure, leave the house and call the fire department immediately.

Be safe!

ing drain and plumbing cleaners, automotive fluids including oil and gasoline, chemical fertilizers and insecticides, polishes, ni-cad and lithium batteries, roofing tar and driveway sealants.

Of the utmost importance are all mercury containing products such as thermostats, thermometers, fluorescent tubes, CFL (swirly) light bulbs, button batteries and mercurochrome. Once released into the environment, mercury persists for long periods of time and does not degrade into harmless chemicals.

Mercury can damage the nervous system, brain, kidneys, liver and immune system. Developing brains and nervous systems of children are very sensitive to mercury.

While gathering products for the drop-off event leave materials in original containers and tighten all caps and lids. Sort and pack items separately in sturdy upright boxes. NEVER MIX CHEMICALS. Pack your car the morning of the event and drive directly to the DPW. Do not smoke while handling hazardous material and do not bring children in the car with you.

Items not accepted at the hazardous waste drop-off event are latex paint, tires, ammunition, fireworks and explosives, commercial/industrial/biological waste, prescription medicine, radioactive waste and smoke detectors.

For the proper disposal of these materials visit the City's website www.quincyma.gov/Government/PWD/Trash.cfm, and scroll down to "How can I get rid of..."

City Council Passes Rules For Special Permit Developments

The Quincy City Council recently passed rules to govern how it conducts itself when it sits as a special permit granting authority.

The rules were introduced by Councillor John Keenan and were reviewed by a special subcommittee, the city's Planning director, and the city Solicitor's office.

On development projects located within a Planned Unit Development zoning district, and in other limited situations, the City Council, rather than the Zoning Board of Appeals, is the body which approves development permits. Recently, the Council granted permits to BJ's Warehouse and Lowe's, and denied a permit for C-Mart in North Quincy.

"In the recent cases that came before us," Keenan said, "the process of acting on the permits created controversies and opened the city to legal liability. One of the main reasons was that the City Council, acting as the permit granting authority, was without rules."

The rules introduced by Keenan and passed by the Council address such issues as the form of the application, fees, scheduling of hearings, how the application will be processed, and documents required by the Council.

"With these rules in place," Keenan said, "the City Council, in matters involving special permits, will be able to focus more on the substance of the permit requests and how proposed projects will impact neighborhoods, and less time bogged down in procedural matters," Keenan added.

Gutro Seeks Active Traffic Commission

By LAURA GRIFFIN

The city's Traffic Commission is like a phantom of the past.

The Commission exists on paper through a city ordinance signed, sealed and delivered in February, 1995.

However, no one knows where the Traffic Commission has been for 15 years, but now's the time to activate it, according to Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro.

"No one seems to know of a Traffic Commission being established," Gutro told fellow councillors Sept. 20 when he presented copies of Chapter 2.132 of the city's codes. The copies had the signature of former Mayor James Sheets and City Council Clerk Joseph Shea.

Gutro believes it's time to activate the dormant statute and remodel it for today's issues and asked City Council to discuss the issue no later than Nov. 1.

There's no shortage of reasons that traffic should be addressed on a regular basis with open meetings and public input, according to Gutro who cited three pedestrian accidents in the city the previous week, major bridgework underway at both ends of the city as well as plans to revitalize the downtown and neighborhood traffic studies.

In fact, last summer, a six-year survey by the Boston Region Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO) ranked Quincy as the 16th worst city in the state for bicycle and pedestrian safety.

The city's traffic needs "a mechanism that we have for every other function," according to Gutro who cited the Licensing Board as one example that the Commission could follow.

In addition, Gutro believes that the Traffic Commission membership, as designated in the code, should be updated to include a representative of residents and businesspersons as well as city officials who, once a month, "sit down routinely in a public setting and discuss these issues."

Under the current code, the commission would consist of six city officials or their designees from the police, fire and public works departments as well as the City Clerk, Planning Director and Director of Transportation (Traffic Engineer).

Gutro asked City Solicitor James Timmins to research the issue to determine if the ordinance had ever been rescinded.

"It has not been rescinded," Timmins said this week, but stated that Sheets responded to the Traffic Commission ordinance by hiring a traffic engineer.

In his presentation, Gutro cited the three pedestrian accidents that occurred in mid-September. These included a fatality on Washington St. at Elm St., an 11-year-old boy hit on Billings Road and an 18-year-old woman struck on Furnace Brook Pkwy which is under the jurisdiction of the State Police.

Police Captain John Dougan said charges of Motor Vehicle Homicide were filed in connection with the fatality and the Billings Road incident is under investigation.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee suggested that a Traffic Commission would just meddle in the work of Traffic Engineer Jack Gillan and become a political tool for frustrated drivers.

Police Chief Paul Keenan said Tuesday that Gillan currently handles traffic issues and the police respond to ward councillors who send daily reports of traffic problems in their areas.

In addition, Keenan said that he and his department heads have regular interaction with the fire chief, his officers as well as the Department of Public Works and the public can call his department or Gillan's office.

"It's not a bad idea," Keenan said, initially, but he believes the problems are being addressed.

At last week's meeting, City Council President Kevin Coughlin suggested the Traffic Commission could assist officials because there are so many traffic issues.

"I'll go along with whatever the City Council decides," Gillan said this week.

Board Tackles College Agenda With New Leader

campus enrollment is up over 31%. The bad news is the Quincy campus enrollment appears stagnant at this time.

"I don't understand why they're not skyrocketing," said Board Member Thomas Feenan of the enrollment which has been increasing over the past five years, but has not reached the high of 2002.

Kapoor attributed the 2002 total to a spike in international student enrollment that year. Those numbers receded after the 9/11 terrorist strike. This year's student body includes students from 25 countries, including Nepal, China, South Korea, Russia, India and Turkey.

The numbers indicate a decrease in the under 20 age group balanced by a slight increase in the enrollment of 21 to 30-year-old students.

"I am confident that the total FTE (full time enrollment) for this year will be between 2600 and 2650. This would be the highest since the fall of 2001," stated Kapoor. The written report does not include final fall enrollment.

While the Division of Business and Public Service increased by over two percent, science and health enrollments are down and Liberal Arts remains majority's field of choice.

The governors also reviewed results of a survey of 2009 graduates that indicated that a hefty majority (86%) was satisfied that Quincy College prepared them for their current educational program. Of those employed, 85% are employed in a field related to their Quincy College studies.

Kim Puhala, Director of Institutional Research, presented the results which had a 44% response, nearly double the mean expected for surveys. Graduates cited a need for more computer skill programs, along with tutoring and financial aid services and parking facilities.

Former DPW Commissioner
'An Invaluable Public Servant'

City Remembers Steve O'Donnell

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City officials remembered the late Steve O'Donnell as a dedicated family man and for his accomplishments as Quincy's former commissioner of Public Works.

Mr. O'Donnell died Sept. 14 at his home in Weymouth after a long battle with cancer. He was 47 years old.

The former DPW commissioner was also lauded for his accomplishments working for the state and for his service to his country as a U.S. Marine.

"In a world where there are far too many pretenders, Steve O'Donnell was the real deal," said City Council President Kevin Coughlin, Ward 3. "His personality was infectious; his voice captured your attention; his laugh lit up a room and he will not soon be forgotten.

"Steve was the embodiment of what it means to be a true public servant putting every bit of himself into getting the job done," Coughlin added.

O'Donnell headed the city's Department of Public Works under Mayor William Phelan. He described a great loss for family, friends and the public.

"First and foremost, Steve was a wonderful husband and father and an invaluable public servant who helped move the city forward," said Phelan.

"I was proud to work along with him and he will be missed," said Phelan adding, "My heart goes out to his family and friends, particularly to his wife and children."

STEVE O'DONNELL

Coughlin and the councillors dedicated the Sept. 20th meeting in honor of O'Donnell.

In his tribute, Coughlin outlined O'Donnell's two decades of public service at the state's Department of Transportation, at MassHighway and as Quincy's Commissioner of Public Works as well as his service as a United State Marine and his dedication to veterans.

Coughlin and other councillors noted O'Donnell grew up in Quincy and was the youngest Exalted Ruler of the Quincy Elks.

Coughlin and all speakers noted that nothing was more important to O'Donnell than his wife Pamala and his two young sons, Colin and Ryan.

O'Donnell coached his sons for four years in the Weymouth Youth Flag Football.

Memorial donations may be made to Pathways to Healing, 516 North Bedford St., West Bridgewater, MA 02333 or Homes for Our Troops, 6 Main St., Taunton, MA 02780.

13th Annual QMC Cancer Walk Tops $100,000

Close to 1,000 people turned out for Quincy Medical Center's 13th Annual QMC Cancer Walk Sunday at Pageant Field in Merrymount. Among the walkers were cancer survivors, families and friends who lost loved ones to the disease, health care workers, caregivers and supportive community members. While each of them had their own reasons for taking part, they all shared the common goal of raising funds to help provide cancer screening, education and treatment at Quincy Medical Center.

"One day I know there will be a cure, perhaps even in my lifetime, but until then the best weapon we have is early detection and aggressive treatment," said Grace Murphy-McAuliffe, Chair of the QMC Board of Trustees. "That's where this community can make the most impact... By standing together today and throughout the years to raise money, we can help our friends, our neighbors, and our family members get the screening, the early detection and the treatment needed to keep cancer at bay. With the help of all of you here today and over the past 13 years, we have raised over $1.8 million for the Curry Fund!"

Joining McAuliffe in thanking the crowd for their support were, Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch, QMC Interim CEO John N. Kastanis, QMC Foundation Board Chair Tony Agnitti, and QMC Cancer Walk Medical Chair Sarah May, MD, of Commonwealth Hematology and Oncology.

"I would like to thank our presenting sponsor, Granite Medical, as well as all of our corporate sponsors and each and every one of you for your ongoing and enthusiastic support," Kastanis said.

The QMC Cancer Walk supports the Marie A. Curry Fund at Quincy Medical Center, which provides free cancer screenings, educational programs and cancer detection medical equipment for the community. Proceeds from the 13th Annual QMC Cancer Walk will be used to enhance the hospital's surgical oncology program, including breast and thoracic surgery clinics scheduled to open this fall. The event raised more than $100,000 and donations are still coming in.

Donations for the QMC Cancer Walk may be sent to the Quincy Medical Center Development Office, 114 Whitwell Street, Quincy, MA 02169.

A TEAM OF walkers crosses the finish line at Pageant Field in Merrymount Park.

2 Savings estimate based on a $200,000, 30-year mortgage with an interest rate of 4.5%, which corresponds to an APR of 4.587% (after 0.25% mortgage discount is applied) with a loan to value of less than 80% and a monthly payment of principal and interest (excluding taxes and insurance) of $1,013.37. Interest rate used is for savings estimate only and may not reflect current available interest rate. Savings estimate assumes that loan is outstanding for 30 years, which is not typical. Average length of a Sovereign loan is 67 months. The estimated savings for an average Sovereign mortgage customer who pays off his/her mortgage loan in 67 months will be about $1,961.76. Individual savings will vary depending on the amount and length of your loan. The e-pay discount is available for some adjustable rate mortgages but the discount is only available during the initial interest rate period. All applications are subject to credit approval. The checking account must remain open while your mortgage loan is outstanding with sufficient funds to pay your monthly payment or the rate discount will be terminated. One discount per loan. Contact your Mortgage Developments Officer for details.

3 To get the FlexLock Home Equity Line of Credit Fixed Introductory APR and variable "go to" APR shown, you must apply between 9/18/10 and 11/12/10, must have or open a Sovereign checking or money market savings account, and use automatic payment from the qualifying account. The introductory APR will apply only during the first 6 billing cycles after your FlexLock line is opened. Thereafter, the APR, including the APR on any existing balance, will convert to the applicable variable "go to" APR. "Go to" APRs on FlexLock lines may vary monthly based on the latest U.S. Prime Rate as published in The Wall Street Journal as of the first business day of the month, plus a margin of 0.74% for lines of $100,000 - $750,000 (now 3.99% APR), a margin of 1.24% for lines of $25,000 - $99,999 (now 4.49% APR) or a margin of 1.49% for lines of $10,000 - $24,999 (now 4.74% APR). Maximum APR is 18%. Minimum APR is 3.24%. The variable APR may also increase if automatic payment from the qualifying account is discontinued. All APRs assume that your total mortgage loans, including your FlexLock line, do not exceed 80% of the value of your 1 - 4 family owner-occupied home in MA, RI, CT, NH, NJ, PA, DE or VA. There is a $220 termination fee if you close the line within 36 months. An annual fee, if any, will be charged during the Draw Period, and will be $0, $25 or $50, depending on the Sovereign deposit account you maintain, and may change if you change the deposit account. An annual fee of $25 will be charged as long as you maintain a Sovereign Preferred or Preferred Partnership Checking Account or Preferred Money Market Savings Account. An annual fee of $50 will be charged if you do not maintain one of the above deposit accounts. A $175 non-refundable fee will be charged if your property is held in trust. The $50 fixed rate lock fee for each lock-in request is waived through 12/31/10. Property insurance is, and flood insurance may be, required. Maximum line amount is $750,000. A Job Well Done

On Monday, Sept. 20, Officers Thomas Gaeta and Robert Kelly were dispatched to a Houghs Neck residence on a report of a unwanted intoxicated male who was fighting in the street.

LT. DAN MINTON

While en route to the call, Dispatch updated units that the male suspect was now banging at the door of apartment #1. Upon arrival, the Officers approached the male suspect, who was now sitting on the stairs outside of unit #1. The suspect appeared to be intoxicated and was extremely red in the face and had bloodshot eyes. He was angry, stating that he wasn't allowed in the apartment. The officers escorted the suspect away from the residence to the curb area.

As Officer Kelly detained the suspect, Officer Gaeta spoke with the female caller. She said that the suspect was an ex-boyfriend who just randomly showed up at her residence extremely intoxicated. She refused to let him in not only because of his drinking but also due to his bizarre behavior. At this time, the suspect's cousin arrived on scene, exited her vehicle and started yelling at the Officers to arrest the suspect because "he does this all the time."

Officer Gaeta intervened and after asking the cousin to calm down numerous times, led her away from the suspect. The cousin's actions enraged the suspect, who grew extremely hostile and started to stand up from the curb, disobeying commands to sit back down. At this point, Officer Kelly grabbed the suspect's hand to bring him back down to the curb, but the suspect pulled away and then used his elbow as he struck Officer Kelly in the face. At this time, both officers ordered the suspect to the ground and told him he was under arrest. The suspect refused and resisted arrest.

At this time, Officer Gaeta requested more units for assistance as Officer Kelly stepped back and issued a short burst of OC (mace) to the facial area of the suspect. The suspect briefly reacted to the mace, then became more enraged, yelling that he wanted to fight the officer with the "gun." He then began rushing back and forth at the Officers and was then given a second burst of mace.

The suspect, again unfazed, continued his threatening behavior and yelled out, "How do you know I don't have a weapon?" He then reached into his waist area, causing both officers to rush the suspect and bring him to the ground. The suspect's statement, combined with his action of concealing his hands, changed the situation into a viable threat to the officers.

The suspect kicked Officer Gaeta in the leg (felony) as he struggled to get free. Officer Gaeta took out his asp and struck the suspect in the right shoulder blade. This brought the suspect to the ground, where he was face down, keeping his hands hidden in his waistband. This is a safety concern for officers since this is where concealed weapons are often kept. The suspect refused commands to put his hands behind his back, so Officer Gaeta struck the suspect again in the right shoulder with his asp. The suspect then complied and was handcuffed by Officer Kelly. Fallon Ambulance treated the officers for exposure to mace.

The victim was advised of her domestic violence rights and offered a restraining order, but she said that she would consider her options later. The suspect, a 25 year old Dorchester resident, refused medical assistance. He was charged with "Assault and Battery, (shod foot), Assault and Battery on a Police Officer and Knowingly Resisting Arrest."

Nice Work!

PEDESTRIAN SAFETY: Recently, there has been an increase in pedestrian accidents in the City of Quincy. Most readers understand the process of crossing the street safely, but many of our younger citizens, as well as seniors who may have lost some of their senses, may be at risk. Take the time to go over guidelines and then assess your child's ability to cross the street safely. In the morning or at late afternoon, the sun produces a blinding glare to drivers. One extra step of prevention is to make eye contact with the driver prior to crossing the street, so that you know he/she sees you.

Entries in the Quincy Police Hot Spots are compiled and submitted by the Quincy Police Department. They are published by The Quincy Sun as a public service to make local residents more aware of any crime activity in their neighborhood. Questions concerning the Hot Spots list should be directed to Crime Prevention Officer Lt. Dan Minton, 617-745-5719.

Stalled In Your Room Makeover Project? Test Your Paint IQ To Help You Get Going

(NAPSA)-Funny how the thought of painting a room can put the brightest folks into a dull funk; how choosing the right color can immobilize do-it-yourself enthusiasts who are otherwise raring to get going. This quiz can help get you on the road to a more knowledgeable and colorful journey.

1. A higher-priced interior paint delivers a higher-quality performance.
   a. True
   b. False
2. Paint quality is determined by
   a. The colorant added.
   b. The price.
   c. The resins, pigments, solvents and additives.
   d. The person whose house it's in.
3. The best way to find your color is
   a. Take a sample color chip into natural daylight.
   b. Take a sample color chip into the room to be painted.
   c. Get a paint tester bottle and apply the color to your room.
4. The way paint flows off a brush or roller is a quality indicator.
   a. True
   b. False

WHEN CHOOSING PAINT for your next room makeover project, remember that price does not necessarily equal quality.

Answers:

1. b. False. Price does not equal a paint brand's level of quality. Every brand of paint uses a similar manufacturing process. The differentiator is the blend of ingredients used.

2. c. According to Maria French, a quality paint chemist, the premium brands of paint include quality ingredients such as resins, pigments, solvents and additives in the base so the paint goes on smoothly and evenly.

3. a, b and c, with an emphasis on c. Color chips can help narrow down your color choice, but paint testers allow you to actually put the color on the wall, so you can try it before you buy it. Look for ready-to-go testers with a brush attached to the lid to make color selection even easier.

4. a. True. Quality interior paint is not too thick or too thin. It flows smoothly and easily off the brush or roller, making application quick and simple. Less paint spatter equates to better-quality paint, says French.

Your Paint IQ

4 correct: High gloss and ready to get going.

2-3 correct: Semigloss. You need a bit more gas.

0-1 correct: Matte. You seem to have a flat tire and need a bit more pumping up.

Road To Safety

(NAPSA) – When planning your next getaway, remember that safety begins before you pull out of the driveway. Here are some hints that can help:

• Be sure your vehicle is ready for the trip by having all recommended services performed, with particular attention paid to tires, engine coolant and fluids, windshield wipers and the air-conditioning system. Check your automaker's website-many manufacturers, such as Subaru of America (www.subaru.com), post seasonal maintenance tips online.

• Stay safe while driving-take regular breaks, switch drivers periodically if possible, and pull over in a safe place to rest if you feel drowsy. Avoid distractions by using a hands-free device if you must make a call, and never text while driving.

• When traveling with kids, keep them busy with an assortment of games and entertainment. Happy kids means fewer arguments, which will help the driver focus on safe driving. Take along personal electronics, such as MP3 players and portable DVD players, but don't forget about some of the classic "unplugged" road games, such as "license plate alphabet."

• Exploring the outdoors is often a big part of any road trip, no matter what time of year you travel. For sun safety, bring sunscreen and apply it before getting in the car. Even an arm propped on the windowsill gets sun, as do faces and foreheads from an open sunroof.

• Keep pets safe-be sure they are secure in a well-ventilated crate or carrier or see your automotive dealer for a divider that safely separates pets and cargo from the passenger area. Never leave your animal alone in a parked vehicle; even on a cool day, it can become dangerously hot inside. Visit the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (ASPCA) website at www.aspca.org for more tips on safe pet travel.

STAY SAFE on your next road trip.

• If your vehicle doesn't have all-wheel drive, as all Subaru models do, consider making it a "must-have" feature in your next car or crossover. While well known for great traction in snow and ice, all-wheel drive can also provide excellent traction in the rain and on dirt and gravel roads, as well as sports car-like handling on dry roads.

A CONVENIENT, FUN and environmentally sound transportation alternative can be a great option for neighborhood road travel and running errands.

Eco-Friendly Transportation Just Got Easier

(NAPSA)-On-the-go families are finding a new and eco-friendly way to get where they need to go.

The solution is a vehicle known as the E-Z-GO 2Five. The 2Five is a street-legal vehicle designed for neighborhoods and public roads with a speed limit of 35 mph or less. The car has a maximum speed of 25 mph and features a 48-volt AC electric powertrain, four-wheel hydraulic disc brakes and an onboard charger.

The convenient, fun and environmentally sound transportation alternative can be a great option for neighborhood road travel, running errands and for those who lead an on-the-go lifestyle.

The 2Five meets or exceeds standards mandated by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) as well as additional standards of the Society of Automotive Engineers (SAE) for low-speed vehicles, or LSVs. LSVs must have a top speed of no more than 25 mph and be equipped with certain additional features including a windshield, seat belts, mirrors and headlights and taillights.

The vehicles are issued a vehicle identification number, like any automobile, and can be titled and operated by licensed drivers on most public roads with speed limits of 35 mph or less.

The car includes four-wheel hydraulic disc brakes for braking and vehicle control. The vehicle's dash includes a digital speedometer and odometer, cup holders, a locking glove box and an AC outlet for recharging mobile devices.

In addition, a "rabbit/turtle" switch on the dash conveniently limits the 2Five's speed to 14 mph when conditions require lower speeds, or to prevent turf damage in instances when the 2Five is being used as a golf vehicle.

Eco-friendly features include a 48-volt electric powertrain that uses AC current, which lowers vehicle noise, eliminates hazardous fuel and oil and uses less energy. Regenerative braking recharges the batteries whenever the vehicle's brakes are applied. An on-board solid-state battery charger makes recharging as convenient as plugging into a household power outlet. The foam seating is made of 100 percent recycled material.

Patriot League Portion of Schedule Up Next

NQ & Quincy Preparing For Post-Season Push

By SEAN BRENNAN

September should be remembered as the "non-league" month for both the North Quincy Red Raiders and the Quincy Presidents. The two high school football teams have each already played two Friday and one Thursday game against teams not in the Patriot League.

North (1-2) and Quincy (1-2) now begin (this Friday) the league portion of their schedules. It doesn't get any easier for the Raiders and the Presidents as the Patriot League boasts some of the strongest gridiron teams on the South Shore.

But all is not lost.

For North Quincy, the league's Keenan Division crown is still very much in play as is the automatic bid into the Division 2A playoffs for the eventual winner of this division. The Red Raiders begin the quest for a post-season berth with an away game against Pembroke HS (7 p.m.). After a one-week respite from the Patriot League, an October 9th game at Malden HS, North Quincy closes out the 2010 season with league games against Hanover HS (1-2 overall), Duxbury HS (3-0), Hingham HS (1-2), Silver Lake HS (2-1), Whitman-Hanson HS (1-1) and Quincy HS (1-2).

Their toughest competition for the coveted crown will come from Duxbury (2009 Keenan Division champions) and Silver Lake, two teams that finished above the Red Raiders in the standings last season and teams that so far this fall have averaged over 24 points per game.

Through three games, North Quincy has averaged 17.7 points per game on offense while allowing 22 ppg on the defensive side of the ball.

"In general we need to fix ourselves," said NQ head coach Jim Connor on Tuesday. "We haven't played our best football. What we need to do before we can worry about what other teams are doing is put together good series, then good quarters and finally a full game."

"The Patriot League is a tough," Connor added. "We need to get healthy and grow as a team and find some cohesiveness. We are not at the point we want to be at right now. But we have the opportunity to get there, we just have to work at it"

After dropping a 46-28 decision to E. Bridgewater last week, the Raiders will look to get on track versus Pembroke.

"We fell behind 14-0 thirty seconds into the game at EB," said Connor. "We came back after that and gained some confidence, but we can't let that happen against the teams in our division."

Quincy, like its city counterpart, has a similar journey ahead of them. The Presidents will be vying for the Patriot League's Fisher Division title and, with it, the automatic bid into the Division III playoffs.

Their road to the post-season starts with a home non-league game against Randolph HS on Friday at 7 p.m. The Bulldogs will be a familiar foe. Randolph was a member of the Fisher Division in 2009 before becoming an independent this season. After this week the Presidents finish the fall with nothing but Patriot League games including contests against Duxbury HS, Pembroke HS (3-0), Middleboro HS (2-1), Hanover HS, Scituate HS (1-2), Silver Lake HS, and North Quincy (1-2).

The Titans of Pembroke have started off undefeated have been the surprise of September and Scituate has the look of a serious title contender, but the Fisher Division title is up-for-grabs.

Quincy should be in the mix because of its equal offensive (20 points per game) and defensive (23.7 ppg) production. The Presidents have work to do but improvement can be seen after three games.

"This team has a great attitude," said QHS head coach Bill Reardon on Tuesday. "They have remained positive and we are improving each week. We still have work to do. We need to limit out penalties and continue to work hard in practice.

"We played a good game against Canton (44-14 win) and played alright against Plymouth South (12-11 loss last Friday), but mistakes cost us in that game. If we want to compete with the other teams in the Patriot League we are going to have to clean that up."

The Presidents did shut-out Randolph last year, 13-0, which according to Reardon will mean nothing if his team doesn't take care of the ball on Friday.

"We could go out and turn the ball over or commit penalties and lose," he said. "Overall we are playing better but I have no idea what we are going to do on Friday."

A victory against the Bulldogs would go a long way towards instilling added confidence in the coming weeks in games against the Patriot League's elite and not-so-elite teams.

"We have Duxbury the following week and they are a powerhouse," added Reardon. "After that we play Pembroke. I honestly do not know too much about them but we will have a better idea of what type of team they are after they play North Quincy this week.

"Scituate looks like they could be the team to beat. They beat Plymouth South and played Cohasset tight. I do not know much about Middleboro or Hanover. It is a tough division and we have work to do."

The Presidents committed nine penalties for 70 yards and lost to Plymouth South, 12-11, last Friday in a non-league game.

Quincy opened up an 8-0-halftime lead and held an 11-0 advantage after three quarters. Senior quarterback Ryan Schultz scored Quincy's only touchdown on a two-yard scamper in the first quarter. The point after attempt (PAT) was wide left. After an intentional safety by Plymouth upped the score to 8-0, junior Jalen Green's 38-yard third quarter field goal pushed the score to 11-0.

Plymouth South's Ryan McLaughlin scored two fourth quarter TDs (six and one yard), giving the visitors the 12-11 lead.

Quincy had one final opportunity to win the game, but a last minute drive, ended just short.

"We had way too many penalties and we still, I thought, played well enough to win," said Reardon. "On that last drive, down by a point and with the ball on our own 30-yard line we executed a positive two-minute drill and moved the ball down the field.

"We just couldn't finish. It was a tough loss but we have moved on and are getting ready for Randolph."

Playoff Game Sunday at 7 p.m.

Militia Getting Ready For The 'Tournament'

By JOE REARDON

The Quincy Militia has already put the nightmarish end of the season behind it and is getting playoff ready after dropping its last four games on its schedule.

With the regular season in the books, Quincy has to register a win in its playoff game Sunday night or else lose the chance to make up for last year's heartbreaking defeat to Clinton in the Eastern Football League title game.

The Militia will be doing battle with the Boston Ravens, who dealt Quincy its fourth consecutive loss, 19-9, in the final game of the season. The teams square off at Boston English at 7 p.m.

Vaughn Driscoll's squad wound up in the fifth overall position at 6-5 behind Western Mass (9-1), Taunton, Boston and Clinton, all of which posted 9-2 records, and 9-3 Charlestown.

In a perfect world, Driscoll would like to see the Militia revert back to the team that went on a searing six-game winning streak over the summer and ultimately play the Irish Blizzard of Clinton.

Driscoll, though, saw enough positives from the Militia, despite the four-game slide, to like Quincy's chances against the Ravens. "I would have been psyched with 2-2,"said Driscoll. "It didn't happen and now we're just looking ahead.

"I had them practice on Saturday and work on what we have to do to stop the Ravens."

As ugly as the Militia was in the first half, falling three touchdowns behind to both Clinton and Taunton, they were an entirely different team in the second. The team's defense could be the difference Sunday evening.

Against Clinton, defensive end Nick Chase (11 tackles), middle linebacker Donald Jeffries (12 tackles) and outside linebacker Greg Ryan (eight tackles) were around the ball the entire game.

Trailing 24-0, the second half was all Militia. Matt Boyle proved he's ready for prime-time playoff action, throwing for 305 yards and three scores, all of them coming in the second half.

Boyle had scoring strikes of 88 yards to Joe Hobbs and 63 yards to running back Dolan Reid to cut the advantage to 24-14 with 10 minutes remaining. The defense did its job in shutting down the Clinton offense on its next series, giving the Militia the ball back and allowing Boyle once again to showcase Quincy's throwing game. This time it was James Shuler on the receiving end of a 56-yard passing score to make it 24-21 with 2:03 left.

Free safety Rich Ruis had a huge interception to put the Militia at its own 45 with a minute remaining. Quincy worked the ball down to the Irish Blizzard's 18-yard-line but the field goal try went wide left.

The Taunton loss was nearly a blueprint of the Clinton contest. The Militia fell behind 21-0 but came all the way back to take the lead by 1, 22-21. The Gladiators ultimately pulled out the victory with a field goal late in the fourth.

In the EFL, Driscoll knows the odds of coming back from three touchdown deficits and escaping with wins are few and far between. The beauty of the playoffs, though, is the slate is erased and every team has a legitimate shot at a league title.

"There were three game games in a row where we spotted teams 21 points," said Driscoll. "We expected to go out there and have things given to us. Now everybody's 0-0. All we have to do is win game one."

The Militia should feel confident heading into the showdown against the Ravens. Quincy had already clinched a playoff slot and Driscoll planned to have the starters on the field for one series before pulling them for some added rest.

The players, though, proceeded to convince Driscoll to let them play the first half before coming out. The Militia headed to the locker room at halftime with a 9-6 advantage. Boston went ahead and stayed there for the 10-point win against Quincy's second and third string players.

The Militia will have its hands full contending with the Ravens' massive offensive line. Led by 6-6, 455-pound center Paul Jones, Boston averages 320 pounds in the trenches.

"He's the biggest guy in the league," Driscoll said. "We have to use our speed and youth and get them tired."

The Ravens have a solid quarterback in Leon Finklea. Never a threat to run with his limited mobility, Finklea is a smart, heady signal caller who knows when to throw the ball away and rarely makes mistakes in the pocket. And with the bull strong line in front of him, the Militia could have its problems pressurizing Finklea.

Q/NQ Harriers Improve On Personal Best

By JOE REARDON

After a thorough, but not unexpected, trouncing by perennially tough Whitman-Hanson, Geoff Hennessy believed it was important that his boys cross country squad get back on track and into a positive frame of mind moving forward.

Hennessy used the "less is better" theorem for a few days and it wound up being just what his harriers needed.

Instead of a long run the following Saturday after the meet, he cut the workout back to seven miles. The day before its showdown against Patriot League opponents Hingham and Scituate, the harriers put in an easy four miles with the hopes they'd toe the line the next day feeling fresh and ready to push hard, both mentally and physically.

Hennessy's bit of psychology and training adjustments proved to be just what Q/NQ needed. Running on their home, 2.5-mile course at Pageant Field, the locals fell to the strong Harbormen team, 17-45, but ran Scituate into the ground for an 18-37 victory.

Not only did Q/NQ easily defeat the Sailors, but the squad looked particularly sharp; driving hard over the final 400 meters to the finish line. "Things are improving," said Hennessy. "These guys did some summer running. We want the kids to run well at home.

"With a half mile to go they looked strong. They were catching kids, not falling back."

With his entire team back from last year and a crew of talented rookies, Hennessy foresees the club making strides and running even tougher the rest of the season. Nearly every member of the crew lowered his time on the scenic home course and that bodes well with both the Catholic Memorial and Coaches Invitationals looming.

"We're excited because we have some freshmen who look very good," Hennessy.

Newcomers Brendan Cunningham and Aidan McMorrow should be right in the mix in the freshman races at the upcoming invitationals. Both harriers starred at the Broad Meadow Middle School last fall and their adjustment to the varsity level on the high school team has been a smooth one.

"Let the kids be kids," said Hennessy. "I always let the younger kids run their race. We're not in a hurry to move them up."

Both harriers are coming off tremendous eighth-grade seasons. Cunningham was very much in the hunt at the 1st Annual Massachusetts Middle School Cross Country Championships last autumn at Fort Devens. A strong finisher, Cunningham surged across the finish line for 13th. McMorrow was also competitive, cracking into the top 50.

Up front, brothers John and Dan Green have the potential to reach honorable mention status when it comes times to picking the Patriot League All-Stars. The pair has been competitive with the top runners in the league and is looking to melt seconds off the clock with every meet. Danny Tran built plenty of momentum last spring and is a hard finisher. Greg Nelson is Q/NQ's seventh man and has the ability to jump ahead into the scoring positions.

"If the goal is to get five kids under 18 minutes (for 5K) than that's what we'll try to do," said Hennessy.

Team Is Young But Improving Weekly

Presidents Have Been Teeing It Up This Fall

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Quincy High School golf team needed to reload its roster after losing the majority of last year's team to June graduation; only three varsity golfers that played for the Presidents in 2009 are on the squad this season.

This reshuffling has caused the Presidents to start fresh, almost from scratch, and the results so far in 2010 (0-7 overall) have not borne success just yet, but the team is only going to improve as this year continues on and QHS will be even better because of this changing of the guard in seasons to come.

"Losing the bulk of the top of the line-up in Pat Conley (University of West Virginia), Tim Young (Fairfield University), and Kevin Keith (University of Massachusetts-Amherst) has been an adjustment, but we're hopeful that the experience gained by the underclassmen will turn out to be a positive, which will pay off down the road," said sixth-year QHS head coach Lou Venturelli on Monday.

With such an inexperienced lot, the Presidents have been leaning on the experience and leadership of the senior class all of whom have been with the team since their freshman year. Senior captain Brendan Gibbons, along with seniors Mat Head and Myles Riddell, according to Venturelli, have provided a base of consistency in both their play and their influence on the younger golfers.

"Mat recently defeated his opponent 8-1 at match play and Myles and Brendan have come a long way in improving their games over the past three seasons," he said.

One of the bigger surprises this fall for Quincy has been the play of North Quincy High School transfer, junior Justin Keenan, who has impressed with his play on the course. Keenan's solid 38 at Quincy's home course, Furnace Brook Golf Club (par 35), on September 16 enabled him to defeat his opponent from a powerful Catholic Memorial team.

Although the Presidents are currently winless, having dropped all seven of their matches, the team has used all but one of its golfers in a varsity match. The addition of four freshmen, two first-year sophomores and a first-year junior have provided the Presidents with a hope both for that elusive first win as well as for a solid future in the next four years.

The new faces on the team include junior John Jones, sophomores Bobby Kelley and Jon Theberge, and freshmen Mike Pugsley, Matt Joyce, Matt McLellan, and Jack Fischer.

Venturelli may have a young and inexperienced team, but he is lucky in the fact that he has a devoted and talented coaching staff to help him mold and guide his team, which, according to him, has been a major factor in the early season improvement on his squad.

"I've been lucky to have my brother Dom and volunteer assistant Joe Salvucci to help me with all the young golfers and their development," Venturelli said. "Some have never played before and the improvement is tremendous."

The Presidents are going to be tested the rest of the season as Quincy plays in the competitive Patriot League against schools that have deeper talent pools to fill their spots.

"There are no breaks in the schedule in this league," lamented Venturelli who quickly added, "but this game is an awful lot of fun for them despite the fact that we haven't come out on top."

This week Quincy played against some of the toughest teams on the South Shore. Road matches against Duxbury, Silver Lake and Hingham were held the previous two days, and today (Thursday), the Presidents close out this week's away schedule with a match at Pembroke High School.

Next week, QHS will tee it up against Middleboro HS (Oct. 4) and against North Quincy HS on Oct. 7.

Quincy Youth Football League Results

Apaches, Elks Undefeated; Storm Earns First Win

North Quincy Apaches 26 - Milton Mustangs 0

The Apaches remained undefeated so far in the 2010 season with a solid 26-0 victory over the Mustangs. On their first possession, the Mustangs were forced to punt after three plays, and the attempt was partially deflected, which the Apaches recovered near mid-field. Two plays later, running back Steve Scolaro opened the scoring with an impressive 45-yard touchdown run through the middle of the Mustangs defense. Scolaro's kick attempt for the PAT was no good, and the Apaches held a 6-0 lead early in the game. The Mustangs fumbled the ensuing kickoff and Eric Cohen-Jones recovered for the Apaches, and again the Apaches began another drive in great field position. A 35 yard pass from Quarterback Pat Frasso to Tight end Jake Bergonzi, would set up a one yard touchdown run by Jackie Chen, and the Apaches increased their early lead to 12-0. On the Apaches next series, Frasso hit wide receiver Bryan Lenane in stride with a 45-yard touchdown pass, and the Apaches held a commanding 18-0 lead early in the game. In the second quarter, both teams played great defense and the half ended with the Apaches up 18-0.

The Apaches opened the second half, with a long drive that was highlighted by great running by Cohen-Jones, Scolaro and Kevin McDonough. Bergonzi's 15 yard touchdown run capped off the drive, and Scolaro's kick for the points after touchdown was good and the Apaches closed out the scoring, 26-0, as neither team could muster any points in the final quarter.

Alex Chen (3 tackles for a loss & a fumble recovery), Mike Connelly (4 tackles for a loss), Freddy Flynn, Zach Roos, Sean Dozier, Mike McNelly and Quarterback Pat Frasso (4 TD passes on the Year) all played well for the Apaches.

West Quincy Elks 27 - Quincy Point Panthers 0

The Elks also continued their winning ways with a 27-0 victory over the Panthers on Sunday.

Storm 33 - Houghs Neck Manets 12

The Storm Varsity (1-2) won its first game of the season, dominating the Hough's Neck Manets by grinding out over 200 yards on the ground. Led by fierce blocking on the offensive line by Nick Manning, Ryan Higgins, Fred Barsamian, Marco Penaflor, Dominic DiPalmo and Sam Grossfeld, running back Solomon Umoren scampered for 136 yards on 8 carries, including 2 touchdowns on runs of 53 (on the first play from scrimmage in the game) and 41 yards and one conversion run for a total of 13 points. Zack Dangora ran 7 times for 69 yards, including touchdown runs of 32 and 12 yards and one conversion run also for a total of 13 points.

The fifth touchdown was scored by defensive lineman Ryan Higgins, who recovered a Manet fumbled snap in the end zone. The point after touchdown was converted on a 3-yard pass from quarterback Joey Gaglione to running back Andrew Kiley, who also had 4 carries for 25 yards. Kevin Mock carried twice of a net of 8 yards. Ends Connor Cramand and Joey Dwyer blocked well for the entire game.

The defense was led by a strong defensive front consisting of ends Umoren and Kiley and interior linemen Higgins, Penaflor, Barsamian and DiPalmo. In later stages of the game Nick Kelly and Declan Mayo stood up well against the Manets running game. Kelly provided 6 excellent kick offs, keeping the Manets deep in their own territory to begin drives.

The leading tackler again for The Storm was Umoren with 6, followed by Dangora and Higgins with 5, and DiPalmo and Cramond with 3 each. Others with tackles were Mac Deegan, Evan Aimola, Kiley, Barsamian, Penalfor, and Dwyer. Will Bronske, who played well at outside linebacker for the entire game, broke up a key pass in the 4th quarter and safety Gaglione broke up 3 deep passes to save potential touchdowns.

The Manets had trouble moving the ball and executing plays, but were led by the outstanding play of quarterback and safety Joe Early, who scored both Manet touchdowns and made many crushing tackles on Storm ball carriers.

Next Sunday The Storm takes on the North Quincy Apaches (3-0) at 2:30 at Veterans Stadium. The Storm will be looking for revenge for the Apaches ability to convert three Storm turnovers into touchdowns last week in beating The Storm 20-0. In other League action, the Manets will face the undefeated Elks while the Panthers will try for their first win of the year when the . .eet the Mustangs.

Record Stands At 2-4-2 Overall

Red Raiders Struggling To Find Any Consistency

By SEAN BRENNAN

Despite a 3-0 non-league victory over Mount Alvernia, in the second of three games played last week, the North Quincy Red Raiders are still searching for some viable offensive production and consistency from half to half.

North (2-4-2) followed up their win over Alvernia with a dud on Friday afternoon against Hanover High School, losing by a score of 4-0. That defeat had head coach Paul Bregoli struggling to figure out how this team of talented players could put in such a dismal effort in the first half against this Patriot League opponent.

"We didn't play well in the first half," said Bregoli who watched as the Indians scored three goals before the break. "It just seemed like once they scored the first goal and then the second we could not recover. They are a good team but we just didn't show up ready to play in the first half."

The Red Raiders did show improvement in the second half against Hanover. Senior Jillian Carchedi just missed on a quality scoring chance when her side volley was off the mark and junior Kaleen Campo also had an opportunity to put North on the scoreboard but came up short. Sophomore Liz Kelly played well in the second half against the Indians.

"We had a couple of chances to score, but we have just not been able to get our offense going," said Bregoli. "Hanover is a good team, so I am not trying to take anything away from them, but I thought we played much better in the second half. Unfortunately that first half cost us."

Against Mount Alvernia and away from the muscle of the Patriot League, North Quincy mounted a goal scoring campaign that produced the results that have been missing in league games this fall. Senior Sarah Gardiner got the Raiders on track with a tally just nine minutes into the first half. Carchedi assisted on the goal.

Freshman Stephanie DiPietro added to the total later in the half when she plotted her first varsity goal on a beautiful pass from junior Jessica O'Donovan and Carchedi closed out the North scoring spree with a second half goal. O'Donovan picked up her second helper of the game on the goal.

Junior keeper Sara Sullivan earned the shutout.

"We have struggled to score all season, so it was good to see our offense produce," Bregoli said. "Carchedi, Gardiner and O'Donovan all played a great game and freshman Stephanie DiPietro was outstanding."

North Quincy played at Middleboro HS on Tuesday. The Raiders and the Quincy Presidents are scheduled to play against each other, in the first of two games this fall, on Friday at 3:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Jayvee Notes

The NQHS jayvee team finished last week with a 1-0-1 record.

The win came against Mount Alvernia, 3-1, as Kayla Sugrue had two goals and an assist and Bridget O'Brien added a goal. Against Hanover, Brianna Mullaney's goal allowed North to walk away with a 1-1 tie with the Indians; Katie Burns assisted on the tally.

In earlier games (two weeks ago), the Raiders dropped a 2-1 decision to Silver Lake with Brianna Mullaney scoring the lone goal and Danielle Mullaney picking up the assist and against Duxbury, a 5-1 loss, Brianna Mullaney scored with Danielle Mullaney assisting again.

2nd Annual Smegs Legs Road Race Oct. 9

The 2nd Annual Smegs Legs Five-Mile Road Race & Two-Mile Walk is set for Oct. 9 at Broad Meadows Middle School. The day's events will start at 9 a.m.

The road race is held in memory of Houghs Neck native Chris Smeglin, a former Atherton Hough, Broad Meadows, and Boston College High School alum who went onto graduate from the United States Merchant Marine Academy in Kings Port, NY. After graduation, Smeglin enlisted in the United States Navy to fulfill a lifelong ambition to serve his country and become an aviator.

Dedicating one's life to the United States, while a true honor, can also be the ultimate sacrifice. On October 2, 2008, Navy LTJG Chris Smeglin, at age 24, was tragically killed while stationed in Kingsville, Texas during a bike training session for a triathlon. In respect of Chris' love and desire for fitness, his family, friends and neighbors are asking for your support in their efforts to commemorate the life of this great young man and patriot by participating, volunteering for or sponsoring the 2nd Annual Smegs Legs Road Race.

Smegs Legs proceeds will benefit The Chris Smeglin Memorial Fund, which will raise monies for various local charities. This year's beneficiaries are: Access Sports America (www.accessports.org - sports for children and adults with disabilities), a scholarship in Chris' memory with the Houghs Neck Community Council (www.houghsneck.org), and the Broad Meadows Middle School athletic program.

Event run/walk participants can register before Oct. 1 for $15 (or day of the event starting at 7:30 a.m. for $20). Any support, including donations would be greatly appreciated and acknowledged at the event. If you are interested in volunteering or sponsoring the event, please contact Tori Smeglin at torismeg@hotmail.com. The Memorial Fund's 501©(3) number is available upon request.

Please visit www.smegslegs.org for more information and respond by Oct. 1 to:

SPOTLIGHT on HEALTH and FITNESS

The Lowdown On High Cholesterol

(NAPSA)—According to the National Institutes of Health, the higher your blood cholesterol level, the greater your risk for developing heart disease. Some risk factors for coronary heart disease, including lack of physical activity, smoking, and an un- healthy diet, can be controlled. Others cannot, such as age and a family history of heart disease.

One of the major risk factors that can be modified is high cholesterol, particularly the "bad" low-density lipoprotein cholesterol, or LDL-C.

When Medicines May Be Needed To Control Cholesterol

While diet and exercise are ways to help reduce cholesterol, they are often not enough. Therefore, the use of cholesterol medications plays an important role in the treatment of many patients with high cholesterol. While there are many options, many patients remain untreated or are unable to tolerate certain drugs, suggesting that both physicians and patients may benefit from new treatment options.

A New Treatment Option

If changes in diet are not enough, Livalo from Kowa Pharmaceuticals America, Inc. and Eli Lilly and Company is a new statin approved by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) that has been shown, along with diet, to help reduce LDL-C, total cholesterol and triglycerides. It has also been shown to help increase HDL-C.

According to Michael H. Davidson, M.D., director of Preventive Cardiology, University of Chicago Pritzker School of Medicine, "Physicians and pharmacists caring for patients with high cholesterol must consider how each medicine interacts with others since many in this patient population take multiple medications for diverse conditions."

Doctors may consider Livalo an attractive option for their patients on multiple medications. This is because Livalo is marginally metabolized through the cytochrome P450 system in the liver. This is important because this system is required for metabolism by over 75 percent of drugs metabolized. While most drugs, including Livalo, can cause drug-drug interactions, the potential for Livalo to cause a drug interaction by interfering with this system may be reduced. As with any medication, patients should discuss with their doctors any other medications they are currently taking. The most common side effects of Livalo include muscle pain, back pain, constipation, diarrhea or pain in the arms and legs.

You may also learn more at www.LivaloRx.com.

What are important things that physicians and patients should know before prescribing or taking Livalo?

Livalo is not right for everyone, including patients who previously have had an allergic reaction to Livalo or any of its components, anyone with active liver problems, those with severe kidney disease not yet on hemodialysis, or women who are nursing, pregnant or who may become pregnant.

Patients taking Livalo should not take a drug called cyclosporine.

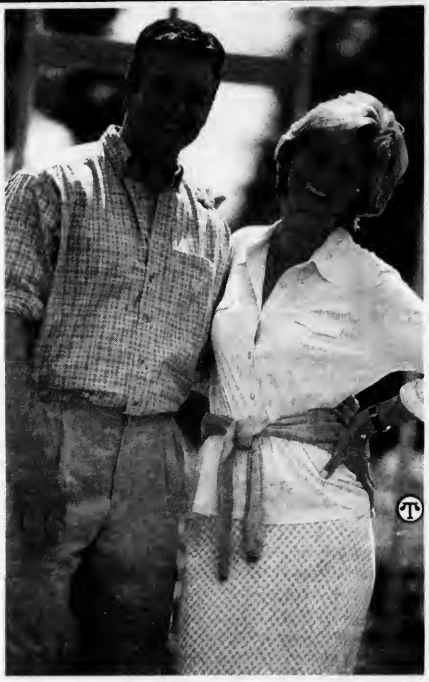
Patients taking Livalo should tell their doctor immediately if they experience any unexplained muscle pain, tenderness or weakness, particularly if accompanied by fever or a general feeling of discomfort. This could be a sign of a rare but serious side effect.

It is recommended that physicians conduct blood tests to monitor patients' liver function before starting Livalo, at 12 weeks following the start of Livalo or after any increase in dose and then periodically (e.g., every six months) thereafter.

The most common side effects of Livalo in clinical studies were muscle pain, back pain, constipation, diarrhea and pain in the legs or arms. This is not a complete list of side effects.

Livalo has not been studied to understand its effect in reducing heart-related disease or death.

Patients should tell their doctor about all the medications they take, including all prescription and nonprescription medicines, vitamins or herbal supplements.



To learn more about the safety and efficacy of Livalo, see the Full Prescribing Information at http://www.Livalorx.com/documents/LivalopitavastatinprescribinginformationV1_220100131.pdf.

What You Can Do

Fortunately, there are steps everyone can take to reduce their risk of heart troubles.

These include:

- Eat a healthy diet, including lots of fresh fruits and vegetables. Try to limit saturated fat, cholesterol and sodium.
- Maintain a healthy weight.
- Work with your doctor to determine the level of physical activity right for you. The Surgeon General recommends you exercise for at least 30 minutes on most days.
- Don't smoke.
- Limit alcohol use.
- If you are taking any medication, always follow your doctor's instruction.

MANY AMERICANS can take steps to lower their cholesterol and reduce their risk of heart disease.

DO YOU HAVE TYPE 2 DIABETES?

SUPER FITNESS is running a FREE clinical study to the first 50 people who are diagnosed with diabetes or are pre-diabetic.

"A study commissioned by the American Diabetes Association in 2008 revealed that diabetes has reached the status of a "public health crisis," costing the United States at least 174 billion dollars a year. This figure includes 116 billion dollars in healthcare costs and 58 billion dollars in indirect costs, such as lost productivity. The International Diabetes Federation predicts that by 2025, the cost will exceed 302.5 billion dollars. The human cost boggles the mind: 284,000 people in the U.S. died from diabetes in 2007."

TEAM SUPER FITNESS is looking for 50 people with Type II diabetes or that are pre-diabetic to participate in a clinical study. The study will look at the effects of varying degrees of exercise on glucose levels. The study is free of charge and will last for 30 days. Patients will be asked to participate 3 days per week.

If you are interested please call Sean Pulera or Jessica Gillott at 617-770-1115 for more information, as space is limited.

LEGS OF UNEQUAL LENGTH

Most people probably haven't given much thought to the possibility that their legs may be of different lengths. However, data collected for the nationwide Multicenter Osteoarthritis Study shows that about 70% of people have some leg-length discrepancy. These discrepancies, which may be present at birth or develop later due to development problems or injury, may contribute to osteoarthritis of the knee. Adults whose legs differed in length by at least one centimeter (nearly a half-inch) were most likely to develop knee arthritis and pain. The shorter leg was the one most likely to be affected. While this may be news to most, chiropractic patients know that their treatment begins with a thorough analysis of their bone structure, including leg measurements.

Many patients seek chiropractic care as a source of pain relief; however, our interest in your spine is much greater. Nerve interference can disrupt your ability to respond appropriately to your environment thus lowering your immune system and making you more susceptible to disease. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, our approach to better health is to locate and remove spinal dysfunction and nerve interference, returning the body to its natural state of health and wellness. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Leg-length discrepancy can be established with an x-ray or by measuring from the bony point on the front of the pelvic bone (anterior superior iliac spine) to the bony part of the inner ankle joint (medial malleolus).

Blessing Of The Animals At Quincy Community United Methodist Church Oct. 30

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold its sixth annual Blessing of the Animals Sunday, Oct. 30 at the 10:30 a.m. worship service.

"The worship service commemorates and celebrates pets both present and past," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, church pastor. Photographs or drawings of deceased pets will be placed on the altar during the service.

Those with well-behaved pets are encouraged to bring their pet with them to church.

"We've had dogs, cats, and a guinea pig. Two of the dogs even wore their 'Sunday best' collars," Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden said. "We do ask, however, that all dogs be on a leash and all other pets in carriers."

Because this year's Blessing of the Animals falls on Halloween, people are encouraged to wear costumes. Costumes are up to the individual, they are not required.

Rev. Dr. Jarek-Glidden says she is planning to wear a costume. "I'm not saying who I plan to be. People will have to come to the Blessing of the Animals to find out," she said.

The service will be followed by a coffee hour.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

At all ages and at all stages of life, fear represents a problem to everyone at one time or another. "We are largely the playthings of our fears," wrote British author Horace Walpole many years ago. "To one, fear of the dark; to another, of physical pain; to a third, of public ridicule; to a fourth, of poverty; to a fifth, loneliness - for all of us our particular creature waits in ambush."

Yet, fear is often a most useful emotion. Fears are normal and can actually be healthy at times. Fear enables one to take appropriate self-protecting measures, if or when needed. Without these measures we would probably be consumed by our own folly, or the enmity and destructive purposes of others.

Fears are nature's way of warning us to be careful and to prepare for the task at hand. They keep us from being fool-hardy. We need them, and as long as we use them and do not let them use us, we will have all the courage we need to accomplish our aims...

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A workplace change doesn't seem to have turned out quite as you'd hoped. Never mind: Just treat yourself to a healthy dollop of that Aries self-confidence, and you'll soon view things differently.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Some of the support you might have hoped for in a difficult situation might not be there. But you have the strength to rely on your own capabilities if you must. Good luck.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A disagreement with a longtime friend can be painful, but it also can be a learning lesson. Insist on a full and complete airing of views. You'll both come away the better for it.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A stalled relationship can be restarted with some give and take on both sides. And while it could take more time than you expect, don't rush it. Be patient, and let it happen naturally.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) An opportunity to move a long-stalled project from concept to construction might be opening up for the Big Cat. Meanwhile, be prepared to spend more time dealing with family matters.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Use your Virgo organizational skills to line up support to help you deal with a sticky workplace problem. A personal matter also might be helped with friendly intervention.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Trying to resolve a workplace problem with a longtime associate can be difficult. Consider bringing in an impartial third party to help you both reach a mutually acceptable solution.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) This is a good time to assess your current career situation. Consider whether you have a chance to move up where you are now, or if you should look elsewhere.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) With education being a dominant part of this week's aspect, one of the things you might want to think about is taking courses to enhance your career opportunities.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You might have a problem trying to stay focused on a matter you'd rather not deal with. But the sooner you do, the sooner it will be resolved and out of the way.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An unforeseen complication creates a difficult problem. But things get resolved once you use your ability to turn negative situations into positive experiences.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The Pisces penchant for doing the right thing at the right time helps you deal with a particularly troublesome situation. Consider your best option, and act accordingly.

BORN THIS WEEK: Although you might sometimes seem rigid in your views, your love of justice makes you a trusted friend everyone can rely on.

Koch: Public-Private Partnership Will Boost Tax Base, Employ Thousands

$1.3B Downtown Revitalization Plan

CITY COUNCILLORS focus on the details of a proposed $1.3 billion overhaul of Quincy Center during a presentation at Monday's City Council meeting. At left, Richard Heapes, founding partner of Street-Works Development, LLC, describes the plan which could begin as early as 2012. Councillors must approve the plan's land transfer and bond authorization. Mayor Thomas Koch Monday sought City Council approval of a billion dollar overhaul of Quincy Center through a private-public partnership that he said will revitalize the heart of the city, boost the tax base by millions, employ 4,000 construction workers, offer over 1,000 permanent jobs, construct some 750 lofts and condominiums, enhance the lives of all residents and overhaul the city's aging infrastructure.

And it all will be done with no upfront costs to the city and later payments made only through new income from the new projects, according to Koch.

"This is one of the most important votes you'll ever take," Koch told councillors as he outlined the potential partnership between the city and Street-Works Development LLC of New York that could bring new businesses, two hotels, an entertainment center, green space and cafes, and nearly 1,000 new residents to Quincy Center.

Construction could be underway as early as 2012 but keys to the redevelopment plan lie with the City Council and state legislators.

Councillors must approve a Land Disposition Agreement (LDA) which details the city and the developer's obligations as well as the $4.5 million sale of the Hancock and Ross Parking facilities to Street-Works FUTURE QUINCY CENTER is depicted in this miniature model which depicts, in wood, new hotels and businesses as well as parking areas, new traffic patterns, condominiums and hundreds of new trees. The model will accompany Mayor Thomas Koch and Street-Works developers during their planned community discussions later this month. One meeting was set for Wednesday at 7 p.m. at North Quincy High School auditorium. A second meeting will be held Wednesday, Oct. 20 at 7 p.m. at the Quincy High School auditorium.

Raymondi Ruled Out On Redevelopment Votes

Much to the surprise and chagrin of his fellow councillors, Ward 2's Daniel Raymondi cannot participate in any way in the council votes or review of the proposed Quincy Center redevelopment plan, due to a ruling by City Solicitor James Timmins.

In addition, councillors must approve a $289 million bond authorization for infrastructure improvements, and the state legislature must approve a Home Rule Petition enabling the LDA and redevelopment plan.

Monday's speakers all stressed that the city will not access any funds from the bond or pay for the infrastructure improvements until the new projects provide sufficient income to cover the payments.

Partnership

Under the terms of the agreement, Street-Works will initially cover the public improvements up to $268 million and the city won't pay the money until the city's income increases to cover the costs.

"We will never be in the negative on this project," Koch declared.

"This project will pay for itself," said the city's financial consultant Sarah Woodworth who called the financial plan a "unique model" because the LDA requires the developer to place "private money in front of public money."

"They're fronting all the money," said Woodworth, a managing partner at W-ZHA, LLC.

In fact, Street-Works must foot the bill for the infrastructure work as stated in the LDA, "The redeveloper, at the redeveloper's cost and expense, will cause the Implementing Public Improvements to be constructed for the related step."

In addition, Street Works will cover the city's $30 Concourse debt and pay the city an additional $11.3 million for a 150,000 square foot expansion of the redevelopment area.

At the start of Monday's meeting, Koch first introduced the city's consultants who summarized the financial and legal underpinnings of the plan and, then Kenneth Narva and Richard Heapes, managing partners and co-founders of Street-Works Development LLC.

Koch praised the developers, stating the city team investigated every aspect of the project. "We haven't taken them at their word on anything. Everything they said they would do, they did."

Financial consultant Sara Woodworth assured councillors and the 200 observers that solid guarantees are in place so the city will pay none of the start-up costs or the $289 million in infrastructure improvements until the redevelopment starts paying off.

Street-Works will be responsible for the infrastructure costs until new taxes from the redevelopment reach the required amounts, according to Woodworth and Nick Puleo, Director of Municipal Finance.

"We make the initial investment," said Street-Works' Narva, citing his company's commitment to purchasing $100 million in real estate in Quincy Center, its 5 ½ years of planning, research and design work, and its nearly two years of negotiations with the city.

Heapes told councillors that Street-Works has 40 parcels under option which represents a $100 million investment in city real estate. He then described potential changes modernizing downtown Quincy.

"We're very bullish on this," Heapes said, adding that Street-Works now contemplates two new hotels to accommodate the influx of new business and tourist visitors to the city as well as more office space, an entertainment area for a cinema and bowling, two large stores such as Target or Kohl's, a marketplace, lofts and condominiums, and the daylighting of a portion of Town Brook.

While city councillors appeared enthusiastic about the plan, they pledged to examine every aspect of the finances and development proposals before calling for a council vote.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro, chairman of the Downtown and Economic Development Committee, and Councillor John Keenan, chairman of the Finance Committee, plan at least five joint meetings on the proposal. The first meeting was Wednesday at 7 p.m. at North Quincy High School's auditorium.

"We stand before another defining moment that will shape Quincy for generations," said Gutro who then cautioned the redevelopment team, "Don't pop the champagne yet."

"The devil, of course, is in the details," said Gutro who expects the review to take at least eight weeks beginning with a "line by line" analysis of the LDA and legal agreement.

Keenan called Monday's meeting "a crowning moment in the history of the city," but added, "We will take the time to get it right."

The meeting opened with Koch's outlining the plan and praising the foresight and work by the previous seven mayors whose decisions made the revitalization plan possible.

Koch said each mayor from the late James McIntyre to his immediate predecessor Bill Phelan contributed to the foundation of the redevelopment.

After describing Street-Works investment, Koch stated, "The taxpayers of the city will not bear the

A MIX OF FIRE AND WATER

Opal, October's birthstone, is a curious mix of fire and water. The fire emitted by this lovely gemstone comes from light reflected from spheres of silica arranged in a stone that contains two to six percent water. Lovers of this fiery multi-colored gemstone are advised not to allow opal to become too dry or exposed to heat over too long a period of time. In fact, opal greatly benefits from being close to the skin and being worn often. Doing so will help preserve opal's fabulous play of color. Speaking of which, the stone's color play is often described in terms such as "harlequin," "church windows," "needle fire," "flame," "lightning," and "peacock." Opal must be seen to be believed.

Opal has been described as "made up of the glories of the most precious gems...the gentler fire of the ruby, the rich purple of the amethyst, the sea-green of the emerald, glittering together...." If you are looking to increase the treasures in your jewelry collection, we suggest a visit to our jewelry store to see our selection of this stunning work of art. For opal and other gemstone jewelry that will dazzle your eyes and fill you with delight, we're located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center. You can reach us at 617-773-3636.

Quincy Center Building Razing In 2-3 Weeks

Minimal Traffic Interruptions Expected

Demolition of the 91-year-old Bradford Building in Quincy Center will begin in the next two to three weeks, according to the company that owns the structure.

The roughly 100-foot by 30-foot building at 2-8 Chestnut St., a Quincy Center landmark, will be demolished by the NASDI Demolition company out of New York.

A hydraulic hand will be used to raze the building and the rubble will be loaded onto trucks and removed from the area. The demolition and cleanup is expected to last a month.

The building, which was built in 1919, was the home of Hairplace One Salon; Quincy Typewriter and Taj Coin and Stamp Co. Quincy Mutual purchased the building in July for $1.4 million.

Quincy Mutual Vice President Steve Briggs said the company was not looking to add to the 90 parking spots behind the building, but rather provide open green space.

"We want to try to landscape the area this fall," said Briggs. "It's the best time of year to do it. I'm thinking it's going to look a lot better than it does now."

Traffic interruptions during the razing were expected to be minimal with the only scheduled closing slated for the section of Hancock Street in front of the building. Department of Public Works official Fran Sandonato said one lane would be open for traffic in each direction. Demolition of the front of the building will be done at night for safety reasons.

"Everything else is just the way it is now," Sandonato said.

Sandonato didn't rule out any road closings during the extent of the project. "Right now, yes, we may do another closure in a couple of weeks," he said.

Mayor's Cup Golf Tourney Benefits Local Charities

The 2010 Mayor's Cup Charity Golf Tournament was held Monday at Granite Links Golf Club.

Proceeds from the event will go to benefit various charities working in Quincy. The team from Fallon Ambulance battled the elements to come in first place with a score of 10 under 62.

"Through the Mayor's Cup Charity Golf Tournament we are able to raise funds that go to help people in need here in Quincy," said Mayor Koch. "I am always proud of the fact that local businesses come out in large numbers to support this worthy cause."

The event grossed over $50,000, all of which will be given to various charitable groups. State Street Bank, Eastern Bank, and Tishman Construction all participated as $5,000 Adams Sponsors, and Woodard and Curran, South Cove Community Health Center, TD Bank, Gilbane Construction, S Bank, Capitol Waste, SMMA, Fallon Ambulance and Covanta/SEMASS participated as $2,500 Quincy Adams Sponsors. Several other local businesses contributed as hole sponsors.

"These businesses value giving back to their community, and they showed their commitment to Quincy through this tournament," Koch added.

Cahill: 'I Will Keep Fighting Because I Believe I Can Win'

Still in the game . . . to win it.

Tim Cahill, the Independent candidate for governor, is hoping for some October magic much like the magical Red Sox postseason of 2004 that carried Boston to its first World Series title in 86 years.

He's picked himself up, dusted himself off and is more focused than ever after the defection of two strategists and the loss of his running mate, Paul Loscocco who switched teams last Friday by endorsing Republican Charlie Baker.

Like the Red Sox trailing in games, 0-3, to the Yankees in the ALCS six years ago, Cahill is still alive and vowing to stay in the governor's race until the last out is recorded on Election Day, Nov. 2. He said the Republicans were hoping Loscocco's quitting the race would spell the end of Cahill's campaign, too.

But there's still plenty of "baseball" - fight, that is - in the Cahill camp.

"I see this as a Red Sox-Yankees 2004 American League Championship Series. We were down 0-3 (last Friday) and we were in the fourth game and we were this close (finger and thumb an inch apart) from being eliminated. Like Kevin Millar said, "They better not let us win this game because you'll never know what's going to happen.'

"We're still down 3-1, but we live to fight another day. That's why you play 4 out of 7; you have to win the fourth game and that's exactly what this election is about. That analogy has been in my mind this whole race. Think about it – if after Game 3, people could have said 'why even play the fourth game? You know you're going to lose.' That's what people have been saying about me. Why even go to the election? You know you're going to lose. Well, that's the rules. The election is Nov. 2. Just like you have to win that fourth game. Right now, over these next four weeks, each week is a game. We're going to keep going.

"The past three weeks we got the #$%^ kicked out of us. Every week there was something else – consultants leave, low poll numbers, we couldn't raise money. We're down three zip, no question. But now it's 3-1. We'll see."

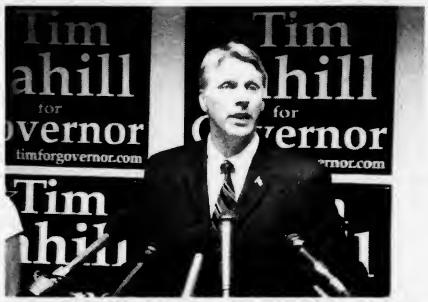
Cahill, in a candid interview, also discussed his strategy moving forward, why the Republicans want him out of the race, and how he can shock the so-called "experts" with his own historic victory - the first Independent to win the governor's office – Nov. 2.

Here's what the former Quincy city councillor, Norfolk County treasurer and state treasurer had to say:

WHY HE'S A GOP TARGET

"The Republican Governor's Association has spent $2.5 million in negative ads directed toward me. There's also negative mailings - I got one in my mail. These attacks are unprecedented. They're trying to take me out. They're not trying to take Deval out, but take me out. And it's still coming.

"I don't think it was orchestrated from the beginning but obviously over these last few weeks they keep trying to knock me out of the race, taking out two of my consultants last week and now taking Paul out. Taking Paul out was not only the ultimate betrayal but it kind of shows what (Charlie Baker and his supporters and the National Republican Party) are all about. His campaign is being run by national Republicans. They are desperately trying to knock Deval out. This is all about Obama and the 2012 election and the Republican party. This (state) has become a battleground for governors' races.



"The chairman of the Republican Party was calling my campaign manager (Michael Steele) last week imploring him to get out. That's how deep this has gone. Which is fine because they're missing the point. This should be about the people of Massachusetts. This is about the economy, this is about creating jobs and they're all trying to distract people with the same old Republican and Democratic party stuff. This incident really crystallizes the whole thing: how could someone do that? How badly do you want to win? Is this about helping people or is it about control and gaining power?

"For them this is about power and the 2012 redistricting – who controls the governor's office controls the redistricting. I've called for an independent redistricting process – not a Democrat, not a Republican but an Independent. They don't like that. "

"I want to bring to non-partisan leadership to the governor's office."

CAMPAIGN FOCUS

Cahill says his campaign's focus over the next four week

INDEPENDENT TIM CAHILL vows to stay in the race for governor at a press conference last Friday after his running mate Paul Loscocco dropped out.

is "exactly what it's been. To put a top-notch field organization together. We will continue to be up on radio and TV. We have about $2 million to spend. It's always been our plan to be relevant and be in position to win in November. We've brought a few more people in. We're knocking on doors, passing out literature, putting up signs and being on the phones so that we have identified our vote, and get them off to vote on Election Day. We'll be doing that for the next 30 days.

"It's a combination of going directly to people on TV and radio and going directly to their doors and on the phones. I can honestly say we've gotten more supporters, more help, more activity in the last week and the last day than I saw in the previous month. The folks in my campaign were a little bit downcast given the poll numbers and the pounding we've taken. It's almost like 'how can we do this?'

"But we've gone back to our roots. One day at a time, one foot in the front of the other. One vote at a time."

Cahill said his campaign is in the process of doing its own polling. "We'll have a sense of where we are, and what the issues are right now. Not what they were one, two or three months ago, where they are right now. We'll put together our media blueprint and position ourselves geographically so we know where we are doing well and where we are not doing well and whether the message is getting through or not getting through."

NO RUNNING MATE

"(Loscocco quitting) was a defining moment. I believe they felt this was going to be a knock-out punch – how could we run without a lieutenant governor? My response is: why do we need a lieutenant governor? I could not have qualified for the ballot without a lieutenant governor. So he's on the ballot. I will ask for his resignation the day I get I elected. We don't need the position and Paul has kind of proven it. Seven states don't have lieutenant governors, we can be the eighth.

"Paul probably did the most disloyal act that anyone could do in this business. How could someone just walk away with 30 days to go with all the work that's been done? Whether we're doing to win or whether we're going to lose, it's just unfathomable. It's motivated my people. We don't quit.

"For me, going up against the odds and believing when no one else believed is not deluding myself. This is not a pipe-dream. This is not a place I haven't been before. It is a much higher level. The scrutiny is much greater and the polling is much more extensive but I've never believed in polling. In the 2002 treasurer's race (Democratic primary), I was in fourth place with a week to go out of four candidates, behind Mike Cahill. What everyone was telling us what actually true: we were splitting the vote. If it were just one of us, we would have been in first place. We were able to break through with the right message, with hard work, and never quitting.

UNDERDOG SPIRIT

"People identify with that underdog spirit, that willingness not to quit. We have a state with 9 percent unemployment, 300,000 people out of work, 500,000 underemployed and I feel that this governor has quit on us. And I don't think Charlie Baker really cares about us. He's not going to fight for people from middle-class communities any more than this governor has.

"We're trying to put people back to work to make our state stronger. . . Neither of these guys is for the middle class. Deval Patrick is for the government and government knows all. Charlie Baker is for big business – big insurance, big banks. . .

"That's why I'm still in this race. I'm not in it to help Deval Patrick. I'm not in it to screw Charlie Baker. Anyone

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A late 1920's postcard view of Billings Road looking east from the end of Lunt Street in Norfolk Downs. The Parker School is in the distance out of view behind the automobile. This is a wide street because when the land company that developed this area laid it out, they had trolley tracks running down the middle of the street through grass islands. People who bought lots along here got discounted tickets for the trolleys. The trolleys were discontinued in 1920 and in 1924 the first busses used in Quincy went into service on this route. A number of doctors and dentists settled along here and had their offices in the large houses on both sides of the street. Some are still there. The new Model A Ford shown here probably belonged to the photographer, as it was common at the time to include their cars in their pictures as a trademark. Gills Stepping Down As City Clerk

By FRANK McCAULEY

This Week
18 Years Ago

The Quincy Sun Sunbeams Column reported that long time City Clerk John M. Gillis will be departing City Hall this month where he has been a fixture- and a legend – for more than three decades.

Gillis, who is 67, is expected to submit his retirement notification to the City Council at its Oct. 19 meeting.

The City Council will elect his successor who will undoubtedly be Joseph Shea, who has been assistant city clerk since March 1992 and has done a good job.

Gillis is one of two Democratic nominees for Norfolk County Commissioner where there are two vacancies caused by the retirement of Quincy's Mary Collins and James Collins of Milton. There are also two Republican candidates.

Gillis planned to retire from his City Clerk's post regardless of whether he was elected to the Norfolk County Commission or not.

NEW RECYCLING CONTRACT TO SAVE CITY $1.2 MILLION

The city has negotiated its rubbish disposal and recycling contract, which will save Quincy nearly $1.2 million over FY 1993 and FY 1994 and expand its recycling program to include the cans and telephone books as well as household hazardous waste collections twice a year.

Under the new three-year contract, Mayor James Sheets said the city will pay BFI $4,219,560 per year over the next three years. The city had been paying approximately $5 million for its trash collecting and curbside recycling program the mayor said.

Mayor Sheets also pointed out that "the contract not only provides a substantial savings in cost, it also provides a substantial expansion of recycling for more materials and household hazardous waste. You couldn't ask for much more."

Quincy's Coast: Too Much At Stake for Politics As Usual

It was good to see the City Council is interested in our 27 miles of coast and would like to see a comprehensive plan to address coastal issues. To accomplish this they would create a coastal commission.

Quincy has a waterfront commission called Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission (QBCC). QBCC already exists and has Community Preservation funds for a walking trail along the coast. The Commission includes broad representation. Councilor Doug Gutro is the Vice Chair of QBCC. Perhaps he'd like to lead the drafting of a coastal plan and timeline. Maybe Ward 1 Councilor Margaret Laforest should join us. Creating another Coastal Commission is duplicative and an example of the type of Government inefficiency that must end. Let's not reinvent the wheel, let's finally move forward.

Many of the coastal needs can be easily addressed but some will require long term planning. Recreating Quincy as a historic, seaside resort will be worth the investment. But making Quincy a DESTINATION LOCATION once again cannot be done by a few volunteers. This needs to be prioritized by the administration. The inaugural address did not include a word about our beaches.

As a member of QBCC I wrote grants and purchased, assembled and installed swim buoys at 3 neighborhood beaches. The Marine Police have been supportive of the effort and helped me install the buoys at Eront Beach. They advocated for funding to create safe swim areas at Mound St. and Avalon Beach because those beaches are surrounded by marinas.

The project would be most cost efficient if materials were purchased for all the beaches at once. It would have been approximately $30,000 to provide safe swim areas at all 12 neighborhood beaches. What started 3 years ago as a project to protect swimmers and encourage residents to exercise has had added benefit. The swim buoys provide a visual reminder that the water is clean. By promoting our beaches we boost real estate values. Quincy is perfectly situated to be the most desirable city in Massachusetts. Completing the swim buoy project is a good place to start. If we had acted on this two years ago we would have had a BOOMING Spring Real Estate Market this year.

This Cleaner Greener Quincy, I organized about 50 volunteers who spent a couple of days cleaning up around the Souther Tide Mill. We were amazed by the breathtaking views and apple and pear trees everywhere. People had apparently been living there undisturbed. We should keep it clean and safe for those who want to fish, swim or picnic.

Our best resources should not be traded away to a private school in Braintree. By incorporating "smart plan development" we would re-establish this public land along our coast as a vibrant, focal center of our community. There have been great efforts already including drafting architectural plans for some of this public space. They included a Farmer's Market, Gazebo and outdoor concert area. The city could rent bikes, canoes and kayaks and collect funding for the Rec. Department. Many parents would love to bring back swimming lessons to our beaches.

Recently the city posted an RFP to develop this waterfront land in partnership with Thayer Academy. Now they're talking about developing a plan. For those not familiar with the process, the plan usually comes before the contractor is hired. With all due respect, the administration would be wise to follow this advice with the many development projects underway. I'm not as confident as they are that "the downtown project will pay for itself".

The granite planters and trees along McGrath Highway cost a lot more than the swim buoys. Now they may need to be torn up and estimates exceed a million dollars. A few years ago, the city bought a piece of equipment to rake the sand but they don't own the equipment needed to use it. That cost a lot more than swim buoys. The DPW and Parks Department should be asked to help with the clean-up and maintenance of the neighborhood beaches. Lights and police patrols would also help.

This year I cleaned up human "waste" from the beach I'd just restored. I knew the health department staff would be there soon to take the weekly sample. Nothing closes a beach down quicker than "waste" and Quincy has a big problem with dog owners.

In the summer of 2009 we began to notice this new problem. I did not spend hours carrying away rocks and trash to make another place for the homeless to frequent. It's public space yes, but for the enjoyment of everyone. Perhaps the city council should establish a comprehensive plan to address the homeless issue before we create a nice, new greenway for them.

Quincy is blessed with phenomenal resources and many fabulous volunteers willing to help. Members of the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission should be included in decisions about the coast. Each one of us can make a difference and help create healthy communities. On July 4th I was awarded the "Good Neighbor Award" for my efforts to restore the beaches in Adams Shore. I'm not looking for credit: just smarter Government that doesn't waste money, time and effort.

Sun Dial Made Of Quincy Granite

The Quincy High School Class of 1944 recently presented a gift to the new Quincy High School: a handsome sun dial made of Quincy granite.

During its 65th class reunion last year, classmates decided despite greatly reduced membership that they wanted to give a permanent gift from the class to keep their memory alive and also repay the school for the fine education they received.

From the donations received, QHS '44 also contributed a high school sign.

The project was spearheaded by '44 classmates Norma (Ditullio) Gacicia and Mary Catherine (Brady) Duggan. Bob Kauserud also provided assistance.

The new Quincy High School was dedicated Aug. 29 by various city officials and opened to the public.

The new school is a magnificent structure housing all the most modern teaching aid available.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Orzo Stuffed Peppers

Stuffed peppers, one of the family's favorite can be made many ways, from a bread stuffing to meat, rice and so forth.

But today's recipe is made with orzo, so popular these days in salads. Although I use it mostly in soup. I love the way it comes out as a stuffing for a pepper.

STUFFED PEPPERS WITH ORZO
3 large green peppers (I usually use a red one also)
1/4-cup vegetable oil
1 medium onion
1-cup orzo
Salt and pepper
½ cup chopped fresh parsley
¼ cup tomato sauce
2 small tomatoes
1 ½ cups water
2 tablespoons tomato sauce (over the peppers)

Cut the peppers in halves, removing the seeds. Grease a 9-inch baking dish and set aside. Heat the oil and sauté the onion until golden. Add the orzo, salt, pepper and parsley. Simmer for about two minutes. Dice one of the tomatoes and add. Add the ¼ cup tomato sauce and one cup of water. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer until water is absorbed. (About10 minutes).

Fill the peppers with the orzo mixture. Place in a baking dish.

In a small bowl, put the ½ cup water and the two tablespoons tomato sauce. Pour around each pepper. Cut the remaining tomato into thin slices, and arrange them on top of the peppers. Cover and place in a cold oven, 350- degrees and bake for one hour.

Asbestos Found Being Monitored Daily

Quincy Fair Mall Demolition Seen By Nov. 1

By JOE REARDON

Department of Public Works Commissioner Lawrence Prendeville told city councillors Monday night that asbestos found during the demolition of the Quincy Fair Mall is monitored daily and being shipped to Ohio.

"The whole site is contaminated," said Prendeville.

The demolition phase of the project is expected to be completed somewhere around Nov. 1.

The Quincy Fair Mall is being demolished as part of the $8.2 million concourse project that will connect Burgin Parkway with Quincy Center and across Hancock Street to Route 3A.

Hancock Street was slated to be closed on Wednesday from 1-5 a.m. to raze the section of the building closest to the street.

The project was delayed when asbestos was found in several sections of the building after it was believed to be in just one isolated location. The demolition of the 70-year-old building was originally supposed to be completed in mid August.

The cost of the demolition more than doubled from $500,000 to $1.1 million, but the inflated number would not be incurred by the city. Instead, it would be paid with federal stimulus money, Prendeville said.

Prendeville went on to say that there is a hygienist at the site every day monitoring air quality readings.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi said the asbestos matter had been ongoing for a number of weeks and that he was concerned that it could be spread with windy, dry conditions. Department of Transportation workers have been soaking the area with water. The rubble is broken up and loaded into trucks before being transported.

Raymondi said it was important that all the data and information collected from the site be shared with the Downtown Committee and the Department of Public Works.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro said it was important that a letter also be sent to local businesses and residents in the area to let them know asbestos is present and to update them on the project's progress, including data and other questions such as where the decontamination area is.

"It would be great to have a letter that described the scope of the project," Gutro said. "All of those are important and reasonable questions."

Water Meter Replacement and Automated Meter Reading System Project

Information for Residents

The Quincy Department of Public Works is updating 24,000 water meters throughout the city. The project includes the replacement of both the water meters and external reading system. The completed project will greatly improve the reliability and accuracy of water meter reading operations and will increase the efficiency of the DPW. The city has contracted with Easton Winwater Services, who will be performing the installations. Easton WinWater Services will need access to each water customer's house or business for this work. Please be aware that Easton WinWater Services will contact customers directly via U.S. mail. Residents of Quincy are reminded not to respond to unsolicited phone calls or home visits. All personnel installing water meters are issued identification and will arrive in uniform and in marked vehicles. A link to names and pictures of each installer can be found on the DPW website. If you believe you have been contacted by someone other than Easton Winwater or the city, please call the Quincy Police Department at 617-479-1212.

The meter replacement work will begin in September in the North Quincy/Squantum area, and will progress throughout the city by water meter reading route over the course of a two-year period. There is a systematic implementation plan for this project and therefore customers are asked to not contact Easton Winwater Service or Public Works for their meter replacement until they have received a notification letter from Easton Winwater. For a current update on this program please visit the DPW website at http://www.quincyma.gov/Government/PWD/WaterMeterRepacement.cfm

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

It's Fire Prevention Week

"Smoke Alarms: A Sound You Can Live With!" is the NFPA's official theme for Fire Prevention Week, which began Monday and continues through Saturday.

The NFPA has been the official sponsor of this observance for nearly 90 years, while reemphasis has its place with such an important subject as smoke detectors and their positive impact on our welfare as indicated by statistics.

As a brief review, this week was established to commemorate the Great Chicago Fire, a conflagration that killed more than 250 people in October 1871. The fire began on the 8TH, while much of the damage was sustained on the 9TH; 100,000 were left homeless while the fire destroyed more than 17,400 structures.

In 1920, President Woodrow Wilson issued the first National Fire Prevention Day proclamation, while October 9TH, the date of the worst sustained damage from this fire, is always within the dates of observance for this week. Fire Prevention Week is the longest running public health and safety observance on record. (taken from a NFPA Press Release)

This year's theme is meant to keep the focus on the positive impact of properly placed, working smoke detectors. As I have so often suggested, few think fire will ever happen to them, statistics however, indicate it can and we should be prepared for its occurrence. There's no better way to do so than having smoke detectors ready and waiting.

As I have highlighted so frequently, they do save lives. The positive trend in statistics is a good indication of that fact. The presence of smoke alarms slowly emerged within residences in the late "60's", early "70's" while fire death rates have been on the decline since then.

Smoke alarms, if properly located and maintained, can provide the early notification needed to evacuate a home in a timely manner. Having time to do so is essential. The heat, smoke, noxious fumes, obscuration and confusion that can result from a smoke filled room or home can severely hamper timely evacuation decisions. Correct decisions are essential for survival. Smoke alarms can afford that time if properly located and maintained.

Fire Prevention Week is a great time to embrace the fire prevention message overall, recommitting yourself towards your own welfare. Where fire death rates have declined so, statistics validate the benefits of working smoke alarms and a healthy fire prevention outlook. With relatively little effort, we can take steps to minimize the occurrence of fire within our homes and substantially increase our chances of survival in the event a fire occurs. Therefore, kindly use Fire Prevention Week as a reminder to dedicate time and effort toward a safer household.

Thank you for doing so.

Raymondi Ruled Out On Downtown Redevelopment Votes

and Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee both questioned the ruling and suggested that Ward 2 residents will be disenfranchised without the voice of their ward councilor.

"I think this opinion is unreasonable and wrong," said Finn, adding that Raymondi had been cleared to vote on rezoning issues for Quincy Center and there seemed to be little difference.

Raymondi himself asked for Timmins' opinion, but told councillors that he actually believed he was in the clear because his home and office are more than 300 feet from the redevelopment zone.

"It is significant when you have an entire community that will not be represented," said Raymondi.

In fact, Raymondi said he had previously asked Timmins for a ruling and had been cleared to vote on rezoning amendments tied to the Quincy Center plan.

Timmins told the council the question was a difficult one and he reviewed it with Street-Works officials who had dealt with such issues in the past.

According to Richard Heapes, co-partner of Street-Works, city officials must also assess what's called the 'spillover' effect in making such decisions.

"You're presumed to have a financial interest," Timmins said, noting that the area is close enough to be affected in the future.

Timmins said officials must be excluded if their property is deemed within walking distance of a project and they could anticipate some effect from their decisions, even a bad effect.

If such an effect is "foreseeable," they must recuse themselves from all discussion and meetings and decisions on a project.

"The result was different from what I had anticipated," Raymondi said of Timmins' decision.

In describing 'spillover,' Heapes said that not only the development areas experience value changes, "but the surrounding neighborhoods will too."

As for Raymondi's being allowed to vote on zoning, Timmins said, "The impact that zoning changes might have, would not be foreseeable."

Timmins praised Raymondi for seeking the opinion, "He's been extremely diligent. He's protected both himself and the reputation of the body."

Being excluded from the redevelopment discussions and decisions was bad enough but Timmins also stated that Raymondi cannot discuss any issues with even one of his colleagues, and cannot attend council meetings on the redevelopment.

However, Timmins did say that Raymondi could attend non-council meetings on the proposal, such as this week's meeting on Town Brook sponsored by Quincy Environmental Network.

Timmins sent a copy of his three-page decision to the State Ethics Commission and the General Council Deidre Roney concurred with his ruling.

Gutro, Coughlin Want Policy On Notification Of School Lockdowns

By JOE REARDON

A resolution that would require notification to licensed, early education and after-school programs of public school lockdowns was introduced at Monday night's City Council meeting.

The resolution was drafted in the wake of a February incident near North Quincy High School where a 17-year-old boy was shot by a Dorchester teen on Hunt Street. There are three day-care programs in the area where the shooting took place.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro and Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin introduced the resolution to the rest of the board and recommended that it be moved on to the school committee.

"It would go a long way in providing comfort to the families," said Coughlin.

The resolution calls for the Mayor's Office and School Department to adopt a policy and put together a system for the "timely dissemination" of information to the 92 early education and after-school programs that are state licensed.

"Whereas the Quincy School Department, the Quincy School Committee and PTO community has established policies and procedures to ensure student, faculty, and staff safety and parental notification in the event of a public school lockdown," the resolution read.

Coughlin, whose wife is a childcare provider, said there could be a situation where there was a security risk that puts kids in harm's way. Getting the information out to schools and early education programs would be vital.

"It's really trying to get people who take care of the kids in these settings on the right page," he said. "Kids they care for may have siblings in a school setting."

Coughlin believes reverse 911 calls could be one way to get information out quickly. "It's a matter of putting notification out," he said.

The resolution also calls for the "varied causes" that force a lockdown at public or private schools to be identified because they are important to all the families of Quincy, regardless of how old the children are.

'Clean Or Lien' Statute OKed

City councillors Monday unanimously supported a resolution promoting a "Clean it or Lien it" statute for the city.

Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro proposed the ordinance after citing the law's success in Boston and recalling Quincy's problems with blighted properties. He suggested the ordinance would offer the city one more tool in combating neglected real estate and protecting property values.

Boston's ordinance has five-steps which allows the homeowner sufficient time to clean a property, according to Gutro who said such an ordinance is needed in Quincy as well.

The five steps are listed below:

*Examination of property

• Notice to Owner

• Newspaper Advertisement

• City Cleans Property

• Lien Recorded at Registry of Deeds

Gutro asked that Building Inspector Jay Duca offer his opinion on the proposal which was sent to the mayor for his review.

Dinner, Celebration After 4 P.M. Mass

St. Mary's Church Parishioners To Celebrate 170th Anniversary Oct. 16

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Friends and parishioners of St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, will celebrate the 170th anniversary of their parish this month, according to the pastor, Rev. David Callahan.

Fr. Callahan said a dinner and celebration will be held in the church hall after the 4 p.m. Saturday Mass on Oct. 16 and current and former parishioners are welcome as are friends and neighbors of the church.

Among the invited guests are Cardinal Sean O'Malley and former pastors of the great granite church on Crescent Street, according to Fr. Callahan.

Parishioners are enthused about the celebration, according to Fr. Callahan who said he already has a committee of 17 volunteers working on the project.

At this time, Fr. Callahan and the committee are seeking old photographs of people, events or parish sites for a presentation planned that evening. Items should be marked with names, addresses and telephone numbers and dropped off at the rectory. They will be returned.

"This was the first Catholic church on the South Shore," said Dr. Edward Fitzgerald, chairman of the Quincy Historical Society. "It's an impressive church."

The Society's detailed history of St. Mary's Church describes the parishes' roots in the 1820's when many Catholics came to West Quincy to work the granite quarries and the first Mass was celebrated in Quincy in 1826.

"It's in the heart of the granite industry," said Dr. Fitzgerald, adding "It's certainly is appropriate to the granite industry."

St. Mary's parish was established in 1842 and became the "Mother Church of the South Shore," serving Abington, Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Milton, Randolph and Weymouth. However, St. John's Church was built in 1853 and, soon, became the central parish, overshadowing St. Mary's parish.

Church's parishioners who offered their time and labor to cut the granite and transport it to the site for the great Gothic structure which became St. Mary's Church. The building cost $60,000.

Beyond the church building are two cemeteries that, also, offer tremendous insight into the city's history as well. St. Mary's Cemetery marks the graves of many of the granite workers who built the church as well as Civil War heroes.

The tiny two-acre Halls Cemetery which dates back to the mid-1850's is adjacent to St. Mary's Cemetery.

QUINCY'S QUARRY WORKERS built St. Mary's Church, West Quincy in the early 1900's at a cost of $60,000. Parishioners will celebrate the 170th anniversary of the parish in October. St. Mary's was the first Catholic parish on the South Shore and, originally, served Roman Catholics from Abington, Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Milton, Randolph and Weymouth.

Koch Submits $1.3B Downtown Revitalization Plan To Council costs...."

"We will never be in the negative on this project," said Koch who described the purchase model that requires Street-Works to pay money upfront and new city income to cover the costs.

Legal Opinion

Koch introduced Thomas Kiley, the city's lead legal counsel on the project who said, "My job is not to sell you on this project (but to) make sure you are fully protected."

Kiley said the city's team goal was to "take the risk out of this."

"We'll be here for however long it takes to show you those protections," said Kiley who then alluded to the city's $289 million bond that will overhaul the city's infrastructure from its sewer lines, electric wiring to its sidewalks and trees.

"Yes, there's a lot of public money. There needs to be a lot of public money in a project of this size," said Kiley.

Heapes later said that not even one major building in the city could be upgraded without major municipal infrastructure improvements.

Finance

Woodworth and Nick Puleo, Director of Municipal Finance, outlined the protection for the city's finances as well as potential income.

"This project will generate additional funds," said Woodworth, noting that, under the agreement, new income to the city can never be less than $500,000 a year.

"I think this is the best deal I've seen a city make. Our risks are minimized." said Woodworth.

"The purchase model is truly a novel approach," said Puleo who stated that for every single cent, "The developer will invest funds ahead (of the city.)"

Developers

"We pick our locations very carefully," said Street-Works partner Narva, adding he looks forward to the role as the city's partner.

"We're committed to seeing this through to completion," said Narva, adding that Street-Works is known for 'promises kept."

Narva said the city's history, library, new high school and neighborhoods indicate the project is "very much worth the investment."

Co-partner Heapes described some of the city's major attractions, such as the "best library on the planet" and said visitors think the new Quincy High School is a college campus.

During an earlier portion of the meeting, Heapes described successes in other states where Street-Works improvements have increased values beyond the development area. Such projects were in Washington, DC; San Jose, CA, and West Hartford, CT.

"We're very bullish on this," said Heapes who said his firms has optioned 40 parcels.

Heapes described proposals for new stores, $5 million in public art, business buildings, health and wellness center, a year-round market, green space both street-level and on roof gardens, 500 new mature trees, improvements to Town Brook and wider sidewalks for cafes.

Even the new parking garages will offer a novel approach when they provide such features as zip cars, bicycle racks and charge stations for electric cars.

Heapes also stressed that the small shops and businesses, currently operating in Quincy Center are an important part of the future.

"We're not trying to make Quincy something it's not," said Heapes who called Hancock Street, "the backbone of Quincy."

"That was once a great street," said Heapes who referred to the bustling days of Shopperstown, U.S.A. and the Bargain Center.

Today, Heapes said the "weeds are growing in the sidewalks."

"It's a program that's long overdue," said Koch before concluding the presentation with a quote from the late Pope John Paul who said, "On you depends tomorrow."

FOOT CRAMPS

Foot cramps are spasms that affect the inner arch and toes of the feet. They can last from a few minutes to a few days. Foot cramps are the most common of any muscle spasms in the body. There are numerous causes of foot cramps, including a sedentary lifestyle, Vitamin D deficiency, inadequate hydration, and hormonal imbalance. Diseases like diabetes and Parkinson's can also cause foot cramps. These uncomfortable cramps may be prevented by stretching exercises, adequate hydration with water and other liquids, and proper warm-ups and cool downs when exercising. Adequate supplements and professional medical advice from your podiatrist are a must to correct electrolyte and nutritional deficiencies that can lead to foot cramps.

There is no reason to suffer and continue to experience discomfort from foot cramps and the other myriad conditions that can affect your feet. At our office, you'll receive the highest quality medical foot care coupled with the personal attention you expect and deserve. If your foot problems concern pronation, I invite you to consult with us about HyProCure™. I am one of only two podiatrists in Massachusetts who has the advanced training necessary to perform this pain-saving, minimally invasive procedure that requires no casting and has patients back in their regular shoes in just one week. We're located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER, with office hours also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221. I am also affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

HINT: Use of proper sports gear or exercise equipment reduces the chances of foot cramps.

Councillors Seek 'Strategy' For Addressing Abandoned Properties

By JOE REARDON

City councillors voted unanimously Monday night to request city department heads to "present a strategy" for addressing those abandoned properties in Quincy that are ineligible or not considered for the Commonwealth's Abandoned Housing Initiative (AHI).

The resolution, introduced Ward 5 City Councillor Doug Gutro, requests the Director of Inspectional Service, Health Director and Fire Chief appear before the Ordinance Committee of the Quincy City Council within 45 days to provide an update on properties considered for the Abandoned Property Initiative, as well as providing a timetable for actions on the properties.

"This is a great tool that's going to force action in a timely way," said Gutro. "There's no question we have properties that have sat abandoned for years.

"This basically draws a line in the sand tells the owners to fix their property."

Gutro believes a cluster of homes near The Beachcomber, known as the "strand" could be looked at. Fire Chief Joseph Barron told the council last spring that there were 29 properties in the city that fall into the abandoned property category.

"Abandoned properties sit vacant for months or years, are an eyesore to neighbors; typically elicit multiple health and building code violations; are subject to vandalism and use of illegal purposes; and can pose a significant public safety risk to the community," the resolution read.

It also asks the city, through the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Receivership Statute, to petition the housing court to appoint a receiver, and encourages owners to take the responsibility under a "deadline driven process" or a suit can then be filed for a receiver who can take the necessary action to rehabilitate the property.

In other City Council business:

• Voted unanimously to send a communication to Mayor Thomas Koch specifying what charities the $43,800 from the Mayors Golf Tournament will be going to. The correspondence read "many donors for various charities."

• Voted unanimously to accept $750 from Twin Rivers Technologies for D.A.R.E.

• Voted unanimously to accept $200 from the 1993 Flatley Family Trust for D.A.R.E.

• Voted unanimously to schedule a public hearing for Monday, Nov. 15 for a new pole on Evans Street.

• Voted unanimously to schedule a public hearing for Monday, Nov. 15 for a new pole on Babcock Street.

Public Hearing Nov. 15 For Hannon Parkway Name

Mayor Thomas Koch Monday asked City Councillors to approve his request to name the new Quincy Center concourse in honor of former Mayor Walter Hannon.

In his request, Koch cited Hannons's contributions as mayor in supporting the concourse which is a key component of the Quincy Center Redevelopment project.

When completed, the parkway will skirt Quincy Center and allow a single four-lane East-West roadway from Granite Street to Southern Artery with direct access to Burgin Parkway.

City Clerk Joseph Finn informed councillors and Koch that the proposal must be advertised and a public hearing must be held before considerations.

Councillors will consider the proposal at a public hearing Nov. 15 at 7:15 p.m. and will likely vote on the request at that night's council meeting.

★ ★ ★ On The Campaign Trail - State Election 2010 ★ ★ ★

With the campaign season underway for this fall's state election, The Quincy Sun will publish, from time to time and when space is available, press releases submitted from candidates and their committees. The Sun retains the right to edit releases for space purposes.

Morrissey Announces Drug Legislation

Michael W. Morrissey, Democratic candidate for Norfolk District Attorney, announces that legislation he wrote ensuring that all forms of the dangerous street drug known as "Special K" will be treated as an illegal narcotic has been signed into law by Gov. Patrick.

The drug, formally known as Ketamine, is a hallucinogen that produces effects similar to PCP, and Morrissey said drug pushers have been able to alter it into a number of different forms over the years that fall outside of scope of existing state laws eligible for prosecution.

The law, which will bring Massachusetts in line with federal statute, makes it a crime to possess any material, compound, preparation mixture containing Ketamine. The drug can come in either liquid or powdered form, and can be snorted, swallowed in pill form, injected, or even smoked.

"Drug dealers will always find creative ways to deliver their deadly product, and it requires constant vigilance on our part to guarantee that law enforcement and prosecutors have the tools they need to keep these drugs off the streets and out of the hands of our children," Morrissey said.

"This change broadens the definition of the drug to include all of the various chemical compounds that make Ketamine an illegal narcotic."

Morrissey said he worked in collaboration with Norfolk District Attorney Bill Keating's Office on the bill and added that is supported by the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security and the Massachusetts State Police Crime Laboratory.

"The problem with illegal drugs is not going to be solved overnight, but we are fighting this scourge with every weapon we have," Morrissey said, noting that he has also successfully fought to enact some of toughest laws targeting drug traffickers in the entire country.

Peter Boylston Adams Endorses Sheets In The 10th Congressional District

Peter Boylston Adams, four times removed grandson of President John Quincy Adams, has endorsed former Mayor Jim Sheets for Massachusetts' 10th Congressional District.

"Jim Sheets has the character and integrity to do what is right for the people of Massachusetts," Adams said. John Quincy Adams served 17 years as a representative in the 10th Congressional District.

A former Vietnam attack helicopter pilot, holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star, Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry, Purple Heart, Army Commendation Medal for Heroism and the Air Medal with 30 Oak Leaf Clusters, banker and businessman Adams said he would be "proud to have Jim Sheets represent the congressional seat John Quincy Adams once held."

As mayor of Quincy for 12 years, Sheets "was sensitive to the historical greatness of Quincy," Adams said. Working with the late Senator Ted Kennedy, Sheets was able to secure funding for the National Park Visitor's Center at Presidents Place and also a trolley system to connect the city's historic sites.

Adams praised Sheets's education record, saying "Jim had a major impact on the future of Quincy by building two new schools, adding to three others and renovating the Point Webster School."

During the Sheets' mayoral administration, a 50,000 square-foot addition to the historical Thomas Crane Library was built, the construction of which involved the Adams' family.

Sheets and Adams collaborated with Pulitzer Prize-winning author David McCullough, author of John Adams, to establish the Adams Memorial Foundation.

Adams said "Jim Sheets will represent the 10th Congressional District with dignity and honor, continuing the tradition of President John Quincy Adams."

Adams and his wife Sherri live in Scituate in the 10th Congressional District.

Keenan Urges Fiscal Discipline On State Spending Of Federal Funds

Democratic candidate for State Senate John F. Keenan said he hopes the Legislature will show fiscal discipline and refrain from spending $450 million in one-time federal money this fiscal year.

Keenan said the money would be best saved for next year, when the state tries to balance a projected $2.5 billion shortfall.

"The state was able to balance its Fiscal Year 2011 budget, at least on paper, without using this money. It may be that the funds will be needed to balance the FY 2011 budget at year end, so the state should be fiscally responsible and not rush to spend the money now. If the funds are not needed at year end, then they should be held aside for next year and used in a manner that is in the taxpayers' best interests," said Keenan, a Quincy City Councilor-At-Large and chairman of the Council's Finance Committee.

Keenan said the state must start living within its means, try to avoid balancing budgets with the use of one-time revenue sources, and should work to reduce the state's debt. He pointed out that the City of Quincy balanced its current budget while keeping tax bills level, and has a relatively low debt ratio.

"The state must refocus its budgetary priorities on protecting local aid and core services, while ending its dependence on short-term borrowing and one-time sources of revenue," Keenan said.

Dewey Says Beacon Hill 'Needs A Dose Of Reality'

Daniel M. Dewey, Republican candidate for State Senate in the Norfolk-Plymouth District which includes Quincy, says "Beacon Hill needs a dose of common sense."

Dewey he had to make choices while he raised a family, worked and paid his taxes.

"I had to choose how to spend my money wisely. It's not a new idea to most of us, but that basic idea seems lost on Beacon Hill.

"We have to make choices. We have to choose between funding all day kindergarten in our schools or giving in-state college tuition to illegal immigrants.

"We have to choose between funding local public safety or giving welfare to illegal immigrants.

"Like so many others, my ancestors came from another country looking for a better life," Dewey continued. "We have to honor our heritage and treat everyone fairly under the law, but we have to make choices.

"We see the results when politicians fail at setting priorities. Fees for participation in school activities went up, classroom size increased, taxes were raised and businesses closed.

"A business that escapes paying Social Security for its employees will undercut the wages of workers and businesses playing by the rules. That has to change.

"We need leaders who are ready to make choices and put our community first. We need to send Beacon Hill a clear message on Nov. 2nd.

We can do better," Dewey added.

Cahill: 'I Will Keep Fighting Because I Believe I Can Win'

who thinks that doesn't know me or doesn't think very much of me because it's been brutal. Turn on the TV and you see yourself being trashed and lied about and misrepresented.

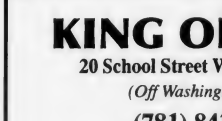
"No one's voted yet. And I think people are frustrated, and they're angry. I'm angry, too.

"It's not just about quitting. I believe I can win. And it's about continuing to fight. If people see that I won't quit on myself, then maybe they'll realize I won't quit on them as governor. The easiest thing for me to do right now would be to walk away and get my life back . . . and watch the two parties but they're not going to solve our problems. They're going to fight each other, bash each other, and at the end of the day whoever wins will not have won for us, they will have won for them. It'll be a win for the party elite, party regulars."

JOBS FIRST

"(This election) always has been and will always be about trying to put people back to work and giving people the tools and the structure to do what I did 28 years ago when I started by own business (Hand Shakes in Quincy Square); work for myself and hire people. That's who I want to represent: small businessmen and women, entrepreneurs, the middle class; people are trying to put kids through college and thinking about the future.

"I want to represent the people who go one week at a time, one month at a time, just trying to get through – surviving. But it needs to be more than just that survival because at some point you say 'is it worth it working 15 hours a day, six or seven days a week, if all we're going to do is survive? We need a little more and that's what I want to give people: that opportunity that there's going to be a better day ahead. We won't get in your way, we'll try to help anyway we can, and we'll always be there for you."



WINNING NOV. 2

"The most important thing (that needs to happen to win Nov. 2) is for regular people to believe. It's the same thing with Scott Brown. People think you have a chance and they don't believe they're throwing their vote away on Election, that their vote will matter – not just matter in sending a message but matter in actually electing a person – then we have as good a chance as anyone else. That's always been a struggle not because it's not out there, but because people are being told that.

"There are thousands and thousands of people out there who like me, who respect me, who want to vote and probably will vote for me but everyday they're being told 'don't throw that vote away. Don't elect Deval Patrick with that vote, don't elect Charlie Baker with that vote.' They're told 'your guy is not gonna get elected.'

"Once they believe that I can, then this race changes and I will keep fighting for that belief right up until Election Day."

After Running Mate Abandons Ticket

'What's Done Is Done,' Cahill Moving Forward

By JOE REARDON

Tim Cahill wasted little time in reassuring his supporters that he was still very much in the Gubernatorial race last Friday, just hours after running mate Paul Loscocco ended his bid for lieutenant governor to instead back Republican candidate Charlie Baker.

"What's done is done," said Cahill. "I'm moving forward."

Cahill was given a rousing cheer by campaign workers when he entered and exited the press conference held at his headquarters on Old Colony Avenue. Cahill said the opposition was "sadly mistaken" if they believed Loscocco's resignation meant the end of his campaign.

"The insiders from Beacon Hill to Capitol Hill are doing everything they can to try and get me out of this race," an adamant Cahill said. "Republican leadership has played every dirty trick possible because I'm the only candidate who won't bow down to the special interests. When they try to silence me, they are trying to silence the will of the voters. I'm the only candidate who will put people ahead of party. This is an unprecedented insiders' play to try to stop change."

It was an eventful week for Cahill's bid to claim the governor's seat running as an independent. Loscocco was the third member of Cahill's team to leave his campaign. Both his senior strategist John Weaver and campaign manager Adam Meldrum stepped down before Loscocco.

"They don't understand honor and commitment," Cahill said of Baker and his campaign. "You can now vote for a man with integrity and backbone."

Cahill said that he heard from Loscocco at 9:08 a.m. last Friday after he made public a press release announcing he was leaving the campaign. Cahill said he was surprised by Loscocco's decision and that he had "misjudged his character" because they had been working together for nine months. But now, Cahill said, money didn't have to be spent on the "useless job of lieutenant governor.

"I don't need a lieutenant governor to turn this state around," Cahill said. "They're not running for the hills, they're running back to their parties. I'm not a quitter. I've never quit anything I've ever done."

Cahill said he has strong strategies to take on the key situations facing the middle class citizens of Massachusetts: job creation, public safety, managing health care costs and lowering taxes.

"I'm running for Governor because the two-party system is no longer working for the people," said Cahill. "Both sides have their own special interests and entrenched leadership that wish to cement the status quo. The citizens of the Commonwealth deserve a new direction on Beacon Hill. I will honor my commitment to everyone who agrees we can't continue with business as usual."

'I'M MOVING FORWARD' Independent Gubernatorial Candidate Tim Cahill told cheering campaign workers and supporters last Friday while vowing to stay in the governor's race. Cahill spoke at a press conference at his Quincy campaign headquarters after Paul Loscocco dropped out earlier in the day as his running mate. Looking on are (second from right) his wife, Tina Cahill, their daugher, Nicole Cahill, and Mayor Tom Koch.

Domestic Violence Awareness Sunday

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will hold Domestic Violence Awareness Sunday, Oct. 10 at its 10:30 a.m. worship service.

The church will try to raise awareness regarding the crime of domestic violence. A guest speaker from D.O.V.E., Inc. (Domestic Violence Ended) will be featured.

The "Clothesline" will also visit the church. This is a literal clothesline on which t-shirts designed by survivors of abuse are hung; it will hang in the church's Fellowship Hall. Literature will also be available.

"It's critically important for each of us to be educated about domestic violence and the forms it may take," said Rev. Dr. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor of the church. "Each year people are killed through acts of domestic violence; it is a crime that affects all social and economic levels.

"I hope that people attending the service will realize that domestic abuse doesn't happen in some nebulous 'over there' – it happens right in their own community, their own neighborhood."

The names of Massachusetts residents killed through domestic violence will be read during the worship service. A candle will be lit in honor of each of them.

Information For Patients Facing Cancer And Their Families

American Cancer Society 'I Can Cope' Cancer Education Workshop Oct. 21

Patients and their family members, caregivers and friends are invited to attend the American Cancer Society's "I Can Cope" workshop, titled 'Life After Cancer Treatment', on Thursday, Oct. 21, from 5:30 – 7:30 p.m., at South Suburban Oncology Center, Crown Colony Park, 700 Congress St., Suite 101 in Quincy.

The free workshop will navigate a "new normal" for cancer patients, survivors, and caregivers. For more information, or to register, please call Jen or Erin at 617-376-6400.

I Can Cope is a continuing series of educational courses for adults with cancer and their loved ones provided in a supportive environment. Each program is designed to help participants with selected aspects of their cancer experience by increasing their knowledge, positive attitudes, and skills. Participants can share their concerns with others having similar experiences and will learn ways to cope with the challenges that arise from a cancer diagnosis.

"Living with cancer is one of the greatest challenges a person can face in the course of a lifetime," said Kerri Medeiros, Community Executive, Health Initiatives for the Society. "The more patients know about what is happening during cancer diagnosis and treatment, the better equipped they are to handle the experience."

The American Cancer Society combines an unyielding passion with nearly a century of experience to save lives and end suffering from cancer. As a global grassroots force of more than three million volunteers, we fight for every birthday threatened by every cancer in every community. The Society helps save lives by helping people stay well by preventing cancer or detecting it early; helping people get well by being there for them during and after a cancer diagnosis; by finding cures through investment in groundbreaking discovery; and by fighting back by rallying lawmakers to pass laws to defeat cancer and by rallying communities worldwide to join the fight. The American Cancer Society is the nation's largest non-governmental investor in cancer research, contributing about $3.4 billion. As a result, more than 11 million people in America who have had cancer and countless more who have avoided it will be celebrating birthdays this year. To learn more or to get help, call us any time, day or night, at 1-800-227-2345 or visit cancer.org.

What Are 'Significant' Lapses of Memory?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My mother is 69 and has, during the past few years, shown signs of memory problems. In the span of 20 minutes, she might ask the same question several times. She has trouble following the flow of conversation. I am concerned she might be forgetting her medicines. I called her physician and was told that until she forgets what things like toasters are used for, there is no real concern. Isn't early intervention a key to treating Alzheimer's? – M.K.

ANSWER: With age, it takes more time to retrieve information from the memory than it does in youth. That's normal. It's also normal for older people, given a sufficient amount of time, to recall the events of the preceding day or of special occasions. They might, on occasion, find it difficult to come up with a particular word, but they should be able to continue to perform tasks like balancing a checkbook. They might misplace things, as we all do. However, they can institute a search in an orderly and methodical way.

It's not normal to forget an entire event even when they are given promptings of what has happened. Misplacing things because the things have been put in strange places isn't normal. An example is putting the car keys in the refrigerator.

Neurologists, geriatricians (doctors who specialize in the treatment of the elderly), psychiatrists and psychologists administer tests that more precisely reflect a person's memory and thinking capabilities. Having your mother tested isn't a bad idea, and she should not take offense at the suggestion.

Four medicines constitute the bulk of prescriptions written for Alzheimer's disease. They are Aricept, Razadyne, Exelon and Namenda. The first three are usually prescribed for the early stages of this illness. None is a cure. They can slow its progression. Dozens of new medicines are currently under investigation.

The booklet on Alzheimer's describes this illness and its treatment in understandable terms. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue – No. 903W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I haven't seen anything in your column about fungus foot infection. We have several family members who have it on their toes. How does it start, and what can be done for it? – Anon.

ANSWER: I have to believe you're referring to athlete's foot, the most common kind of fungal foot infection. Few people pass through life without an encounter with the fungi of athlete's foot. The infection spreads through contact with shed skin that contains the fungus.

Fungi thrive in warm, moist environments. A change of socks twice a day and wearing an alternate pair of shoes on successive days keep the feet dry. Antifungal foot medicines abound and come as ointments, creams or lotions. It can take a month or more for results. After the skin has healed, continue to apply the medicine for another two weeks. If over-the-counter medicines – Micatin, Lotrimin AF and Tinactin are a few names – don't put an end to the infection, prescription medicines can.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

THE GUM DISEASE/PRETERM BIRTH LINK

While research has already established a link between periodontal (gum) disease in pregnant women and an increased risk of giving birth to babies of low birth weight prematurely, a new study provides additional news on the link between gum disease and premature birth. According to researchers, pregnant women who undergo successful treatment are less likely to give birth early. This finding is based on a study of nearly 900 pregnant women, with and without gum disease, who were pregnant for between six and twenty weeks. This study provides a good argument for women to incorporate dentists into their prenatal healthcare team. Maintaining good oral health before and during pregnancy is in the best interests of both mother and child.

Swollen, red and tender gums that bleed when you floss or brush can be a sign of pregnancy gingivitis, and they're a common complaint during pregnancy. We believe in the importance of regular dental health care. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we encourage children and adults to start and continue a healthy habit of regular dental checkups so their smiles will last a lifetime. Our motivated, quality oriented staff wants you and your family to look and feel the very best. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincy-dentist.com.

P.S. So far, research suggests that periodontal disease triggers increased levels of biological fluids that induce labor.

RUSH TO JUDGMENT

It is hardly news that four people in five will experience back pain sometime in their lives. What is surprising is that many Americans are so quick to opt for surgical treatment. The fact is that time is often the best antidote for back pain, and surgery offers no real guarantee that it will cure chronic back pain. Moreover, about 20% of patients who undergo back surgery return for a subsequent surgical procedure within a decade. While specialists indicate that 10% of patients with lingering back pain are candidates for surgery, the remaining 90% may be better served by more conservative treatment first. The non-invasive treatment offered by a chiropractor may help relieve chronic back pain without a scalpel.

We are trained in the detection, reduction, correction, and prevention of spinal related problems, thus decreasing and eventually eliminating aches and pains. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we believe a proper chiropractic spinal analysis and spinal adjustment are essential to your good health. For drug-free chiropractic care, we invite you to call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we're currently accepting new patients. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. There can be numerous reasons for back pain, ranging from vertebrae out of alignment and "bulging" discs to arthritis and bone-thinning osteoporosis.

Storing Window Screens

Q: Last year I took my window screens down and put up my storm windows. I stored the screens in the garage, stacking them on their sides along the wall. But at least four of the screens were damaged somehow over the winter. How can I prevent further damage this winter? – Hank T., Knoxville, Tenn.

A: You'll probably want to either find a new location to store the screens, or adjust the layout of your garage (if possible) to prevent equipment or people from accidentally bumping against the screens or things from falling off shelves onto them.

Screens should be stored either by laying flat or standing upright, in a dry area where the temperature is kept fairly constant. To keep dust and dirt off of them, cover the stack with plastic.

One thing I've found in older garages of the northeast U.S. is that the interior walls of many of the garages were lined with the screen windows from the house. Homeowners simply rigged up the lightweight windows to hang along the walls, protecting them from weather, dirt and falling objects, then reinstalled them come spring.

Another option is to reserve the top shelves of your heavy-duty garage storage shelves to lay the screens flat, if they'll fit. This will keep the screens off the floor, away from dampness, most dirt, falling objects and curious children, and in a decent airflow situation (an important consideration if the screen frames are wood).

If the damaged screens haven't been repaired yet, make a note to fix them over the winter so they'll be ready to put up right away come spring. Small holes or dings can be patched easily. If the screen has a big tear or you just want it to look uniform, replace the entire screen. Kits are available at your local hardware or home-improvement store.

HOME TIP: Clean window screens by laying them flat on the driveway and gently scrubbing with a soft brush dipped in warm soapy water, then rinse clean. Don't pressure wash screens or windows.

Remember, when in doubt as to whether you can safely or effectively complete a project, consult a professional contractor.

Saving Energy Might Not Be As Difficult As You Think

(ARA) - While saving energy and lowering your bills during the winter takes some personal sacrifice, it might not be as hard as you think. With a combination of changing your habits and a few simple fixes, it's possible to realize significant savings on your utility bills.

You could be well on your way to saving money and lessening your impact on the environment this winter by making a few simple changes:

• Reduce your home's average temperature by a degree or two. You obviously don't want to make your house too chilly for you or your guests, but this is a case where a little can go a long way. For each degree, you may be able to save 1 percent on your heating bill, according to the U.S. Department of Energy. Over the whole winter, that 1 or 2 percent can amount to quite a bit in actual savings.

• Consider a programmable thermostat. This allows you to set the heat at a lower temperature while you are at work or while you sleep, and then program the thermostat to reach comfortable levels before you arrive home in the evening or get up in the morning. Some products allow you the option of controlling the temperature of your home from most Web-enabled cell phones or a computer no matter where you are. You can also set up the system so when you enter your code in a wireless keypad lock in your front door, the thermostat will adjust to a temperature that's most comfortable for you. You can even program the thermostat to send text or email alerts if the temperature goes below a preset level, indicating a potential heating system failure. With a system like this, you can save a lot of energy - and money - and always be comfortable when you arrive home.

• Check your HVAC filters and replace them if they are dirty. This should be done at least once a month during times of heavy usage, according to the Department of Energy. Clearing and cleaning any vents in your heating system will also help it run more efficiently.

• Seal places where heat could escape. Some strategic caulking and weather stripping can go a long way toward bringing your heating costs way down; the Department of Energy says properly sealing your home can reduce costs by 20 percent. Using duct sealant to close up any exposed heating or cooling ducts can also offer significant savings.

• Keep curtains open during the day to let in natural heat energy. Keep them closed at night to provide extra insulation around your windows.

If you're looking for more ideas on how to save energy, it may be a good idea to have a local contractor conduct an energy audit on your home or visit www.energystar.gov for more information. The auditor will be able to give you minor tips, as well as suggestions for major projects you may want to do in the future. After all, with a few simple cost-saving measures in place, you might be able to afford bigger energy-saving projects in years to come.

Marty Gordon Raises $3,004 For Coveted Ceremonial Title; Wood Road Deli Awarded Best 'Chowda'

Houghs Neck Inaugurates 3rd Mayor At 'Chowda Fest'

After raising big bucks for the neighborhood, Marty Gordon will go down in history as the third mayor of Houghs Neck, succeeding Mike Berry (2009) and Ralph Jacobs (2008). His only responsibilities will be to brag about his title and to be a good steward to the perpetual flounder trophy during his tenure.

Mayor Thomas Koch, State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti presented Gordon commendations at the Houghs Neck "Chowda Fest" held recently at the Maritime Center. Gordon won the mock mayoral contest by raising more cash than two other candidates, Kim Fallon and Steve Holler. Each dollar raised from neighbors, friends and business counted as one vote.

Gordon raised an astounding $3,004 by holding an Adult Pinewood Derby so that all of the kids at heart could race their souped up cars down the track. An impressive 42 cars were entered into the race with some built for speed and most built for laughs.

Some of the more memorable cars were a block of swiss cheese and mice, a Mary Kay Pink Cadillac, a Star Wars Sand Speeder and one entitled "Time Bandit."

The $5,230 sum collected will go towards youth programs and events of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

"After a very successful year last year we have now made all of our youth events free admission and have been able to make them bigger with more activities," said Brian Laroche, president of the Houghs Neck Community Council. "Since our candidates did so well this year we've are really fortunate to continue to do so much good for our youth.

"What these three individuals have done for our community is stunning, our appreciation of their efforts is hard to put in words, we are so grateful to them."

The candidates kicked off their campaign at a Mayor Breakfast and raised money all summer. Although Gordon will be recognized for his efforts with a trophy, he will not be the only winner, the community is the one that really won!

GALLIGAN FAMILY celebrates the top chowda award presented to Wood Road Deli at the recent sixth annuyal Houghs Neck Chowda Fest. The race was close – as first, second and third spots were separated by only 10 votes. Second place went to the Fowler House with Burke's Seafood in third place. Photos Courtesy Joe Giggey

INVIDUAL HONORS at the Houghs Neck Chowda Fest went to (from left) Tina Lyons, who received third place; Rev. John Castricum, pastor of Houghs Neck Congregational Church, first place; and John Crosta, third place.

JIM McCarthy and Emily McCarthy enjoy the sixth annual Houghs Neck Chowda Fest.

WENDY CONNORS, first place winner at the 2009 Houghs Neck Chowda Fest and Ralph Jacobs, the 2008 Mayor of Houghs Neck, share a moment at the chowda fest.

AN ESTIMATED 1,300 people attended the sixth annual Houghs Neck Chowda Fest at the Maritime Center. It was the largest crowd since the event began in 2005.

Houghs Neck 6th Annual Chowda Fest A Huge Success

The Houghs Neck residents voted with their taste buds by deciding which restaurant and individual is serving the best chowder at the 6th annual Houghs Neck "chowda fest."

The event was held at the Maritime Center overlooking Hingham Bay.

The festival was attended by the largest crowd since the event was started in 2005. It has grown from 400 to 1,300 in attendance in just a few years.

"This is has become a neighborhood tradition and is an event not to be missed, it has become a huge social event for the Houghs Neck residents, a kind of reunion of sorts," Laroche said.

The chowder festival had restaurant and individual categories.

Contributing restaurants include: Bernie's General Store and Louis Crossing in Houghs Neck; Burke's Seafood in North Quincy; Captain Fishbones at Marina Bay; Tony's Clam Shop on Wollaston Beach; The Fours and The Fowler House in Quincy Center; Peggy O'Neil's Pub in Dorchester; Roche Brothers and Mari's Place in Quincy and the Wood Road Deli in Braintree.

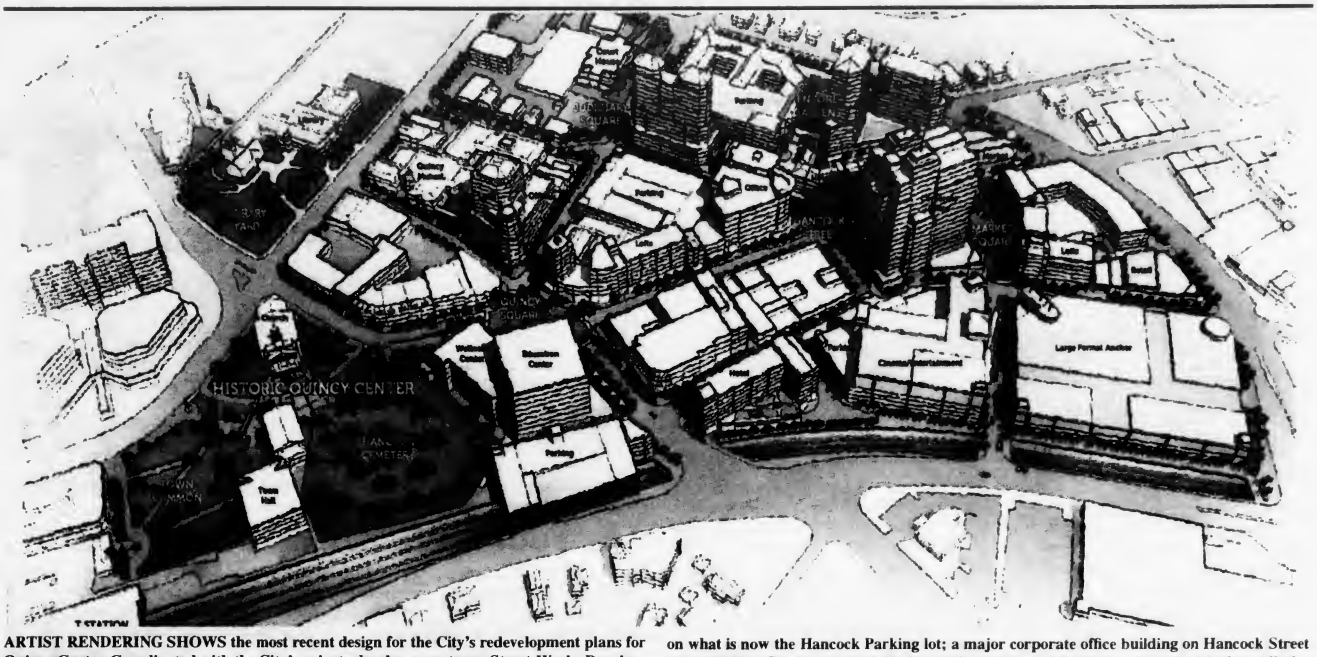
There were over 1,000 ballots cast for the best Chowda and in the end the top three restaurants were all within 10 votes of each other. After three recounts of the votes, the best Chowda was awarded to Wood Road Deli which has won twice in the past.

Second place was awarded to The Fowler House on Hancock Street near Central Middle School and Third Place to Burke's Seafood on Billings Road in North Quincy. These restaurants will be added to the Honor Roll of Winning Restaurants since the beginning of the event which include; 2005 Hancock Tavern, 2006 Kelly's Landing, 2007 The Four's and Wood Road Deli the past three years.

There were six individual entries into the contest that included a combined entry by Jeff Laforest and Jim McCarthy, John Crosta, Joanne Laroche, Wendy Connors, Tina Lyons and Rev. John Castricum of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

There was lots of fun banter between the individuals who were heckling each other over who was going to win the contest.

Wendy Connors a multiple winner of the contest was tough competition for everyone this year. However the contestants really stepped up and did an amazing job preparing their Chowda.



The individual race was equally as close as the restaurants and the ballots had to be recounted several times to be sure of the winner.

This year the winner was Rev. John Castricum who was awarded $100 cash prize for successfully winning the individual category. The runners-up were John Crosta and Tina Lyons. They were all presented with lobster person trophies made by Billy Vecchione with all items found on the shoreline in Houghs Neck.

Quincy Police Department Marine Unit had their police boat GUARDIAN docked at Maritime Center and Weymouth Police Marine Unit also had their police boat SEA WATCH at the Maritime Center and they both provided free boat rides.

A special thanks to Officer Bob Gillen for coordinating the Marine Unit presence at the event and for graciously donating his time to detail the event.

The event sponsor was Wachusett Brewery which provided their Blueberry Ale, October Fest and Summer Ale for tasting. Other features of the event included Lois Murphy selling her famous Nut Island Beach Plum Jam, Joe Brill selling Red Sox-Yankee tickets to raise money to dedicate benches at the public landing and The Houghs Neck Congregational Church held a bake sale at the event to raise money to begin a fund that will be used to build and repair Houghs Neck playgrounds. The idea of the fund was started after the successful building of a new playground at Brill Field by the Community Council this time last year.

ARTIST RENDERING SHOWS the most recent design for the City's redevelopment plans for Quincy Center. Coordinated with the City's private developer partners, Street-Works Development LLC, the design's major elements include space for a major anchor retailer and cinema in the area where the Ross Garage currently stands, a new hotel on what is now the Parkingway; ground-floor retail and restaurant space in almost every building; residential buildings on what is now the Hancock Parking lot; a major corporate office building on Hancock Street near Cliveden Street, and several new public spaces in the district. In total, the plan calls for the 2.7 million square feet of new development $1 billion private investment – the largest in the City's history.

The New Quincy Center/Urban Redevelopment Plan

The following is an executive summary of the $1.3 billion New Quincy Center/ Urban Redevelopment Plan presented Monday night to the City Council from Mayor Thomas Koch and the city's development partner, StreetWorks.

The City of Quincy has long recognized the need for a revitalization plan for its downtown to spur growth and lay a foundation for its long term economic sustainability. Aging infrastructure and a decline in the quality and mix of retail uses has created under-valued real estate in Quincy Center.

Today's Quincy is built on a foundation of vital assets, chief among them a rich history and a series of thriving educational, commercial, cultural, and civic institutions. The new Quincy Center is a tremendous opportunity to build on these assets and revitalize the downtown. This 'rebirth' will bring critical new activity and investment to downtown, and will re-establish Quincy Center as the physical, cultural, civic and commercial heart of the City.

The new Quincy Center will create a dynamic, mixed-use environment around three primary uses: commercial, retail and residential, connected by widened, tree-lined sidewalks, and additional park and civic spaces.

• State-of-the-art office buildings for existing and new corporate and professional office tenants: new opportunities in medical/ wellness/life sciences, and academic tenants.

• Dynamic retail: neighborhood and community service, entertainment, dining and experienced-based retail.

• Diverse residential offerings: units for a wide range of incomes and ages, for rent and for sale.

The City has developed a proposed public-private partnership with its designated developer, Street-Works, focused on the revitalization of Quincy Center. Execution of the New Quincy Center mixed-use neighborhood is expected to occur over several years in four steps, beginning in 2013.

Through this bold, forward-looking partnership, the City is securing its economic future, creating a 'sense of place' in Quincy for future generations and preserving our deep history.

Public Benefits:

The new Quincy Center will not only bring unprecedented benefits to the core of the City but will have substantial impacts throughout the City and the region:

Unprecedented investment in the City of Quincy:

• $1 billion in private investment and $277 million in public infrastructure im-

Simple Tips To Keep Your Vehicle Running Its Best

(ARA) - All motorists want their vehicle to last on the road and perform at its best. As the summer finally begins to wind down, it's important to make sure your car is properly prepared for cooler weather and weekend road trips. Since a car is typically the second largest investment Americans make, and families are now keeping their vehicles longer than ever, protecting and maintaining this investment is key to keeping cars running smoothly and efficiently.

Sometimes vehicle maintenance can be one of the more daunting aspects of automobile ownership. For many drivers, spending a few hours under the hood or taking their car into the dealer can be like having a tooth pulled - necessary, but painful.

With a little planning and some willpower, there are a few smart and easy ways to get your vehicle ready for the road. The key is to plan ahead and know the basics. Below are a few essential maintenance tips from Long that can pay off in the long run.

• Change your oil regularly

A regular oil change is the service most likely to help prolong the life of your vehicle, and it's especially important to keep in mind before you head out on any long road trips. Changing the oil, not just topping it off, with a high-quality motor oil that meets the specifications recommended by your vehicle's manufacturer can help your engine get the lubricant protection it needs.

• Protect critical engine parts

Just because you can't see a problem, doesn't mean it's not there. Before taking a long trip or if you drive a lot, visit a trusted professional and make sure your car is properly tuned. According to the U.S. Department of Energy, regular vehicle maintenance can improve gas mileage by an average of 4 percent.

If your car is experiencing poor fuel economy, decreased horsepower, hesitation and/or rough idling, consider using a fuel additive to help your vehicle's critical engine parts work more efficiently. By removing deposits in the fuel system, the combustion efficiency is improved, which in turn improves miles per gallon (MPG) and performance.

• Keep your tires properly inflated

Make sure your tires are at the correct pressure and not over- or under-inflated. According to the U.S. Department of Energy, keeping tires at the correct pressure can improve your gasoline mileage by about 3.3 percent. Proper air pressure is also essential for automotive safety and optimum driving performance.

• Use quality gasoline and don't run on empty

A number of consumers have switched to low-quality gasoline due to the struggling economy. That's understandable, but what most people don't know is that lower-quality gasoline can leave behind carbon deposits that can rob the vehicle of performance which may reduce gas mileage. Gumout Performance Chemicals are designed to clean and protect critical parts in your car.

Running your vehicle on empty is also not a part of good car care, because sediment from gasoline settles at the bottom of the gas tank and when the gas level in your car runs low, your car uses the dirtiest gasoline in its tank. Driving on a near-empty tank puts your car at risk to get this dirt into the fuel line and possibly the engine.

Is Your Ride Ready For Winter?

(ARA) - In many parts of the country, winter can test even the most seasoned driver's skills with sudden road and weather changes. In ideal circumstances you have warning of what Old Man Winter might bring for the day, but many times wet roads can become icy and a few flurries can become a snowstorm without any warning at all.

While you can't avoid unforeseeable weather changes, you can make sure your car is maintained and ready for winter driving. From using a radiator coolant additive to carrying an emergency breakdown kit in your trunk, here are some tips to prepare your vehicle for winter driving:

Check your battery: Instead of landing on your "I Forgot" list, put this one at the top. Make sure your battery posts and connections are free of corrosion and that the battery has the water it needs. If your battery is older than three years, have a certified repair shop test its ability to hold a charge.

Belts and hoses: When you're having your vehicle serviced, make the mechanic checks the belts and hoses for wear and tear, regardless of the age of your car. Cold weather can also affect the belts and hoses of a modern car, so an inspection can't hurt.

Have the right antifreeze mix: You will want to aim for a 50-50 mix of antifreeze (coolant) and water inside your radiator. This prevents the mixture from freezing at extremely cold temperatures. Or try using a coolant additive that is a high performance, synthetic, radiator coolant additive.

Check your four-wheel drive: If your vehicle has four-wheel drive, you probably haven't used it during the summer, so it's good idea to check the status of your four-wheel drive system. Make sure the system engages and disengages easily and that all the drivers of the vehicle know how and when to use the system.

Get an oil change: When you're getting your vehicle ready for winter, change the oil using the right viscosity for your vehicle for the time of year. Conventional oil tends to thicken as it gets colder, and if too thick, it won't properly lubricate your engine. Check your owner's manual for guidance about which oil to use in different climates and temperatures. Another alternative is to use a synthetic blend or full synthetic motor oil that will extend the time between oil changes, saving you money and having less impact on the environment.

Emergency preparedness: If you know you're going to be on the road during the winter months, make sure you have an emergency kit in your trunk. Items you should include in your kit are: a blanket, boots, gloves and warm clothes, water and food including hard candy, ice scraper, small shovel, jumper cables, tool kit, tire chains, tire gauge, spare tire (ready to be used), tire changing equipment, first aid kit, paper towels and abrasive material such as non-clumping cat litter or sand to provide traction in the snow.

Non-League Game At Malden Saturday, 1:30 p.m.

Red Raiders Run Through Pembroke, 34-7

By SEAN BRENNAN

Before the start of last Friday's Patriot League showdown between North Quincy and Pembroke High School, the Titans were one of the hottest teams on the South Shore, having racked up a 3-0 record and looking dominant in doing so.

Four quarters later that all changed. The Red Raiders handed Pembroke its first loss of the fall, convincingly, by running through and around every tackler they encountered, winning 34-7.

North Quincy's running backs were a backfield in motion. Kyle McKay (two TDs, 80 yards), Seyi Adesuyan (TD, 145 yards), Mike Curran (TD, 60 yards), and Marquis Chase (TD, 90 yards) punished Pembroke from the opening whistle behind a dominant performance from the Red Raiders' offensive line. North Quincy, which had jumped out to a 14-0 halftime lead, never relented, amassing an incredible 250 yards on the ground in the second half.

It was the type of performance that NQHS head coach Jim Connor had been waiting for since the 2010 season kicked off in early September.

"Overall our backfield was outstanding," said Connor. "All four guys ran hard and produced. We were able to rotate them in when one got tired and it helped to keep our running attack fresh.

"But you need to give credit to our offensive line. Whenever you have four backs get so many yards, including 250 in the second half, and score five touchdowns the O-line has to have played well."

North Quincy was coming off a humbling 46-28 loss at East Bridgewater HS on Sept. 24, a game in which the Red Raiders allowed 33 first quarter points. Against the Titans, NQ reversed course and scored the game's first two touchdowns.

Chase was the first running back to cash in, scoring on a 30-yard scamper in the first quarter; a two-point conversion rush by Adesuyan gave North the early 8-0 lead. McKay scored the first of his two touchdowns later in the half on a one-yard plunge. The point after attempt (PAT) was no good.

North entered the break up 14-0.

"We knew Pembroke's record coming in, but we felt like this was a winnable game," Connor said. "We knew that we had to fix the problems that we had against East Bridgewater and it was good to see us come out and play two solid quarters to start the game against Pembroke."

The second half started badly for North Quincy. On the opening kickoff, Pembroke's special teams forced a fumble, which they recovered inside the Raiders' ten-yard line. A few plays later Titan junior Jon Hooper scored from five yards out; the PAT was good and suddenly the score was 14-7.

With the home crowd now fired up, North Quincy almost fumbled away their lead as Pembroke forced another turnover on the next Red Raider kickoff return. However, the fumble call was reversed, giving NQ possession back.

According to Connor, that decision was the turning point of the game. His team readjusted its focus and proceeded to run the ball down the throat of the Pembroke defense. The big play on this drive was a 65-yard TD run from Adesuyan. The PAT gave NQ a 21-7 advantage.

"We came out and fumbled that first kickoff away and Pembroke took advantage," said Connor. "After almost losing that second fumble we readjusted and just ran the ball right at their defense. We could have folded but this team showed some fight.

"To be honest, we played a shaky third quarter, and that is something that we need to work on. We played three great quarters, but we need to find a way to play a full game."

In the final quarter North Quincy wore down Pembroke, never letting the Titans have a chance to claw back into the contest. And, again, it was the running back committee and offensive line that did the dirty work.

Mike Curran made it 27-7 with a five-yard TD run and McKay closed out the surprising rout with a 38-yard dash to the end zone.

Not to be overlooked, the North Quincy defense played a strong game from the start. Pembroke drove the field on the opening possession of the game but stalled out due to some stingy defensive play. The end of that Titan drive was the beginning of North Quincy's productive rushing night.

"The way we kept fighting back was admirable," Connor added. "It showed me that we have some fight in us. We can enjoy this but it is time to move forward to the next game (Malden HS)."

Now back to .500 overall, North Quincy (2-2) meets non-league Malden on Saturday (1:30 p.m.). This matchup is going to pose different problems for the Raiders, specifically the size of that team's offensive and defensive lines.

"(Malden) is an enormous team," said Connor. "They average 6'3" and 270 pounds on their line, so we are going to have to game plan for that. But we schedule non-league games that will test us and prepare us for the meat of our Patriot League schedule.

"This team is very good at understanding that when a game is over it is time to move on. We will be 100% ready to play on Saturday."

QYF League Results

It was a scoreless defensive battle through the first three quarters of play. The Apaches defense was spearheaded this week by the play of Jake Bergonzi (13 tackles, five for loss) Mike Connelly (five tackles, fumble rec.) Bryan Lenane, Mike McNelly, Alex Chen, Steve Scolaro (fumble rec.) and QB Pat Frasso who did a great job filling in at defensive end.

The Apache offense finally got on the board in the fourth quarter as Frasso (3 for 8, 1 TD pass) hit Bergonzi on a 13-yard touchdown pass.

On the ensuing kickoff, Mike Connelly recovered a Squantum fumble, which set up a two-yard TD run by Scolaro to make the score 12-0 with a minute left to play.

Next week History repeats itself. In 1951, the Quincy Youth Football League inaugural season began. The top teams battling it out where West Quincy (known then as the Mayo's Club All-Stars) and The North Quincy "Squires" Apaches. 60 years later the Elks and the Apaches are on top again, as the two unbeaten teams meet Sunday at 1 p.m.

Both teams feature high-powered offenses and stingy defenses; This QYFL Desmond Division showdown promises to be one of the most exiting games in years.

Game Recap:

Despite missing two starting linemen, the Storm dominated the game clock with a strong ground game, but the Apaches scored two touchdowns in the last four minutes to pull out a 12-0 win to run their record to 4-0. The Storm is now 1-3 with the Quincy Point Panthers on the schedule for 4 P.M. next Sunday.

Home Game Friday Against Duxbury at 7 p.m.

QHS Gains Confidence With Win Over Randolph

By JOE REARDON

There's a lot to be said for a tough week of practice after a sloppy loss. Quincy High head coach Bill Reardon put the Presidents through a grueling five days of workouts in wake of its penalty-filled loss to Plymouth South and it got through to his squad.

All the mistakes and bad decisions Quincy made in its 12-11 loss to the Panthers it more than made up for in Friday night's 23-8 rout of Randolph at Veterans Stadium.

Now, with four games gone and sporting a 2-2 mark, the Presidents are hoping the momentum from their impressive victory will pull them through Friday night's home showdown with always-tough Duxbury.

Quincy head coach Bill Reardon likes where the Presidents are at after their decisive win.

"I thought we had a chance at 3-1, but this is where I thought we'd be," said Reardon. "It's always nice to win that's for sure."

Jalen Green and Ronn Newsome provided the firepower for the Presidents out of the backfield. Green ran for touchdowns of 17 and 29 yards, and the two running backs combined for 150 yards on the ground.

Quincy also had points on a pair of safeties, giving the team three in two games. Quarterback Ryan Shultz hit Derrick Stone with a 15-yard scoring pass to round out its scoring

The Presidents played smart, disciplined football and cut down on the penalties, particularly holding penalties assessed in the loss to Plymouth South. The offensive line made life a whole lot easier for Quincy's running game and gave Shultz time in the pocket.

The offensive line of Ryan Boyle, Brian MacDonald, Keenan Daniels, Charles Butler and Seth Pullum knocked the Blue Devils off the ball all evening to open up constant opportunities on offense.

"They're brimming with confidence now," said Reardon. "The key for us (against Duxbury) is to take care of the football. We're going to have to play as close to perfect as we can. It doesn't get much tougher than them."

Reardon isn't allowing the Presidents to look past Duxbury. Quincy will have all it can handle with the Green Dragons. After their fifth game, the Presidents travel to Pembroke (Oct. 16) and are back at the Stadium on Oct. 22 to do battle with Middleboro.

North Quincy Earn 1-1 Tie With Milton HS

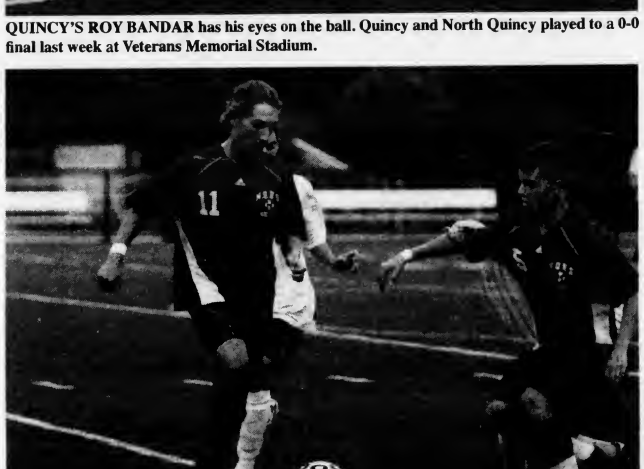
Presidents & Raiders Play To 0-0 Deadlock

By SEAN BRENNAN

The end result was not what either team wanted, but both the North Quincy Red Raiders and the Quincy Presidents, walked off a damp Veterans Memorial Stadium turf with a point following their 0-0 tie last Thursday in the first of two games between the city teams this season.

Played under a vicious crosswind, the game was a tale of two halves. In the opening 40 minutes it was the Presidents who had the wind at their backs on the attacking end and as a result, it was Quincy (0-6-2), which had the advantage. Despite several scoring opportunities off of corner kicks (three) and direct kicks, the Presidents could not convert on their chances as NQHS keeper Anthony Andronico (six saves), stood tall.

The Red Raiders, and especially forwards Chris Lamont and Iany Martins as well as midfielder Nick Carbone, forced the issue on their end of the pitch in the opening half, but came up empty.



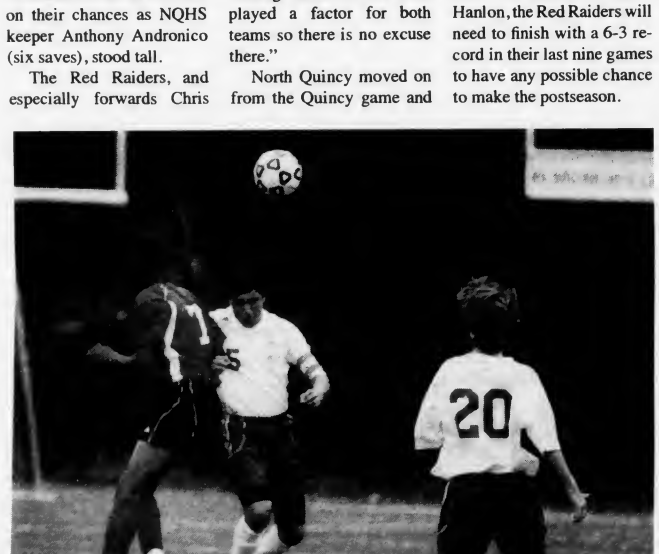
In the second half, North Quincy (2-4-3) had the wind at their backs but QHS goalie Antonio Foleis turned away the limited scoring chances the Red Raiders had and the contest ended the way it began, 0-0.

"I think both teams (and coaches) were disappointed that they didn't come away with a win, but we were happy to come away with the point," said NQHS head coach Rich Hanlon. "We had our chances and we played Quincy tough but we just couldn't convert on the scoring chances. The wind played a factor for both teams so there is no excuse there."

North Quincy moved on from the Quincy game and traveled to Milton HS to play a non-league match on Oct. 2. After falling behind 1-0 through 77 minutes of regulation, the Red Raiders' Matt Costa scored the game-tying goal in the waning minutes. It was a huge goal and the final result was important for North Quincy's chances of advancing into the postseason.

"Milton is a very strong program," said Hanlon. "We were losing for most of the game until Costa scored a big goal with three minutes remaining to give us the tie. It was an important result for us because every point counts at this stage of the season."

At the halfway mark, North Quincy has work still to do, and, according to Hanlon, the Red Raiders will need to finish with a 6-3 record in their last nine games to have any possible chance to make the postseason.



NQ SENIOR CAPTAIN Nick Carbone (#11) maneuvers the ball up the field against Quincy with a little help from teammate Robbie Routhier (#5).

"We'll have to make a run here if we want to make the tournament," said Hanlon. "That tie with Milton was huge and this week's games versus Pembroke (league game) and Plymouth North (non-league) are going to go a long way in determining where we stand heading into the final stretch of the season."

The Red Raiders played at home against Pembroke HS on Tuesday and are scheduled to play at home at 4 p.m. versus Plymouth North today (Thursday).

Quincy HS and North Quincy HS will play again on Saturday, Oct. 16 at 7 p.m. The boys' game will follow the Quincy HS and North Quincy HS girls match set to start at 5 p.m.

QUINCY'S MARTIN CONROY (#5) and North's Iany Martins (#7) use their heads to try and gain possession during last Thursday's cross-city soccer game.

QHS/NQHS Game Postponed Due to Weather

North Quincy Beginning To Show Improvement

By SEAN BRENNAN

Strong wind and wet weather compounded to postpone the scheduled Quincy HS and North Quincy HS girls soccer match last Friday afternoon at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

So instead of playing the first of two cross-city matches, the two programs will replay this game later this month; the date and time had not been announced as of Tuesday to the Sun. The Presidents and the Red Raiders will be playing each other on October 16 at the Stadium in a game that has been on the schedule since early September.

As a result of the postponement, North Quincy (3-4-1) begins this week looking to extend their winning streak to two games, and build off an improved performance that was put in against Patriot League foe Middleboro HS last week. North Quincy beat Middleboro 3-0 on Sept. 29.

Freshman Abby Smith scored her team's first goal just 25 seconds into the contest on a blast from 15 yards out. Senior captain Jillian Carchedi picked up the assist. The Raiders, after taking a 1-0 advantage into halftime, scored two more times in the second half on two goals from sophomore Shannon McCleary.

McCleary's first tally was a beauty. She picked the top right corner from 30 yards out on passes from juniors Jessica O'Donovan and Jonlyn Lydon. Her second goal came off a penalty kick later in the half.

"We played much better against Middleboro," said NQHS head coach Paul Bregoli. "It was a big win for us. Before the game we made some changes and started three freshmen. Abby scored right off the opening kickoff and after missing some scoring chances in the first half we came out in the second half and Shannon took over.

"Her first goal was special. She didn't hesitate and buried that shot."

The Red Raiders are young. It has taken the team some time to figure out what they need to do to be successful, but this game against Middleboro was a step in the right direction.

"We are starting to mature as a team," added Bregoli. "We attacked on offense in the second half and were rewarded for it. This is the type of performance that this team is going to need to put in the rest of the way if we want a shot at the postseason."

North had a huge Patriot League game versus Pembroke HS on Tuesday and have non-league games against Marblehead HS and Medford HS on the docket for the end of the week. The Red Raiders will be in much better shape for a postseason berth if they can come away from these three games with at least two wins.

"We are going to need win these non-league games," said Bregoli. "The Patriot League is tough and picking up these points will go a long way to determining if we make the tournament."

Jayvee Results

The NQHS jayvee team finished a successful week with a 5-0 victory over Middleboro. Bridget O'Brien, Jen Mahoney, Alex Saar, Bethany Mullaney, and Bethany Routier scored the goals and Christine Kelleher eamed the shutout in net.

In a 3-1 win over Quincy HS, Delia Devane had two goals and Danielle Mullaney scored the other; Kayla Sugrue finished with three assists.

QYF League Results

As always the Storm benefited greatly from its wonderful cheerleading squad and the largest contingent of parents and guardians in the league!

Fred Barsamian recovered a fumble on his own 45-yard line on the Apaches game opening kickoff. The Storm then ran the ball seven straight times, picking up one first down, but were stopped on fourth down at the Apaches 36-yard line. After a holding penalty, Zack Dangora, Fred Barsamian and Andrew Kiley sacked the Apache quarterback for a loss of ten yards. After two incomplete passes, one of which was dropped by the receiver, the Apaches punted to the Storm and Dangora returned it 14 yards to midfield.

The Storm then ran off ten more plays, but after a holding penalty at the 12-yard line the Storm was stopped on downs at the Apaches 18-yard line. The Apaches scrambled down the field with the running of quarterback Pat Frasso, but were stopped at the Storm 20-yard line as time ran out in the half.

Andrew Kiley took the second half kickoff back seven yards to the Storm 35. Running four plays on the ground for nine yards, the Storm turned the ball over to the Apaches on their own 45 yard-line. After a four-and-out series by the Apaches, the Storm ran off eight plays, assisted by a facemask penalty against the opposition, but again turned it over on downs on the Apaches 39-yard line. The visiting team then went the distance for a touchdown, assisted by a 15-yard penalty for a late hit, scoring on a perfect 13-yard pass from Frasso to Jake Bergonzi.

The Storm fumbled the ensuing kickoff and with the help of a facemask penalty against the Storm, the Apaches completed a 43-yard march with a one-yard TD plunge by Steve Scolaro.

The Storm's offensive line of center Nick Manning, guards Dominic DiPalmo and Declan Mayo, and tackles Fred Barsamian and Sam Grossfeld continued to make holes for the Storm running backs.

Connor Cramond and Joe Dwyer blocked well at the end positions.

Solomon Umoren was again the Storm's outstanding player on offense, running the ball 15 times for 76 yards. Kiley ran five times for 12 yards, including a 4-yard quarterback sneak to pick up a key first down on his team's longest drive. Dangora ran four times for only two yards, and quarterback Joe Gaglione run once for a yard and was sacked twice for a total of seven yards.

The defense held the Apaches ground game in check for the entire game except when Frasso scrambled. End Kiley and Jeremy Downey, nose tackle DiPalmo, and tackles Barsamian (recovered two fumbles) and Dangora (four tackles) rushed the passer continually. Linebacker Cramond had an outstanding game making several key tackles, and safeties Evan Aimola, Will Bronske and Gaglione played will on pass defense. Cramond led the team with five tackles. Kevin Mock filled in for Umoren when he missed a couple of plays with a minor injury, and Mac Deegan and Joel Lawless helped out on special teams.

Despite the loss, the franchise holder and coaches expressed a great deal of pride in the boys' effort against an undefeated team that had previously prevailed 20-0 over the Storm. It is clear that the Storm is improving and hopes to run the table and finish with a record of 4-3.

Elks - 32
Manets - 0

Scott Polauck threw two touchdown passes to Bobby Salvucci and Dayvon Jones returned a 70-yard punt for a TD.

Sasha Cunningham also had a 45-yard TD run and sixth grader Angelo DePaulo returned a 50-yard interception for a score.

John Crump had an interception and seventh grader Joey Weinstein played great on defense.

Red Raiders Grab Early Advantage in PL

North Quincy Holds Off Quincy In Five Games

By SEAN BRENNAN

Round One went to the North Quincy Red Raiders.

North Quincy (8-0, 7-0 in Patriot League) capped off an undefeated month of September with a down-to-the-wire five-game match victory over Quincy (8-1, 6-1) last Friday evening in the NQHS gymnasium, and in the process, took the early lead in the chase for the Patriot League Division title.

The match was close from the start. The Raiders, behind the play of junior middle hitter Olivia Umoren (four blocks, ten kills), recovered from an early 9-0 hole in Game One to storm back to win 25-20. The second game also went the Red Raiders way as the team put the Presidents in a 2-0 hole with 25-22 decision, but Quincy would not relent, storming back to capture Game Three (25-17) and Game Four (25-9).

North Quincy regrouped in the decisive Game Five as Umoren and fellow juniors Lizzie Kelley (ten digs) and Elizabeth Sullivan (defensive star) carried the Red Raiders to a 15-12 win and a final 3-2-match victory over QHS.

"We initially started off Game One slow, falling behind 9-0 to Quincy," said NQHS veteran head coach Kerry Ginty. "When Quincy took that early lead I was pulling my hair out, but we turned it around and went on a 12-4 run. We finally showed up and started playing.

"Those first two games were a real battle. Quincy, defensively, frustrated us in the next two games, and in Game Four we just didn't show up. We returned to our game in the fifth game and came away with the big match win."

For North Quincy, this match against city rival Quincy was an important benchmark in the early part of the 2010 season (the team has 14 games left on its regular season schedule). The Red Raiders are young, with just one senior (Kamilah Gonzales) on the varsity roster, and Ginty's collection of underclassmen are gaining valuable experience as the team aims for a long and prosperous run into the state tournament in early November.

"Whenever you play Quincy it is going to be intense," said Ginty, "so we do our best to bring energy to every practice and match to try and prepare. This is a young team. Last year, and I don't want to say it was a rebuilding year, but we needed time to gain experience and figure out what type of team we were going to have moving forward.

"We try and play the best teams we can with the goal of making a deep run into the tournament."

The junior class will be leaned on to carry the Red Raiders this fall. On top of Umoren, Kelley and Sullivan, Ginty can look to juniors Rachel Chu (setter, 28 assists versus QHS), Emma Ainsley (outside hitter, four digs, five kills versus QHS), Michelle Cole (outside hitter, four digs, five kills versus QHS), Meghan Leahy (defense), Kara Reardon (defense), and Elizabeth Forde (outside hitter) for needed production.

"Olivia is the sparkplug that gets our team going," Ginty stated. "She really picks the team up.

"Elizabeth Sullivan is one of the best defensive players to come through NQHS in a long time and Kelley has really stepped up her game this season. The rest of the junior class is strong as well and we are going to need all of them as the year moves forward."

Middle hitter Rose Bennett, who started last season as a freshman and finished with seven kills against QHS, and swing players Siha Han Huang, Emily Luc, and Lisa Long, highlights the sophomore class.

"Rose is as consistent as they come in the middle," said Ginty. "She is going to be a force this year and during the next two seasons."

The freshmen class is loaded with talent, which along with strong junior and sophomore cores, is bad news for opposing Patriot League programs. Middle hitter Carolyn Schwartz, Lauren Magoon, and Maya Umoren gives NQHS young talent to build onto what could be an extended period of dominance.

With an 8-0 record, the Red Raiders are on track to earn a top seed in the Central-East Division I playoffs. There is work yet to do, including a rematch with QHS on Oct. 25 and non-league matches with Boston Latin (Oct. 15, Oct. 28), Marshfield HS (Oct. 18) and Brockton HS (Nov. 1), but NQHS has the look of a serious state title contender.

"We try and play the best teams we can," Ginty added. "The Patriot League overall is competitive. We schedule the non-league matches such as Boston Latin, Marshfield and Brockton to get us ready for the tournament. This team is really focused on taking advantage of the talent we have this season."

The Red Raiders play at Hanover HS on Friday and at Whitman-Hanson HS on Oct. 12 before returning to their home court to host Randolph HS on Oct. 14 at 5:30 p.m.

A non-league match against Boston Latin Academy will be played Oct. 15 followed by away matches at Marshfield HS (Oct. 18) and at Pembroke HS (Oct. 20).

North Quincy hosts Silver Lake HS on Oct. 22 at 5:30 p.m.

Annual Event Held at Russel Park Courts

Recreation Department Holds 40th Tennis Tourney

The school may be new but the tradition continues.

For the 40th year the finest tennis players in Quincy came together at the Russell Park Tennis Courts on the grounds of the new Quincy High School to battle for the title of city champion.

The much-anticipated annual event, sponsored by the City of Quincy's Recreation Department and the Quincy Credit Union, had eleven divisions of competition that brought together the young and old, newcomers and past participants, along with tennis families to determine the best resident tennis players.

New city champions were the rule at this year's tournament as nine events had different champions from last year; the only repeat champions were Sara Sullivan (Girl's 16 & Under Singles Division) and Kevin Paterno (Boy's 16 & Under Singles Division).

In the Men's Singles event, Jirawat Anektanasap became a five-time champion and was awarded the Lionel "Shine" Buckley Bowl when he defeated Matthew Donatelle in the finals, 6-1, 6-2. Donatelle earned his spot in the championship by defeating tournament newcomer Nathan Tarpey (6-1, 6-1). Anektanasap defeated Ananth Sundaran, a Men's Doubles finalist, 6-0, 6-1, to make the final.

Newcomer Tiffany Leung won the Women's Singles title by defeating four-time champion Phoebe Chan (7-5, 6-1) in the final. Leung knocked off Taynya Tonnu, 6-0, 6-2, in an earlier match establishing herself as a player to watch for in future tournaments.

Due to an illness, the five-time consecutive Women's Doubles team champions of Aileen Eleey and Jacquelyn Eleey had to withdraw from the event; this withdrawal of the mother-daughter pair left the field wide open and left space for a new pair of names to be engraved on the permanent silver bowl. In the finals, Helen Mao and Ann Foresman won the Women's Doubles title by defeating Emily Sato and Amanda Wong, 6-1, 6-1. Mao and Foresman had beaten sisters Sara and Elizabeth Sullivan (6-4, 3-6, 6-4) in the semifinals.

First-time participant Earl Rudkin captured the Men's 50 & Over Singles title by defeating Mark Donaghue (6-0, 6-1). Rudkin beat tournament veteran Ken Tarabelli, 6-1, 6-0, in the semifinals and Donaghue defeated veteran Bill Eaton, 6-0, 6-0, in his semifinal match. Recreation Director Barry Welch presented Rudkin with the Richard Meade Bowl.

In the 35 & Over Singles bracket, a new women and men's champion were crowned. Newcomer Ann Foresman was crowned Women's 35 & Over Singles champion after defeating three-time champion Helen Mao, 6-4, 6-4, in one of the tournaments best matches. Following a three hour and fifteen minute three-set final, Leonard Hourihane defeated Dihua Li (7-5, 2-6, 7-6) to win the Men's 35 & Over Singles crown; tournament co-director Michelle Hanly presented Hourihane with the championship bowl.

In Men's Doubles, Abhijit Dhotre and Gopel Tatavarthi captured their first championship and the coveted Henry McAuliffe Bowl by knocking off Ananth Sundaran and Sundar Kambamgudi by a score of 6-2, 6-2. Tournament Director John Franceschini noted that this was a great year for Men's Doubles with over 20 teams competing for the sought-after McAuliffe Silver Bowl.

Ron Abell and Aileen Eleey won the William F. Ryan Bowl for Mixed Doubles by defeating Richard Griffin and Tracy Maloney, 6-0, 6-1, in the final. This is the second Mixed Doubles title for this pair who secured the spot in the finals by defeating Earl Rudkin and Helen Mao (6-0, 6-1); Griffin and Maloney defeated Job and Phoebe Chan, 6-0, 6-2, in the other semifinals.

The 16 & Under Singles events were popular again this year with over 20 participants. Kevin Paterno won his second Boy's 16 & Under Singles title by defeating Justin McGaffigan (7-5, 6-4); Sara Sullivan won her third Girl's 16 & Under Singles crown by beating two-time champion Elizabeth Sullivan, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Franceschini and Hanly both agreed that these youngsters are a credit to their parents and tennis coaches alike and all of them were a joy to work with this year. The future is bright for tennis the City of Quincy.

Paterno also defeated Saradhi Valluru, 6-1, 6-2, to win his first Men's "B" Singles title and his second of the tournament; Paterno won a great match on his way to the final by defeating Elliot Columb, 6-3, 6-2, in the semifinals.

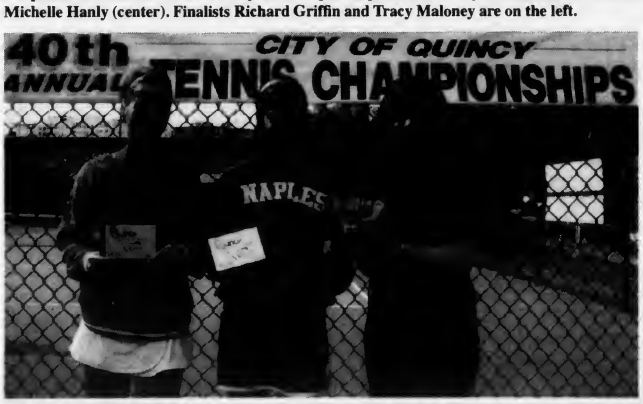
Barry Welch, Director of Recreation, had high praise for the continued commitment by the Quincy Credit Union, saying, "In difficult times, traditional family events like this tournament provide stability to our community, values, and traditions. This is the 15th year the Credit Union has provided the funds necessary to continue this activity. The participants and the community are grateful for their generosity and their friendship."

Welch continued:

"I would also like to acknowledge the continued outstanding work of John Franceschini who has for over 25 years been the guiding force who as director makes the tournament draw to ensure the championship quality of the tournament.

"Continuing to be the glue that holds the event together is Michelle Hanly, a sixteen-year veteran who coordinated and supervised some 135 matches over ten days; the Department is lucky to have such wonderful staff."

Maura Gillmartin of the QCU along with Welch, Hanly, and Franceschini presented each finalist and champion with a plaque for his or her achievement; each champion was also presented with the permanent bowl, which has the name of each champion engraved and which is kept on year-round display in the main office of the Quincy Recreation Department.



Additional photos will be published in next week's Quincy Sun.

A Job Well Done

On Friday, Sept. 24th, at approximately 11:24 P.M., Officer Mark Smith was dispatched to the area of 227 Sea Street to investigate a motor vehicle accident. Upon arrival, the Officer found a car up on the sidewalk, with four people standing off to the side of the vehicle. There were no injuries.

LT. DAN MINTON

The driver stated that he was traveling out of Germantown onto Sea Street when another vehicle cut him off, causing him to lose control of his vehicle. Officer Smith advised the driver to stand over with his friends until the tow truck arrived on scene to remove the heavily damaged car.

The Officer then began to conduct a motor vehicle inventory search of the vehicle, which is standard procedure of the Quincy Police Department. The purpose is to document all possessions inside the vehicle prior to the tow to eliminate claims that items were missing. As the Officer began to search the car, the driver approached the car and stated, "I do not give you consent to search my vehicle."

The driver was advised that no consent was needed on an inventory search. The driver then walked closer to the Officer and adamantly said, "You are not searching my car." Officer Smith advised the driver several times to back away but he did not comply. The driver said that he knew the law, knew it was an illegal search and he was going to get a lawyer to sue.

Based upon the driver's aggressive behavior and attempts to stop the Officer from entering the car, the situation escalated. Officer Smith was concerned that there could be a weapon inside the car.

Officer E.J. Hartnett arrived on scene and assisted Officer Smith in handcuffing the suspect for their safety. A search of the car revealed a can of malt liquor under the driver's side seat. Since the driver was 20 years old, he was informed that he was under arrest for "Minor in Possession of Alcoholic Beverage." The car was towed away.

Nice Work!

A JOB WELL DONE: On Friday, Sept. 24th, at approximately 8:24 P.M., Officers William Lanergan and Matt Tobin were dispatched to the area of 100 Granite Street for a report of a male passenger assaulting a female as she drove. Units were further updated that the caller/witness was following the male suspect, who just got out of a motor vehicle in front of Boston Market on Granite Street.

Officer Lanergan met with the caller, who pointed out the suspect. He said that he saw the male suspect punch the female driver as she was getting out of the car. The suspect was now walking over to the area of Star Market. The caller said that the suspect appeared to be out of control and even threatened him to mind his own business. Officer Lanergan recognized the suspect from three previous incidents earlier in the evening (a reported motor vehicle accident, a reported stabbing, and a report of an out on control party at the QMC).

In each of the earlier incidents, the suspect was extremely hostile towards the Police. The Officers approached the suspect and placed him in handcuffs for safety purposes. When told he was not under arrest at that time, the suspect stated, "Just arrest me now dude." When asked why he should be arrested, the suspect said, "Cuz of the s@#$ with my mom."

Dispatcher Mike Bowes informed the Officers that the mother was in the police station lobby reporting that her son had assaulted her and also had smashed the windshield of her motor vehicle. Officer E.J. Hartnett arrived on scene to assist. Officer Lanergan opened the cruiser door to question the suspect and was greeted by the suspect's violent and hostile screaming that "f%#$%^& Quincy cops are f%#$%^& a%#$%^&s and I'm going to get all of you." The suspect then swung his legs out of the cruiser and refused to get back in.

The Officer ordered the suspect to get back in the cruiser but he did not comply, so after giving the suspect nu-

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Whether you want to be assured that your funeral will follow your believes and wishes, or you want to relieve your family of the financial burden your funeral could bring, pre-planning makes sense.

We, at the Deware Funeral Home, realize that so many aspects of the relationship between a funeral director and those he is serving is of a highly confidential nature and that is why we value most, both personally and professionally. The trust so many families in our community have reposed in us over the years.

If you wish to discuss pre-planning or pre-financing, we are available at any time to help you. This, of course, is without cost or obligation... As your friend and your neighbor, we consider this a privilege...

Harry Potter Celebration At Quincy Community United Methodist Church

Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston, will host a community-wide Halloween celebration based on the popular Harry Potter series Saturday, Oct. 30.

Doors will open at 1 p.m. Guests will be invited in to Hogwarts, the Quincy Campus.

At the afternoon event, children and adults participate in a Sorting Ceremony, attend "classes" such as Potions, Divination and Care of Magical Creatures, and try out Quiddtich.

In addition to some old favorites such as the Sorting Ceremony and Great Feast, several brand new activities are planned for this year: the Dragon Challenge and the Search for Horcruxes."

"The Harry Potter celebration held here may be low tech, but it's very high on imagination and wonder," said Rev. Dr. Susan Jarek-Glidden. "It's also very much a 'hands-on' day – every child gets to participate in every activity.

"As a result, although the day is a lot of work and takes a lot of preparation, it truly is a magical day for everybody involved, 'students' as well as 'faculty.'"

Members and friends of Quincy Community United Methodist Church will portray many of the characters from the Harry Potter books, including Hagrid, Professors Trelawney, McGonagall, Lupin, Sprout, and Sinesta; Mad Eye Moody, Madame Hooch, and Madame Pomfrey. Madame Maxime from Beaux Batons is also a guest, as is Beatrix Black. Tonks, Cho Chang and Luna Lovegood usually attend, and one year Rita Skeeter stopped by, Rev. Jarek-Glidden noted.

The day concludes at 3:30 p.m. with a Great Feast.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your moodier side might emerge this week. But the dark period should pass in time for the party-loving Lamb to go on a happy gambol with some very special people this weekend.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Yet again, you show your skill at being able to indulge in your love of the arts this week while still taking care of practical matters, including some still-unfinished business matters.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A potential change might appear to be what you've been looking for. In any event, consider both the negative as well as the positive possibilities before making any sort of decision.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Relationships continue to dominate your aspect this week on a mostly positive level, with just a few problem areas you can smooth over. Also, try to be flexible about travel plans.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You love being on center stage, and while you absolutely purr at the sound of all that praise, be careful not to take on too many commitments at the expense of time spent with loved ones.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You might feel that you need to get involved in a matter concerning a friend or relative. But while the issues appear to be cut and dried, they might not be. Get more facts before you act.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A suggestion about a policy change could create heated reactions. Keep your mind open and resist joining in with naysayers unless they can show a real basis for their position.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) While potential career changes warrant your interest, don't ignore current job responsibilities. A personal relationship can also benefit from more of your attention.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Don't guess at what the facts might be if you hope to make the best decision possible. The wise course is to ask direct questions and act on the answers you get.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your efforts involving that pesky problem should soon show positive signs of being resolved. This would allow you to shift some of your focus in another direction.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) While you enjoy well-deserved praise for getting a difficult job done, there's no time to relax. A new challenge looms. Expect more support from a once-strong critic.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might still have explaining to do about your decision, but support grows as you continue to make your case. You also might want to start making plans for the upcoming holidays.

BORN THIS WEEK: You insist on making decisions based on facts, not on popular opinions. Have you considered a career in science?

merous warnings that mace would be used, the suspect was sprayed. The spray had the desired effect and the suspect, a 16 year old Weymouth resident, was transported to the station in the wagon, where he was charged with "Domestic Assault and Battery, Malicious Destruction to a Motor Vehicle and Intimidation of a Witness." Officer Lanergan met with the mother/victim of the suspect, who was visibly upset and crying. She said that her son was discharged from the hospital for a puncture wound and she was taking him home. She said he started screaming at her because he was afraid that she was taking him to the police station.

She stated that her son became enraged and punched the windshield, shattering it. He then grabbed her shoulders and shook her violently, calling her degrading names.

She said that she was "scared to death" and picked up her cell phone to call the police. The suspect grabbed the phone, broke it in half and said, "Who do you think you're going to call - the police? No you're not." He then exited the vehicle and had a confrontation with the caller. She then drove to the police station to report the incident.

Due to the age of the suspect, the Department of Children and Families was notified about the incident. The victim refused the offer of an emergency protection order, but stated that she did not want her son to get out of jail because he needed help and has been out of control with his drinking and his overall behavior.

Nice Work!

Goals: Secure Economic Future, Create A 'Sense of Place,' Preserve Quincy's Rich History

provements: $227 million city bond and $50 million in state and federal aid.

Thousands of new Construction and Permanent Jobs:

• Construction Period: 4,117 jobs in the City of Quincy

• When Complete: 5,751 permanent and full-time jobs in the City of Quincy

Increase Quincy's commercial and residential tax base:

• Projected increase in annual property taxes surrounding the project area totaling almost $2.2 million

• Projected other new taxes to the City of Quincy totaling over $1.3 million per year

• Property taxes that will be generated by New Quincy Center – beyond those needed to repay the bonds – totaling $3.6 million annually

• Unprecedented opportunity to renew and replace aging infrastructure in a comprehensive manner. Today this infrastructure is impacting the future growth of the City. As part of this revitalization effort, Quincy Center's old infrastructure will be replaced with state-of-the art improvements.

• Miles of utilities (electric, gas, sewer, storm water, telephone)

• New Cliveden Extension Bridge

• Eight new garages totaling 3,500 new parking spaces, including a fully renovated Stop & Shop garage

• Town Brook culvert restoration providing environmental protections, flood control and a restored smelt habitat.

New 'Master Planned' Open Space:

• Redesigned, pedestrian-focused road network connecting to public gathering spaces

• Hancock Common revitalized into a great public space to draw visitor traffic to downtown and serve as a connector between the 'T', the Church of the Presidents, City Hall and the newly revitalized district

• New Quincy Square in the heart of downtown Quincy Center

• A new Market Square designed to accommodate outdoor events such as the Farmers Market and outdoor festivals

Financial Impact Beyond Project Boundaries

• Catalyze development throughout City of Quincy

• Protect property values

• Attract new business and industries to Quincy (e.g. biotech)

Quincy, a 'Green' neighborhood

• A new neighborhood built to LEED standards with state-of-the-art 'green' technologies and construction

• High-efficiency street lighting throughout the project area.

• 'Green' roofs on buildings and parking

• An estimated 500 mature street trees

• Relocated and restored Town Brook culvert, providing for increased daylighting and improved environment for species protection

• Increased permeable area, due to green roofs and new green spaces, reducing the impact on local storm drainage systems

• Garages with electrical charging, smart cars and bicycles

The Partnership Agreement:

• A fiscally sound 'Partnership Agreement' with Street-Works, the designated developer of the new Quincy Center, has been delivered to the City Council for a vote.

• The City has been working with its own consultants and negotiating with the designated developer for more than two years, and what has emerged is a significant partnership agreement which will bring unprecedented benefits to the City of Quincy.

• This agreement has been negotiated and vetted by the City's attorneys and financial advisors to ensure the City's interests are protected while fully supporting the bold redevelopment of Quincy Center.

• Under this agreement, the private developer takes on the majority of the risk for both the public improvements and the private development starting on day one. This is the opposite of old-style urban redevelopment in which cities took on the upfront risk to attract developers.

• The highlight of this partnership is Street-Works' agreement to finance and construct all of the Public Improvements upfront without using City revenues.

• Only upon completion of the private development, when private buildings are occupied and taxes and parking revenues are flowing, will the City purchase these improvements. The cost of these infrastructure improvements will be paid for with new revenues generated by the development, not through any existing or increased property taxes on Quincy homeowners.

• The private to public funding ratio will be 4 to 1, a favorable split for the City of Quincy.

• It is the strength of Quincy's key location within the greater Boston marketplace; its easy access to highways and mass transit; the City's compelling history; and its appeal as a residential community that allows the new Quincy Center to move forward NOW, unlike other projects in the Commonwealth and the region.

The Financial Package:

• Street-Works will be responsible upfront for financing and constructing all of the Public Improvements (along with the private development) for the new Quincy Center. This includes city streets and sidewalks, landscaping, all underground utilities, parking garages, public/green spaces.

• These improvements are valued at a total cost of approximately $277 million. If there are any cost overruns, the developer will absorb any additional expenses.

• The City and Street-Works are actively pursuing $50 million in critical Federal and State funds to help fund the cost of these Public Improvements.

• Once the infrastructure improvements and the private development are complete and occupied, the City will purchase the Public Improvements from the developer through the issuance of bonds.

• The City will not use any existing revenues to support this redevelopment. The City's role is simply to purchase the improvements – most of which are required with or without new development – once the new revenues are in place to pay for them.

• The City will use only NEW revenues generated by the private development in the form of new property taxes and assessments, and new parking revenues, to repay the bonds. All Public Improvements are paid for by these new taxes, assessments and parking revenues generated from the New Quincy Center, not from increased taxes on existing Quincy residents

• The project will also contribute new taxes to the City's general fund beyond those required to pay for the infrastructure improvements.

• If the developer is not able to complete or lease the private development, the City is under no obligation to pay for the Public Improvements.

NORTH QUINCY HIGH School sophomore Ryan Mock, seniors Siobhan Greene and Chelsy Jusseaume, and program coordinator Carolyn Comperchio meet to discuss future Impact Quincy projects. The group, which was established in 1989, addresses substance abuse prevention and education programs, as well as community problems that are related to alcohol, tobacco and other drugs. Quincy Sun Photo/Joe Reardon

Peer Advisors Hope To Impact Substance Abuse Problems

By JOE REARDON

The seven Peer Advisors from the city's two high schools asked questions and gathered video of individuals disembarking from the trains at the Quincy Center Station.

An ambitious assignment, the students were met with mixed reactions by many of the characters you're likely to find coming off the train into Quincy Center on any given day.

The students were persistent enough where they were getting a good deal of interesting insight.

"At first, we did get a general sense that they were standoffish, but when they realized what it was for, they began to open up," said North Quincy High sophomore Ryan Mock.

The students asked questions surrounding teenage drinking and whether or not they'd consider providing alcohol for underage kids. The feedback was both alarming and enlightening.

The students are involved in Impact Quincy; a substance abuse prevention and education program established in 1989 that addresses community problems related to alcohol, tobacco, and other drugs.

One man, in the 21-26 age group that was isolated as being the most likely to purchase alcohol for underage individuals, told the Peer Advisors a story of how he had lost a brother who descended into an alcohol abuse hell. On the flip side, a man said he asks the kids if they ever served their country in the military. If they had, he'd buy them the alcohol, reasoning that if they're old enough to carry a weapon and defend their country, then they should be able to drink a beer.

Armed with the information the Peer Advisors have put together a "Walk With Rebellion: Don't Buy Alcohol For Minors" campaign to reach the 21-26 crowd. The advertising was prevalent around the city, featured on two billboards, posters on trains and in the subway stations, as well as on buses. The posters are still on the MBTA buses.

The name of the campaign was decided upon because young people over the Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday that the legal and financial team hired by the City to write a $1.3 billion Quincy Center development agreement is "quite literally the best in the business and very much looking forward to answering every and any question" when the City Council begins its deliberations on the deal next week.

"We put together an unmatched collection of legal and financial talent to represent our taxpayers at the negotiating table, and the result was a remarkably

Raymondi Challenging Ban On Center Review

By LAURA GRIFFIN

DANIEL RAYMONDI

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi said Monday that he will challenge the city solicitor's decision banning him from all discussions and reviews of the Quincy Center Revitalization Project.

And City Solicitor Jim Timmins agreed, suggesting that Raymondi go for another review.

"I'm going to do whatever I can," Raymondi said, adding he has already talked to an attorney at the state's Ethics Commission "asking them to reconsider."

NOW YOU DON'T – Demolition of the 70-year-building began two days later and by Thursday morning, Oct. 7, this is all that was left. Businesses Optimistic, Wary Of Downtown Revitalization Plan

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Monday may have been a holiday for the rest of the state, but in the heart of the city, furniture stores, jewelry shops, a shoe store, coffee shops, and comic book store, were open. People were working.

In the Hancock Street business district from City Hall to Elm and School Streets, some owners and staff rung up a few extra sales from customers enjoying the day off and free parking.

And they mulled their role in Quincy Center's future.

For nearly all, the Street-Works redevelopment plan sounds like a real revival, possibly better than the glorified past of Quincy Center. For most, it's a wonderful opportunity for the city.

But it's the here and now and the in-between that has some running scared as they raised questions about their place in the new Quincy Center. As for the demolition projects, these merchants see a lost customer with each swing of a wrecking ball.

Most said they'd welcome a timetable for the plan, parking and traffic proposals for the revitalization project.

"I'm very excited about the plan," said Mark Bertman who has owned and operated Rogers Jewelry on Hancock Street for the past 50 years.

Bertman is delighted with any plan "that brings people walking downtown."

However, Bertman does have concerns. "It depends on what pace they go forward, the blockages of things during construction. It depends on how they handle it."

For one thing, Bertman is appalled at the demolition planned for the neighboring Bradford Building on Chestnut Street.

"It's going to be a park," said Bertman, already missing hairdressers' clients "walking by here and looking in the windows."

Overall, it's a great project, according to Bertman who visited West Hartford, CT, where Street-Works previously overhauled that city's business district. Bertman was pleased.

"In West Hartford, they did it very quickly," said Bertman who hopes his 50-year-old business will reap the benefits of the new Quincy Center. "I hope we'll be here."

Like Bertman, Jennifer Ormon, co-owner of Coffee Break Cafe, wants to stay right where she is on Parkingway where she's grown a good business over the past dozen years and she's optimistic about the project as does Pamela Tand, President of Stambry's Crescent Moon Soap Co., Inc.

"I feel very good about it, very good for the downtown, will create new economy and employment." said Tand,

"It's been a wonderful 12 years," said Ormon whose location will likely be the first phase of the redevelopment. She and her husband, Don Ormond, also own shops in Wollaston, Braintree and North Quincy.

"I'm hoping we'll be here for another three years," said Ormon. "Right now, we're not going anywhere. I'm just keeping my fingers crossed. I'm so sad that it's going to be torn down."

Like Bertman, Ormon has followed the project through the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and is familiar with and supportive of the plans.

For Claude Chue at Far Eastern Fine Furniture, the project is confusing despite his efforts to review it on the city website.

"We are not clear on it," said Chue whose bright large showroom features upscale teakwood and rosewood furniture as well as moderate and low-priced items.

"Potentially, it will help out the center, bring more people," said Chue, adding that it "depends on how it's staged."

So far the city's doing a good job of that, according to Ormon who said she expected to suffer noise, dirt and road closures during the demolition of Quincy Fair Mall.

"I have to say the city is doing an excellent job, taking down the movie building. So far so good," said Ormon who described few effects so far.

For many of these merchants, the recession has already hit hard and it's going to be a long time before they

MAYOR TOM KOCH, who presented details of the $1.3 billion plan to revitalize Quincy Center to the City Council Oct. 4, says one of the most important priorities moving ahead is to "keep Quincy Center open for business while construction is on-going. There is absolutely no chance that Quincy Center will be a ghost town while we do the work," the mayor said this week.

Koch: 'Keeping Quincy Center Open For Business' A Priority During Revitalization

Mayor Tom Koch says he firmly supports merchants and businesspersons currrently in Quincy Center and has pledged every effort to reduce any problems that may develop during downtown revitalization.

"One of the most important priorities as we move forward will be to keep Quincy Center open for business while construction is ongoing – there is absolutely no chance that Quincy Center will be a ghost town while we do the work," Koch said. "That means there will be concrete construction management plans dealing with timetables, parking, and accessibility throughout the area for the duration of the project. This is an absolutely vital component of the project, and there will be many meetings on this subject as we go forward.

"As for the future of existing businesses downtown, I wish to be abundantly clear that under no circumstances are any eminent domain land-takings being considered for any parcel included in the private development. Property control is one of the components of the project in which Street-Works bears all the risk: if a property owner does not want to be part of the project, they cannot be forced to participate."

"As for current business owners, both Street-Works and our office have said repeatedly said that we want many of the existing businesses downtown to be involved in this project, and we will do everything possible to make that happen. How that shakes out with individual leases and specific locations is something that will be driven in large part by the market – as it is today in any landlord-tenant relationship.

"Will rents be higher? Yes, as one would expect with new buildings and new infrastructure. Will that mean a somewhat different mix of businesses? Yes. Does it mean that there isn't a place for a number of our current businesses in this thriving new downtown? Absolutely not," Koch added.

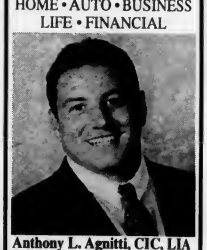
A PAIR OF STUDS



Diamond studs are one of the most elegant and versatile elements in any jewelry collection. Simple and stylish, diamond stud earrings can be worn with anything from a pair of jeans to a wedding gown. They also bring their fire and brilliance to eye level, where they are bound to be noticed and appreciated; just how noticed and appreciated is up to the wearer. Of course, the studs that get noticed most are well-cut, large diamonds. While a round brilliant cut is considered the traditional standard, princess-cut diamond stud earrings have become increasingly popular in recent years. Beyond that, the usual considerations surrounding diamond all apply. Along with cut and carat weight, diamond color and clarity must carefully be considered.

From diamond studs to simple gold hoops, both men and women love our custom designs. No matter what the occasion, no matter what the style, the gift of jewelry is always a welcome one. Whether for yourself or a special someone, we have lots of beautiful ideas. We invite you to browse at your leisure or turn to one of our knowledgeable staff members for help with your choices. State School Building Authority Director Expected At Meeting Wednesday

Bragg Seeks Committee Approval Of St. Ann's Site For New Middle School

By LAURA GRIFFIN

School Committee member Jo-Ann Bragg said Tuesday she would ask the committee at their meeting Wednesday to designate the St. Ann's School property as the site for a new Central Middle School.

According to Bragg, the St. Ann's School property is safer, a little closer to the current middle school. and further away from Route 3A, in contrast to the previous choice on Hancock Street. The previous site would have dislocated a motel, business building and car wash.

"I will be putting forward the motion to accept," said Bragg, adding she hopes the committee will approve the site this week.

Bragg's action follows a request last week by Mayor Thomas Koch who sought School Committee approval of the St. Ann's School location. City Solicitor James Timmins submitted the proposal for the city to the School Committee.

At that meeting, Timmins dealt with numerous questions regarding the details and the cost of the St. Ann's School property.

Timmins declined to provide the figures at the public meeting, stating the city was currently negotiating with the church authorities for the property.

JO-ANN BRAGG

"We're negotiating with the parties," Timmins said this week, adding the School Committee could not discuss the issue in Executive Session because city officials, not the School Committee, were the negotiating team.

Since that meeting, Timmins has met with School Committee members individually.

School Committee member Anne Mahoney said she raised the issue of cost last week because she believes that is the duty of the School Committee which is currently dealing with major cuts in the school budget. "We weren't provided any information on the site," Mahoney said, noting the committee needed more information before voting.

"We know Central is in bad shape," said Mahoney who said she supports the St. Ann's School site, but has other questions such as the impact of Presidents Inn on the area.

"This potentially could be a better site," said Mahoney.

Mahoney also said that Katherine Craven, Executive Director of the state's School Building authority, will be at the committee meeting this week, possibly seeking an update on the plans.

The school building authority approved funding for a new middle school two years ago, according to Mahoney.

"We're negotiating with the parties," Timmins said, noting city officials and church officials are discussing the sale of the St. Ann's School property.

However, no one at St. Ann's Church nor the Archdiocese would confirm those talks.

Rev. John Ronaghan, pastor of St. Ann's Church, issued a statement through his spokesperson that there are no new developments regarding the property.

A NEW SCHOOL may replace the former St. Ann's School, Wollaston as the city is considering building a new Central Middle School on the property. City Solicitor James Timmins said city and church officials are currently in negotiations for the nearly two-acre site officially assessed at almost $7 million. School Committee member Jo-Ann Bragg was scheduled to ask the school committee to approve the site at its meeting Wednesday. Quincy Sun Photo/Laura Griffin

History In The 2nd Norfolk District

History will be made when voters in the 2nd Norfolk District elect a new state representative Tuesday, Nov. 2.

That's because all three candidates – Democrat Tackey Chan, Republican John Iredale and Independent Karl Roos – represent a political distinction if they are successful at the ballot box.

Chan, a resident of 66 Meadowbrook Rd., Wollaston, would be the first Asian-American elected in Quincy. He would also be the first Asian-American elected a state representative in Massachusetts.

Roos, who lives at 8 Park St., Wollaston, could become the first Independent elected in the city. (There are also Quincy Independents running for governor, Congress and state senator.)

And Iredale, a resident of 200 Rock Island Rd., Houghs Neck, would be the first Quincy Republican to win an open state legislative seat in 44 years.

All three are trying to fill the seat vacated by Stephen Tobin who ran unsuccessfully for State Senate. Tobin, who has represented the 2nd Norfolk District since 1988, lost in the Democratic primary in the Norfolk-Plymouth Senate race to Quincy city councillor John Keenan.

While voters will have many reasons to head to the polls on Election Day – hotly contested races for governor and Congress to name two – Quincy also boasts some competitive legislative races. Political observers think the contest in the 2nd Norfolk District could be the closest.

We asked each of the three state representative candidates in the 2nd Norfolk District their feelings on the potential history they could make, as well as their thoughts about running as a Democrat, Republican and Independent this election season.

Here's what they had to say:

Democrat Tackey Chan:

"It's a great honor to be the Democratic nominee for state representative. Although the historical significance of potentially becoming the first Asian-American elected to the House is not lost on me, that's only part of who I am. I am also a Quincy native who has worked tirelessly for my community, who just happens to be Asian.

CHAN

"I am also proud to be a Democrat from Quincy. I was born here and have lived through the city's many changes. Both my parents worked and raised two children.

"When I was 15, I lost my father to cancer and we had to learn how to go on with less in our lives. I worked to support the household and I continue to support my mother to this day. It is these values of hard work and helping others that is at the core of what it means to be a Democrat, and those are the values I want to bring to the State House."

Republican John Iredale:

"It is very exciting to think that I may actually be the first Republican to win an election in the 2nd Norfolk District in a very long time. However, if elected I will clearly represent the interests of all citizens, regardless of their party affiliation.

IREDALE

"I believe that recent election results and the growing number of unenrolled voters, supports the belief that voters make choices not because of party labels but because of the person. The feedback I get going door-to-door is that voters are looking for something different. The voters are looking for a candidate that has been on the outside of Beacon Hill and has earned their own way.

"The voters are looking for a candidate that not only has worked in the private sector but has met a payroll, created jobs and managed multi-million dollar budgets. The voters are looking for a candidate that will lower their taxes, promote less government regulation and support what matters most: education and public safety.

"My professional work experience and my message are consistent with what the voters are looking for in this election. My work experience and community service also demonstrates that I listen to people, bring people together and solve problems."

Independent Karl Roos:

"I would feel privileged to represent the people of Quincy as an Independent. The time is right. The people of Quincy are very independently minded. That is why my candidacy has gone so well. I am not afraid to talk about the issues, express an opinion. They know me as someone who has been deeply involved in the community for years.

ROOS

"As an Independent, I would have the freedom to put the people first, I would not have to be beholding to party leaders, I would not be bought and paid for by special interest or lobbyist. That is what the people want from their representative.

"People are worried about the future. They are worried about their jobs - keeping their jobs or finding a job, about being able to pay their bills, pay their taxes. They understand that there are tough decisions to be made and they want someone who will do it fairly. People are fed up with party politics and the blame game. They want someone one who is going to tackle the tough issues. Work in their best interest; put their concerns first not party politics or special interest or lobbyist."

A Little History

Quincy Democrats have held a stronghold on the city's state legislative seats for decades.

The last Quincy Republican to be elected a state representative was Walter J. Hannon, Jr. who won an open seat in the 1st Norfolk District in 1966. Back then, that one district was represented by three individuals (the House had 240 members until it was scaled back to 160 members in 1978.)

In the 1966 election, incumbents Joseph Brett, a Democrat, and Amelio Della Chiesa, a Republican, were re-elected in the 1st Norfolk District. George Burke, another Democrat, had held the district's third seat but vacated the post to run for Norfolk County district attorney. Hannon was elected to Burke's vacated seat and was re-elected twice before becoming mayor in 1971.

Two other eventual mayors were on the ballot in 1966. In the race for state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District, Democrat Arthur Tobin defeated Republican Francis McCauley. In 1963 – six years earlier – Tobin lost his first bid for public office – the Ward 1 council seat. Tobin was not nominated for the seat that was eventually won by McCauley.

Another interesting piece of local trivia from that 1966 election:

Had McCauley been elected state representative, a daughter born Monday, Nov. 7, 1966 – the day before the election – would have been named Victoria. But the McCauleys were not victorious on Election Day. So Frank and his wife Sandra instead named "Baby Girl McCauley" – which reads on her birth certificate – Jennifer.

"I guess I was nameless until the results came in Tuesday night (Nov. 8)," says Jennifer McCauley Logue, who is now chairman of the city's Republican City Committee.

A few other political tidbits:

In the 2nd Norfolk District, the last Republican to serve as state representative was William Jenness in 1958. Since Jenness, only Democrats have held the seat: Charlie Shea from 1959 to 1966; Arthur Tobin (1967-1971), Tom Brownell (1972 to 1988) and Stephen Tobin (1988 to present.)

Charlie Shea is also the last Houghs Neck resident to be elected a state representative.

The 2nd Norfolk District today comprises the following precincts in Quincy: All 5 precincts in Ward 1; Ward 3 Precincts 1, 2 and 5; Ward 4 Precincts 2, 4; and Ward 5 Precincts 1, 3 and 4.

The Democrat-Republican-Independent three-way race is also how the candidates are stacked for state senate in the Norfolk-Plymouth District. Keenan is the Democratic nominee; Dan Dewey the Republican and Laura Innis is an Independent.

In the other two local legislative races, incumbent Bruce Ayers, a Democrat, is unopposed for state representative in the 1st Norfolk District. This district comprises the following precincts in Quincy: Ward 3, Precincts 3 and 4; Ward 4 Precincts 1, 3; Ward 5, Precincts 2 and 5; all 5 precincts in Ward 6; and two precincts (5, 6) in Randolph.

In the 3rd Norfolk District, incumbent Ron Mariano, a Democrat and the assistant majority leader in the House, faces a challenge from Independent Gary Lowell from Weymouth. This district represents parts of Quincy, Holbrook and Weymouth. The precincts in each town are: Ward 2, Precinct 4 and 5 in Quincy; Precincts 2, 3 and 4 in Holbrook; and Precincts 5, 6, 9, 12 and 16 in Weymouth.

Scenes From Yesterday

'A TREAT TO EAT' was the slogan of the renowned Foy's Markets that operated food stores in Quincy for over 70 years. In 1899, Robert E. Foy, Sr. opened his first grocery store on the corner of Water and Quincy Streets. That South Quincy store was subsequently relocated to the corner of Water and Franklin Streets where it remained until the 1950's. In 1913, Foy and his brother had bought a second store, the Adams Market, which was located in the Adams Building on Hancock Street in Quincy Square. They renamed that store Foy's Market and moved it across and down the street to 1259 Hancock St. as seen in this 1927 real photo postcard. The store, as shown here with its adjacent open-air market, was on the corner of the old Saville Street just a block from the railroad station. When Quincy's real estate mogul, Henry Faxon, who owned the property, decided to build the larger Munroe Building on this corner, the Foys built a new larger market at 1177 Hancock St., across from the Mason Temple. It was the first market in Quincy to provide a parking lot for its customer's automobiles. The store was in business there for over 40 years until it closed in 1970. Over the course of 70 years, three generations of Robert E. Foy's had operated the business: Sr., Jr. and III. Missing from the old postcard view above is the famous Foy's elongated delivery truck. It was the first motorized grocery delivery vehicle in Quincy. In the building on the right was the Home Bakery operated by Ellen Mattson with her two daughters and sons as helpers. They lived in South Quincy. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Silencing Raymondi Speaks Volumes Of Concern

Our citizens should be very uncomfortable and gravely concerned with the exclusion of Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and, by extension, the citizens of Ward 2, from the biggest development project in recent memory, if not our city's history.

The $1.3 billion downtown redevelopment plan has the potential of radically changing the character of our beloved city, making our city unrecognizable. That the councillor and citizens of the ward most adversely affected by this mammoth project are being excluded from any involvement is troubling. That Councillor Raymondi cannot comment or speak on the project is undemocratic if not Orwellian.

City Solicitor Mr. Timmins may be legally right, but I find his decision ominous.

Tobin Reopens Talks With 3 Union Locals

By FRANK McCAULEY

Negotiations have been opened with three locals of two city unions, Mayor Arthur Tobin stated.

Those locals are the ones, which signed contracts with tax-cap reopener clauses, which allowed the city to void the original agreements and renegotiate if tax-cap legislation made funding impossible, said Tobin.

This Week
1979
31 Years Ago

As far as talks with the other 12 city unions, Tobin said, "We are discussing with them but not offering."

The unions that signed reopener contracts were Local 880, hospital workers, and Local 1139, public works employees.

TOBIN SEEKS TRANSFER OF HALF MILLION TO PAY FOR COURT ORDERED REVALUATION

Mayor Tobin will go before the City Council, Monday, Oct. 15, with a transfer order stripping various budget accounts of a half million dollars to pay for a court ordered revaluation of all property in the city.

Supreme Court Justice Herbert Wilkens ordered the city to hire a commercial appraisal firm for a "complete and timely" revaluation not later than November 19 or it will be done for the city and the money will be deducted from state aid.

Chief Assessor John Comer conferred with potential bidders on the revaluation contract while Assistant City Solicitor Dennis Harrington said bids would be opened Oct. 30. A contract could be awarded after the Nov. 5 Council meeting.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT DOWN 652 STUDENTS

(Editor's note: School enrollment would continue to drop, bottoming out at approximately 7,800 students at the end of the 1980s.)

Dancers Have WICKED Good Time With Cast Members From Broadway's WICKED!

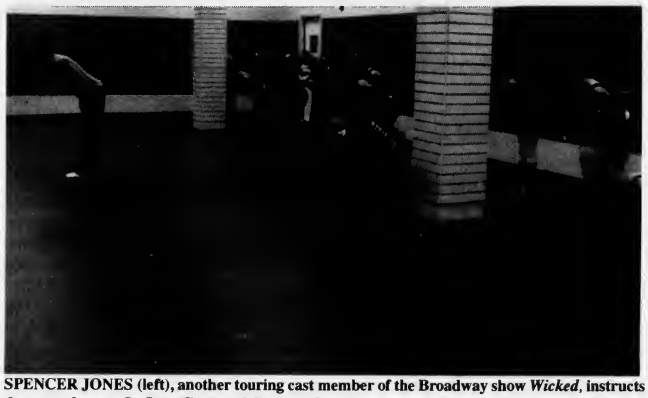
Penelope Armstead-Williams and Spencer Jones from the touring cast of Wicked recently taught a master workshop at In Sync Center of the Arts, 550 Adams St. Quincy.

Over 50 dancers attended the Broadway Connections workshop and enjoyed learning routines from the award winning Broadway show. Broadway Connections is a New York based company who works to bring Broadway to aspiring artists all over the country.

"Wicked" tells the spell-binding backstory of the witches from the Wizard of OZ. In its seventh year on Broadway, "Wicked" has won 35 major awards, including a Grammy, an Olivier, three Tonys and six Drama Desk Awards.

The show is a heavy dance show with many layers of choreography and a distinctive new style. After the 90-minute dance workshop, the cast members treated the In Sync dancers to a question and answer session. Dancers and parents were invited to ask lots of questions about the audition process, the show itself, and the personal journeys of Penelope and Spencer.

"Exposing our students to dancers who are working on Broadway is important to us," said In Sync Owner Teri Mangiaratti.



"The energy in the studio during the week leading up to the workshop and during it was very exciting! Students come back to class motivated and ready to work toward their own personal goals. The Q&A sessions are a wonderful chance for the kids to see that even professional dancers are just people like all of us, they have challenges and make mistakes, but they always work very hard to reach their goals.

"Wicked is such an amazing show - I am happy to have given my students this opportunity and am looking forward to doing it again!" Mangiaratti added.

In Sync Center of the Arts is planning tap and vocal workshops through Broadway Connections with the cast of Mary Poppins in March.

PENELOPE ARMSTEAD-WILLIAMS (front, left) from the touring cast of Wicked teaches a master workshop at In Sync Center of the Arts, 550 Adams St. Quincy.

The movie is being shown as part of the library's series of events in October about the 1960s.

Michael Lepage To Portray John Adams Oct. 18

Michael Lepage will bring John Adams to life at his farm at the foot of Penns Hill, 133-141 Franklin St. Monday, Oct. 18 from 10 a.m, to 3 p.m. as he composes the letters he writes that will be forward to his family in Braintree from Philadelphia from Oct. 7 to Oct. 9, 1774.

Lepage is an ardent student of history and a devotee of John Adams who portrays Adams and other "founding fathers" for appreciative audiences at Adams National Historical Park and other venues throughout the Commonwealth.

Lepage will show how Adams confides to his distant wife Abigail in 1774, that he is "wearied to death with the life I lead" at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Adams however, assures Abigail that his residence in Philadelphia will "benefit Boston" for the "Spirit and Principles of Liberty" that are greatly enhanced by his "presence and conversation."

Adams National Park includes the birthplaces of second and sixth United States Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and the "Old House" at "Peace Field" home to both presidents and four generations of their distinguished family.

Todd's Delicious Green Tomato Pie

It happened at our family reunion recently where more than 100 cousins by the dozens celebrate with each other with a huge buffet all homemade and tons of games from three legged race to egg throwing contests are played outside in the ball field.

I was standing at the buffet table ready to taste some of the truly gourmet entrees when a handsome man standing beside me asked if I wanted to taste his "green tomato pie."

Of course I said "yes" because it not only looked delicious, but he didn't have to ask me twice. When I asked him who he was he told me that he was Todd. It turns out he was a second cousin, son of my cousin Ann. I have to explain that there are so many second and third cousins that live out of town that are almost strangers to us, so it was no surprise that I had never met him or if I did, it was long ago.

Anyway, I took a square of this pie and brought it back to the table and each of my daughters tasted it and we all thought it was so delicious and something we had never had before. I asked Todd to mail me the recipe for today's column. Hope you enjoy it as much as we did. I have enclosed the recipe for his pie crust, but you can buy one already made in the supermarket.

GREEN TOMATO PIE

Pie Crust

3 cups flour
2 teaspoons salt
¾ pound butter
2 egg yolks
½ cup ice water

Combine the flour and salt in a mixer. Dice the butter and add blending into oat-sized flakes. Beat the egg yolks with the ice water and then add to the mixture. Blend briefly, add more ice water if necessary. Gather dough into a ball, wrap in plastic wrap and refrigerate.

In an 11 x 17 baking pan, roll out enough pie crust to fit and line pan.

Filling

8 to 10 hard green tomatoes
2 large onions (sautéed)
½ stick butter
1-pound Swiss cheese
1-pound Muenster cheese
Enough bread crumbs to line the pan and for topping
2 tablespoons brown sugar
Salt and pepper
White vinegar for drizzling

Sauté the onions in the butter.

Sprinkle pie crust lined pan with bread crumbs. Layer tomato slices, both cheeses, and the sautéed onions. Sprinkle with salt and fresh ground pepper and the brown sugar.

Repeat layers until ingredients are used up. Top with more bread crumbs and a drizzle of white vinegar.

Roll out crust to top pie. Crimp edges and slash. Bake a 375-degree oven until brown. Leftover portions can be reheated in an oven or toaster oven.

Remember that Todd was making this for a crowd, so this feeds about 12 persons. You can make it much smaller if you like.

Meeting On Downtown Oct. 20

Mayor Thomas Koch will host his second community meeting on plans to redevelop Quincy Center at 7 p.m. next Wednesday, Oct. 20, in the auditorium at Quincy High School.

Koch, together with the City's development partners Street-Works LLC, held a first community meeting last week attended by about 75 residents whom Koch said "had great comments and great questions."

"Make no mistake, we have a lot of work to do, but every day I am more and more confident that our community is ready for this historic project. The positive feedback has been remarkable," Koch said. "We want the community involved every step of the way, so I encourage everyone to attend the next meeting to get a sense of our plans and why we are ready to take this bold step."

At the meeting, Koch will give a brief overview of the legal agreement that will set in motion the $1.3 billion project anticipated to create 4,100 construction jobs, 5,100 permanent jobs and add several millions of dollars every year in economic new growth to the City.

The Mayor said his focus will also be on the unique financing structure of the deal which requires revenue from the private development to pay for public infrastructure costs.

"We cannot say it enough – this project is required to pay for itself, and then some," Koch said. "At no point will any general fund revenue used to pay for our schools, police and fire be used on this project. In fact, this will create millions of dollars to help us sustain those services in the years to come."

Richard Heapes, co-founding partner of Street-Works, will give a detailed presentation of the project's particulars, including of 1 million square feet of new office space, more than 700 housing units, two hotels, a cinema and entertainment complex, and 570,000 square feet of new retail and restaurant space in Quincy Center.

"This is an historic moment for our City, and we are going to keep the lines of communication with our residents open at all times. We hope to see everyone at the meeting," Koch said.

Quincy Fair Mall Comes Down

The Quincy Fair Mall has been torn down to make way for the final phase of the Quincy Center Concourse, and contractors expect the remaining demolition work to be completed by the end of this month, officials said.

Crews from Vinagro Corp. worked an overnight shift last week to tear down the Hancock Street façade and four large front-facing towers of the building, a job that was delayed this summer after previously undiscovered asbestos-containing material was found in portions of the building.

The demolition delay will not affect the schedule for roadway construction, which has proceeded uninterrupted to create a East-West connection through the heart of Quincy Center. The Concourse is viewed as a vital cornerstone to the City's $1.3 billion redevelopment effort for downtown.

"With the building down now, we can really see this vital roadway taking shape," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "Our partners in the State and Federal government, as well as our contractors, have done great work moving this project forward, and we expect to see the same progress as we continue to move forward."

The asbestos material found in the mall building is not airborne and was removed under state and federal regulations, officials said. Air-monitoring at the site showed no elevated levels of asbestos in the air surrounding the project site, according to Department of Public Works Commissioner Larry Prendeville.

RICK DOANE, executive director of Interfaith Social Services, Inc. in Quincy, accepts a check from Project Bread as one of over more than 400 grants given to emergency food programs as part of the culmination of the 2010 Walk for Hunger.

Six Local Agencies Receive $58,250 In Emergency Food Grants

Six Quincy-based emergency food services were recently awarded grants totalling $58,250 by Project Bread, the state's leading anti-hunger organization.

Local emergency food services receiving grants are:

- Father Bill's & Mainspring, Inc. – Father Bill's Place
- Salvation Army/Quincy
- Germantown Neighborhood Center Pantry/Quincy
- Interfaith Social Services, Inc. – Pantry Shelf
- Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. – Emergency Food Center
- Esther R. Sanger Center for Compassion – Quincy Crisis Center

These agencies are among 400 emergency food programs in 135 cities and towns across Massachusetts to receive money from Project Bread's Walk for Hunger, which supports food pantries, meal programs, food banks, and food salvage programs. Despite the economic downturn, Walkers raised $3.8 million to help those in need across the state.

Project Bread-funded agencies reported serving nearly 58 million meals in 2009, the highest number of meals ever recorded. The demand shows no sign of abating. With foreclosures and unemployment still high, many people are finding themselves struggling to put food on the table for the first time.

Businesses Optimistic, Wary Of Downtown Revitalization Plan

they reap the benefits of the project.

"They keep knocking down buildings," said Don Savoie, manager of The Joke Shop since 1974. "We're being hurt already by the economy."

Savoie believes the city is changing, "You have to wait for the younger generation."

Over and over, sales staff and owners cited parking as their number one concern. At Payless Shoesource and New England Comics, the salesmen called the proposal a good idea but worry about the parking that's $8 an hour now and fear that the number of spots will dwindle.

"Parking is free today," said one salesman, explaining the five to six persons browsing in his store.

At Signal Graphics, owner Roy Pontes also cited the shrinkage of parking as a major issue during the city's revitalization projects. However, he believes the city could solve the problem, "One of the ideas is a shuttle system from parking areas in the city."

For some, it would take a crystal ball to know their future.

"I don't know if it's going to help us or hurt us," said Maryanne Ahmed at Craig's Café who called the future "iffy."

Ahmed said two of the tenants renting offices above her breakfast and lunch shop have already left due to concerns about construction, but she's hoping to stay the course and benefit in the long run, "I hope so."

A Message To Merchants

Both the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and the city's administration will take active steps to ensure that the businesses in Quincy Center have every advantage during the Quincy Center Redevelopment, according to Mayor Thomas Koch and Dean Rizzo, Executive Director, Chamber of Commerce.

However, Rizzo said that it's very early in the process, "The first step is to get this approved. You won't see any construction until 2012-2013 at the earliest."

Once it is approved, Rizzo said that the city has to work through state and federal financing which may take one to two years.

"I guarantee all of those questions will be answered," said Rizzo of demolition, parking and traffic queries. He added that the Chamber of Commerce will likely send out informational bulletins to all 900 businesses in the development area as soon as major issues are decided.

In addition, Rizzo said, "We talk to individual business persons on a one-on-one basis."

Rizzo said some individuals come in for a better outline of what's happening in their specific area and whether they should extend their lease, "We try to help them understand."

beneficial deal that protects the City against many of the risks traditionally associated with projects of this magnitude," Koch said. "We are all eager to begin the meetings with the Council, and I have the utmost confidence that our councilors – and our residents – will have all of their questions and concerns addressed."

The City team that spent more than two years negotiating the agreement with Street-Works Development LLC is led by Quincy native and renowned Boston lawyer Thomas Kiley, whom Koch called the "the most highly regarded lawyer in the Commonwealth." The complex details of the land-use agreement were authored by Robert Fishman, a partner in the Boston firm of Nutter, McClennen and Fish, which is "the preeminent real estate firm not just in Massachusetts, but the entire Northeast," Koch said.

Sarah Woodworh, a managing partner with the Maryland-based financial firm W-ZHA, crunched the complex series of numbers for the City to ensure that the project's mathematics worked in way that protect the City from using any of its general revenue to pay for the project. The City's bonding advisor, Cinder McNerney of First Southwest Company, and other financial experts also played important roles at the negotiating table, Koch said.

"This is a unique agreement in that the City team wrote the agreement on behalf of the City – this was not the developer writing the deal and us just signing onto to it," Koch said. "In every way, this is the City of Quincy's agreement."

All members of the City's negotiating team will be available to discuss the details of the agreement with the Council, and answer any questions at the committee hearings. Koch called it a "fully transparent" process in which the Council and the public will be informed on all aspects of the agreement.

The deal, called a Land Disposition Agreement, sets the legal and financial terms for allowing Street-Works to redevelop Quincy Center, including two major parcels of City-owned land in the Hancock Parking Lot and the Ross Parking Garage.

The project calls for 1 million square feet of new office space, more than 700 housing units, two hotels, a cinema and entertainment complex, and 570,000 square feet of new retail and restaurant space in Quincy Center.

The primary plan calls for $277 million in public infrastructure improvements including new underground utilities and public parking facilities with 3,500 spaces. The City and Street-Works are working to secure $50 million in state and federal grant funds for a portion of the improvements, with the remainder to be financed by new taxes and parking revenue from the downtown project.

At the heart of the legal deal is a unique financing plan called the "the purchase model," in which Street-Works pays for the up-front costs of the infrastructure improvements and the City buys it back by using new revenue generated strictly by the project. The agreement includes a host of requirements Street-Works must meet before the City is obligated to pay for the public infrastructure.

Under the plan, the City will use Chapter 121A, the state urban redevelopment law, as the property tax structure for the development. After development, the City expects to receive $10.4 million in property tax revenue. Of that, $6.8 million will go toward paying for the public improvements, and $3.6 million will be designated for the City's general fund.

Along with other new revenues such as new meals taxes, hotel room taxes and property taxes outside the immediate project area, the project is expected to generate approximately $7.1 million beyond what will be used to pay for the public improvements. In the end, the agreement will mean a 4 to 1 ratio of private spending to public investment, a figure substantially higher than most traditional urban redevelopment projects.

Councillors Seek Outside Review Of Downtown Plan

Will Ask Mayor To OK Funding For Independent Experts

JOSEPH FINN

BRIAN PALMUCCI

By LAURA GRIFFIN

City Councillors Joseph Finn and Brian Palmucci, Ward 4, will ask the City Council Monday to request that Mayor Thomas Koch approve funding for independent experts to review aspects of the Quincy Center Redevelopment Plan, specifically the Land Disposition Agreement (LDA), for the council.

"Don't misunderstand me. Right up front, I support it. The mayor's done a remarkable job," Finn said Tuesday of the $1.3 billion proposal.

However, Finn also said that the council must approve "roughly a quarter of a billion dollar bond authorization" and owes it to residents to vet every word of the LDA before approving the land sales and authorization.

"We don't need less scrutiny. We need more scrutiny," said Finn. "I don't understand why there would be such strong opposition."

Finn referred to indications that Mayor Thomas Koch objected to hiring independent counsel for City Council.

Koch, his legal and financial team, and Street-Works executives, officially presented the Quincy Center Redevelopment plan to the City Council at their last meeting on Oct. 4.

At that meeting, Koch and nearly every speaker repeatedly said that Street-Works would pay money upfront and the city would not spend one penny of the bond until new tax income would cover the costs.

However, Finn described the LDA as a "complex, legal agreement" that requires legal interpretation.

"Despite my own belief (in the project), we have a fiduciary responsibility to the city and the residents for due diligence," said Finn.

Such due diligence would be accomplished by "bringing in an independent set of eyes," other than the team that composed the documents, according to Finn.

"Only the mayor can allocate resources," Finn said, adding that Koch could sign an allocation from the existing $30 million bond for redevelopment. The cost could be as low at $25,000.

In explaining his support of outside experts, Palmucci said that City Council would only call on the outside experts as needed.

"The council should have some expert advice from someone who didn't negotiate," said Palmucci, adding that the proposal would allow councillors "to have someone available who is employed by the council."

"I have a duty to try and punch holes in it," said Palmucci who, like Finn, believes the project will succeed.

In addition, Palmucci said he has the utmost respect for the Koch's team. "It really is a dream team," he said.

"There is no money in the council budget for this," said Palmucci who said the funding could be covered by the development bond.

Councillor John Keenan, chairman of the Finance Committee, suggested the council should begin their review and then decide if they need outside experts.

However, Ward 5 Councillor Doug Gutro supports the proposal. "I think it's wise to consider it, an independent legal review."

Gutro cited council decision in the past on Honeywell, the shipyard and Quarry Hills. He said that, two years from now, he doesn't want to look in the rear-view mirror and think, "It might have been prudent."

City Council President Kevin Coughlin indicated he would approve the measure.

"Quite honestly, I need to insure the integrity of the body," said Coughlin adding he would support "whatever assistance they need. I can understand and appreciate the request."

Coughlin, also noted, "In the end, it is the mayor who has to allocate the funds."

And, in a formal statement issued Tuesday, Koch called the request for outside experts "premature."

"I'm a little disappointed that some of the councillors are considering this before they read the document or hold the first committee meeting to ask questions of the City's team," Koch stated.

"The team we hired was hired to represent our taxpayers and the Council, not just our office, and I think it's a little premature to be discussing hiring more lawyers before we even start working through the details of the agreement.

"That said, any formal request that comes from the full Council will—as always—be treated with the utmost respect and consideration," Koch added.

Raymondi Challenging Ban On Quincy Center Review

Raymondi said that state ethics rules indicate the impact on an individual's property must be "direct" and "immediate" to disqualify that person from public decisions.

Raymondi asked for Timmins' opinion and had, previously, been cleared to vote on zoning issues regarding the project.

"I'm outside the 300-foot limit," said Raymondi, suggesting that Timmins' decision was subjective and in a gray area. In addition, Raymondi said the facts indicate there will be a long period of time before the enhancement of anyone's property beyond Quincy Center.

In the end, such enhancements could extend into any councillor's district.

City Solicitor James Timmins encouraged Raymondi to appeal the decision.

"I suggested to him to do that," Timmins said Tuesday, stating that he gave his opinion on the issue but still welcomes a different view.

Timmins issued his "Ethics Advisory" last month at the request of Raymondi whose home and law office on Elm Street are beyond a 300-foot border of the Quincy Redevelopment property.

In issuing the opinion, Timmins cited the history of Street-Works development projects where cities have experienced property value increases beyond the development area.

"That history is relevant here, as we know from Street Works' past experience this project will affect the value of property not only in what is referred to as "the Redevelopment Area," but in abutting neighborhoods, as well."

In his analysis, Timmins also wrote, "the only caveat here is that the financial interest must be direct and immediate, or reasonably foreseeable; and, it may not be speculative."

Those are the words that Raymondi is challenging.

Timmins sent his three-page decision to the State Ethics Commission and General Counsel Deirdre Roney concurred.

However, Timmins told city councillors last week that the commission's lawyers rarely disagree with a local decision.

When discussing his decision, Raymondi said he had heard from many constituents. "There's a lot of disappointment. They know that I work hard with direct and pointed questions. They want me to do whatever I can."

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Be Safe This Heating Season

Is it too early to focus on preparation for the heating season?

House fires tend to increase during the colder months while preparation and prevention are key to a safer season. Below are some suggestions for preparation, while considering the prices of fuel, and the economy in general, the need for proper maintenance does not lessen, while avoiding potentially dangerous short cuts in heating your home is essential.

My first thought is to recommend that as this heating season approaches, all homeowners should comply with Nicole's Law. That law requires a carbon monoxide detector on each habitable level of your home. An unfinished basement does not require one while a detector is required on the first floor. If there is no bedroom on this level, it can be installed anywhere, while if a bedroom exists, it must be placed within 10' of the bedroom door. Likewise, if the bedrooms are located on the second floor, a detector must be placed within 10' of those doors as well. All carbon monoxide detectors must be installed as per the manufacturer's instructions.

My second recommendation is that all oil burners should be cleaned and maintained at least once a year. At that time a technician will clean the inner chambers, tuning the burner as well, assuring more efficient performance. He should clean the flue pipes while examining those and entry into the chimney itself. That visual inspection is important while a subsequent draft test will confirm adequate movement of combustion gases to the outside through the chimney. It's a prudent yearly effort to both optimize fuel efficiency and confirm an adequate flow of potentially dangerous combustion gases to the outside.

The same holds true for gas-fired furnaces while I am less familiar with them. Although they appear to require less maintenance, assurance of an unblocked flue and chimney is essential. Make certain that products of combustion from heating appliances are venting outside of your home, not within it.

With the resurgence of wood stoves, it is also essential to assure a clean and unobstructed flue way where creosote, a tarry by-product of burning wood, which is combustible, can accumulate and occlude a chimney. Here too, that blockage can retard adequate ventilation from the heating appliance and cause chimney fires as well. Particularly if you're burning wood, reassure yourself by having a professional check your chimney.

Please do not be tempted to use propane or oil fired unvented space heaters within your home. It is unlawful to do so within a building used for habitation and with good reason.

Where they are not adequately vented to the outside, combustion gases are directly vented into the living space of your home. While displacing oxygen, the resulting carbon monoxide and carbon dioxide will render an individual incapacitated leading to eventual death. Therefore, do not be tempted to supplement your household heating efforts with an unvented fuel fired space heater.

If you use an electric space heater, make certain that it's UL approved. Place it on a firm surface a minimum three feet from combustibles. The heater should not be left unattended or used in a bedroom while sleeping. It should be kept away from water, and if an extension cord is used, make certain that it is not frayed or faulty and is appropriate for the electrical load required.

Stay warm, and please be careful while doing so.

Star Of Sea Friends Energized After 3rd Town Meeting

Friends of Star of the Sea co-chairs Sean Glennon and Maureen Mazrimas recently held a town meeting to discuss future plans of the organization. The meeting was held at the First Church of Squantum. It was the third such meeting of the group over the past six years.

Of note, the Friends vowed to exhaust all appeals to the Vatican, and they discussed the possibility of filing suit in the Massachusetts Trial Court, should the Chancellor of the Archdiocese move toward a sale of the property.

The Friends also created several committees, including Development, Outreach, Fundraising and Legal Review.

Following the precedent established in 1916 by the Squantum Catholic Club, they have taken charge of their own spiritual life by reorganizing the parish prayer group. It was the Squantum Catholic Club that provided for the celebration of the first Mass in Squantum, long before the Archdiocese envisioned Star of the Sea as a mission, a parish or a chapel. Members of this club also purchased the land on which the church currently sits, raised the funds to build the original wooden church, and laid the groundwork for fundraising to build the current brick building in 1956, when the congregation outgrew the little wooden church. The vibrant parish community that existed in 2004 was the legacy of the Squantum Catholic Club to succeeding generations of Squantum Catholics.

The director of the re-established prayer group is Mary Grace Montalto. The group will meet monthly at the First Church of Squantum, beginning this Monday, October 18, at 7:00 p.m. All are truly welcome.

While not mentioned at the meeting, Ms. Mazrimas indicated that Star of the Sea had for many years pre-suppression, been very active in the "Giving Tree" project at Christmas. That tradition continued post-suppression. The beneficiary of the project for the last several years has been My Brothers Keeper – an amazing organization on the campus of Stonehill College. She suggested that might be something to think about since Christmas will be here before we know it.

For information on how you might become involved in one of the committees, or if you are interested in creating programs, call Maureen Mazrimas at 617-257-8295 or Sean Glennon at 617-909-6426.

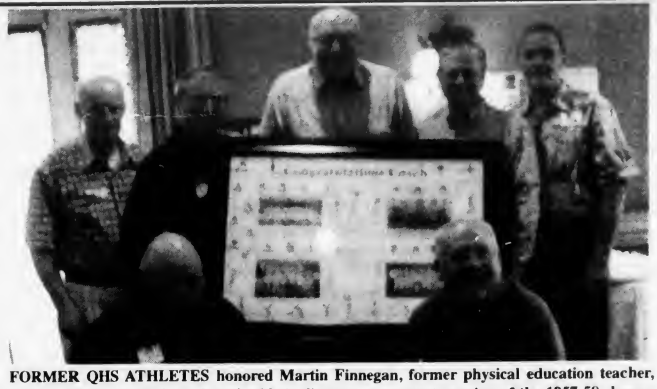
Former Coach Martin Finnegan Honored At QHS Reunion



More than 100 former Quincy High School students and guests from the 1957 and 1958 graduating classes recently celebrated a joint reunion at The Common Market in Quincy.

In a room filled with old photos and '50's memorabilia, the group honored the school's former physical education teacher and basketball and football coach, Martin Finnegan.

The QHS 50's Alumni Benefit Fund Committee presented Finnegan, affectionately known as "Marty," with an impressive mounted clock, along with a large poster signed by many of his former student athletes.

His emotional "thank you" touched everyone in the room, particularly when he reminisced about the old days at Quincy High, and expressed how much "his boys" and the day meant to him. Before his retirement, Marty had risen to the post of athletic director at the school.

Making the day extra special, Marty and his wife, Norma, were celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary. The group also presented them with a bouquet of roses.

RECENT SCAM: Officer Tom Ford reports that a Quincy resident signed up for the "Secret Shopper" program. His first assignment was to take the 2 money orders, worth $1950.00, sent to him by the "company" and deposit them in his bank. He was instructed to keep $300.00 for himself, and then wire the rest to another secret shopper in Missouri via Western Union. A few days later, the bank notified the resident that the money orders he deposited in his account were bogus, leaving the victim out $1650.00, with very little chance of recovery.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, Oct. 2, at approximately 3:35 p.m., Officer Paul Foley was traveling east bound on Cross Street approaching the intersection of Crescent Street when he observed the vehicle ahead of him roll through the stop sign (without stopping) and then turn left onto Crescent Street.

LT. DAN MINTON

The officer activated his blue lights and siren, stopping the vehicle in front of 68 Crescent Street. As Officer Foley approached the vehicle on the passenger side, he noticed the rear occupants were not wearing safety belts. There were five occupants inside the vehicle.

The male operator gave the Officer a Rhode Island License and a registration showing his Mother as the registered owner. The right rear passenger was asked for an I.D. and she stated that she did not have one, but gave a name and date of birth, unsure on her social security number.

Officer Foley returned to his cruiser and used his on-board computer to check on the occupants. The driver had an active license. The driver's license information provided by the rear passenger showed a photo of someone else. Officer Foley asked area car Officer Mike Powers to respond to his location for assistance. Officer Foley approached the car and told the female passenger that he believed she was lying to him and he would give her one opportunity to be truthful. She then gave another name and said she lied because she thought she had warrants for her arrest.

As Dispatcher Carol Flynn confirmed over the radio that there were two default warrants, the female suspect (#1) jumped out of the vehicle and began running northbound on Crescent Street. Officer Powers, who just arrived on scene, gave chase along with Officer Foley. Officer Powers caught suspect #1 a short distance up the road and after a brief struggle, subdued her. She then blurted out, "There's drugs in that car."

As Officer Powers detained the female suspect, Officer Foley called for additional Officers to respond, then returned to the vehicle to stay with the remaining four passengers. Once suspect #1 was in a cruiser, Officer Powers told the drug unit Detectives on scene that suspect #1 told him that the driver is a drug dealer and that there was heroin under the front seat of the vehicle. Based on this new information, the driver was instructed to step from the vehicle.

A search under the center console revealed a plastic baggy containing a brownish gray powder believed to be heroin. The driver/suspect #2 was placed under arrest. Several denominations of U.S. currency were located on his person by Officer David Zupkofska: $10 in his right front pocket. $40 in his right rear pocket, $75.00 in his left front pocket, $400 (all 20's) in his wallet (left rear pocket). Carrying cash on your person in this manner is consistent with the sale of street level drugs.

Suspect #2, a 31 year old Pawtucket resident, was charged with "Failure to stop for a stop sign and Possession of Class A heroin with intent to distribute." The heroin found was approx. 2 -3 grams in weight and has a street value of approximately $200 - $300 and is not consistent with personal use.

Suspect #1, a 26 year old Quincy resident, was charged with the two Quincy District Court default warrants (larceny by check and resisting arrest), Misleading a Police Officer during a criminal investigation, Knowingly resisting arrest, and being present where heroin is kept." After the vehicle was towed, a taxi was called for the three remaining passengers and they were sent on their way.

COLD CASE: Back in August 2008, there were two break-ins on Butler Road. At the time, an investigation was conducted by responding Officers, then followed up by Detectives' Paul Delahoyde and Sean Biggins. The Detectives collected available evidence at both homes, including lifting fingerprints from the windows opened to gain access.

The evidence was submitted to the State Police Labs to determine if there was a match with anyone in the criminal system. This week, a match was found with the DNA from the fingerprints to a locally known thief. Warrants have been issued against the 47 year old Dorchester/Quincy resident.

Clean Water Action Endorses Keating For Congress

Citing his commitment to clean energy and the environment, Clean Water Action announces their endorsement of Bill Keating for Massachusetts 10th Congressional Seat.

Keating is currently the Norfolk County District Attorney.

Clean Water Action is a grassroots organization of 1.2 million members nationwide that works within local communities across the country to change politics and environmental policy.

"Clean Water Action is proud to endorse Bill Keating for Congress in the 10th District," said Jeff Knudsen, Massachusetts Clean Water Action political director. "Now more than ever, we need allies in Congress like Bill Keating who will stand up to polluters to protect our health, our environment, and our future. Bill Keating's strong support for actions to protect our drinking water; reduce global warming pollution and promote clean renewable power; and to replace toxic chemicals in children's products with safer alternatives is truly impressive.

"We believe that Bill Keating is the clear environmental choice in this race."

Keating said he has a proven record advocating for the environment. As a legislator, Keating wrote Massachusetts' tough Safe Water Law to protect lakes and streams throughout the state from chemical pollution. As a result of this law, Keating was named Environmental Legislator of the Year and received an award from the Congress of Lakes and Ponds.

Keating said he strongly believes that Cape Cod's Sole Source Aquifer needs to be fiercely protected from ground water contamination, because the Cape's residents depend on it for clean drinking water.

"I am honored to receive the support of Clean Water Action" said Keating. "We've been blessed with a unique and beautiful environment here in the 10th congressional district, as well as all of Massachusetts. It is up to us to preserve it for future generations. I look forward to working with leaders in Congress to further advocate for the environment."

Keenan Calls For Further Pension Reforms

John Keenan, Democratic nomiee for State Senate, says he is pledging further reforms to the state pension system.

"The law, as currently written, is outdated, overly complex, inconsistent and filled with loopholes that are easily exploited by some public employees," said Keenan, a Quincy city councillor-at-large.

For example, Chapter 32 of the Massachusetts General Laws, which governs public pensions, still contains specific language outlining pension programs for the women who used to mop the State House floors every night, as well as for veterans of World War 1.

And a number of loopholes remain that allow public employees to pad their pensions through questionable employment practices, at a significant cost to taxpayers.

For instance, in some cases a person holding a full-time elected position could retire, collect a pension for holding that position, and then get re-elected and also collect the position's full salary. There is also a loophole that allows public employees convicted in federal court of crimes related to their position to be paid their annuities, while if they had been convicted in state court they would have lost those annuities. "There are loopholes and inconsistencies in the law, and they should be addressed," said Keenan.

"Rather than add more language to an already complex law, we should undertake a complete review of Chapter 32, repeal outdated sections, craft a statute that reflects the changed times and is fair for public employees, and do so in a manner that protects taxpayers," said Keenan, who has discovered many problems with the law through his work as Executive Director of the Norfolk County Retirement System.

Keenan said he recognizes that fewer private-sector employers are offering pension packages, and said he understands the anger felt by many taxpayers over the recent publicized cases of pension abuse. However, he added that the average state employee self-funds their retirement package, and therefore the focus should be on closing loopholes, ending employee abuse of the system, and crafting a fiscally responsible and sustainable retirement program."

Sheriff Bellotti Unveils Agenda For Future

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti has laid out his agenda for the future to keep voters informed as they prepare to go to the polls for the Nov. 2 general election.

Bellotti, 47, who is up for re-election, said he wants to build upon his recent achievements such as raising professional standards for his workforce, building public-private partnerships and expanding his highly-praised Inmate-Re-entry program.

"The voters of Norfolk County have placed their trust in me to help keep their communities safe," Sheriff Bellotti said. "I am grateful for that trust, and I pledge to work tirelessly on their behalf."

Bellotti said his primary focus is the management of a safe, secure and humane correctional facility at the Norfolk County Correctional Center in Dedham. He noted that the Dedham jail is one of only 4 percent of the correctional facilities in the entire country that is accredited by both the American Correctional Association (ACA) and the National Commission on Correctional Health Care. The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office also has more nationally certified correction officers than any other correctional facility in the country.

Bellotti said he would continue to work with local police and fire chiefs to expand community safety programs that protect Alzheimer's patients and people with autism and a program that provides email alerts to residents when sex offenders take up residence in their neighborhoods. Sheriff Bellotti's staff members also drive sex offenders to their local police stations to register as required by law upon their release from jail.

Bellotti said he will expand his new Rapid Alert Notification System. Using a federal Homeland Security grant, Bellotti introduced the system into Norfolk County last year and works with local officials to notify residents directly and quickly when a public safety emergency looms.

Bellotti has gained a reputation as a corrections innovator, and his Inmate Re-entry program has been called "a model for the entire state" by the Massachusetts Attorney General. The program is designed to keep offenders from committing new crimes after their release from jail. The federal Department of Justice recently recognized and rewarded the excellence of Sheriff Bellotti's program by awarding nearly $700,000 in grants to enhance the initiative over the next several years.

Last year, Sheriff Bellotti was honored by his professional peers, who elected him as president of the Massachusetts Sheriffs' Association until 2012. He said he looks forward to continuing his work with top state officials on two special commissions studying important issues of the day: teenage bullying and inmate fees.

"The voters of Norfolk County have afforded me the opportunity to make a difference in our communities and to improve the quality of life for people throughout the region," Sheriff Bellotti said. "I look forward to continuing the work. I will not let them down."

Dewey Says Focus Should Be On Jobs

The City Council recently passed a "green" construction ordinance.

This ordinance requires new environmental standards for home renovations and construction. It is estimated that this ordinance will add $6,000 to the cost of renovating a home.

Dan Dewey, Republican nominee for State Senate, cited this code as an example of government out of touch with the people.

"It's nice that the Quincy City Council is worried about global warming, but I'm worried about the people in Quincy that don't have jobs, or will lose jobs because of this ordinance."

Dewey noted that making it more expensive to do home renovations will discourage homeowners from investing in their property, and hurt the building trades.

"Adding huge costs to home renovations when we are experiencing record unemployment and a stagnant economy is a prime example of how out of touch the establishment politicians are," Dewey said

"Having family so close by is wonderful," says Joe.

100th Anniversary Of the Harvard-Boston Aero Meet

RUSSELL ERIKSON of Quincy, a World War II B-24 pilot who flew 33 missions over Europe, looks at a display of the location of the Harvard-Boston Aero Meet superimposed over an aerial photo of the Squantum Air Field. The exhibit was featured at a reception marking the 100th anniversary of the Harvard-Boston Aero Meet at the Quincy Historical Society. The anniversary was also marked by the Blue Hill Observatory and the Massachusetts Aviation Historical Society.

AN ATTENTIVE AUDIENCE listens to some of the featured speakers at a lecture marking the 100th anniversary of the Harvard-Boston Aero Meet at the Quincy Historical Society. Speakers included Dr. Edward Fitzgerald, executive director, Quincy Historical Society; William Deane, president, Massachusetts Aviation Historical Society; Dr. William Minsinger, president, Blue Hill Observatory; Jinny Nathans, archivist, American Meteorological Society; and Dr. Tom Crouch, senior curator, Division of Aeronautics, Smithsonian Institution.

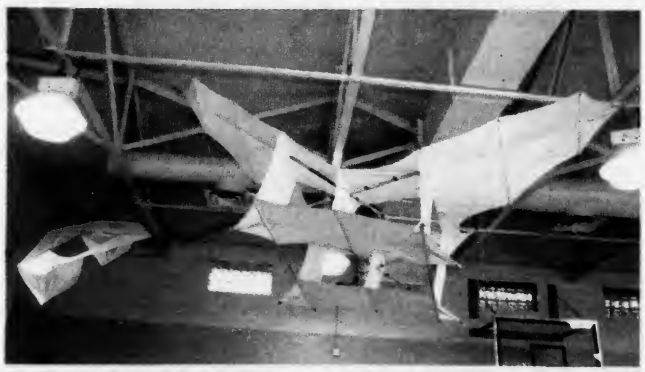
The Harvard Boston Aero (Aviation) Meet was held 100 years ago last month – Sept. 3-13, 1910 – at the Harvard Aero Field in Atlantic. The aero-field was located in the area behind the new Kennedy Senior Center on the Squantum Causeway.

According to Quincy Historian Tom Galvin, The Harvard Aeronautical Society had rented the 500-acre site for five years. They and others offered large cash prizes for record-breaking thrilling contests to lure the most daring aviators and the most advanced aviation equipment from the U.S. and Europe to this meet.

It was only the second air meet in the U.S. and was only seven years after the Wright Brothers' first flight at Kitty Hawk. Over 50,000 observers came to Quincy that week including President William Howard Taft, Boston Mayor John F. (Honey Fitz) Fitzgerald and New York State Senator Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The meet featured the first single wing aero plane seen in Boston. At the controls of the French-built Bleroit monoplane was Englishman Claude Graham-White, the only pilot who dared to fly the 10 miles out to Boston Light and then back. For this, The Boston Globe awarded him $10,000. Graham-White won most of the other contests as well, including altitude, speed and bomb dropping. A second meet here a year later was pretty much rained out.

DR. TOM CROUCH, senior curator, Division of Aeronautics, Smithsonian Institution, lectured on the topic "Remembering the Harvard-Boston Aero Meet." Dr. Crouch also spoke at the recent John D. Noonan 15th annual Senior Conference at the Kennedy Center.



WILLIAM DEANE, president of the Massachusetts Aviation Society, addresses the audience at a reception and lecture at the Quincy Historical Society marking the 100th anniversary of the Harvard-Boston Aero Meet.

Graham-White received $5,000 for his "bombing" accuracy at the meet. Peer Advisors Hope To Impact Substance Abuse Problems age of 21 are more receptive to the idea of being rebels, going against society's norms.

The five Peer Advisors, Mock, North Quincy High seniors Chelsy Jusseaume, Dan Whooley, Siobhan Greene and North Quincy sophomore Lauren Campo, weren't picked on a whim. Students looking to become Peer Advisors first had to write an essay about why they thought the program was a good idea to stop drinking. They also had to have been involved in social-awareness activities at the high school. The seven students were ultimately picked by the school's guidance counselors.

Program coordinator Carolyn Comperchio would like to see the program gain momentum as the school year progresses. "I would like to eventually have more peer advocates, rallies and activities to get everyone involved," she said.

Comperchio is in the process of interviewing more potential peer advocates from Quincy High with most of the questions pertaining to their knowledge of Impact Quincy and any background working as peer advisors for younger students.

Comperchio said the group has been extraordinary. "It's a cohesive group of kids," she said. "They all get along very well with one another. I couldn't have asked for a better group of kids.

"The toughest part is getting everyone here at the same time because of conflicting schedules."

The group is currently gearing up for National Substance Abuse Week the first week of January. They plan to hold a rally, complete with a trivia game with various questions pertaining to alcohol and substance abuse. Posters with the questions and answers will be on the walls of North Quincy High to prepare the students for the game.

"Even the kids who aren't on a team can learn about substance abuse," said Jusseaume.

A startling finding was that of the teachers surveyed at Quincy High School's 37 teachers were aware of the underage drinking policy and 18 weren't. Only 11 could describe the policy in detail. At North Quincy, 46 were aware of the policy while 77 were unaware.

Some sections of the policy include:

*ALCOHOL/ALCOHOL DETECTION SYSTEM: Forbidden is the use of, being under the influence of, being in the presence of, the serving of, or the distribution of, any alcoholic beverage, on school premises, including school parking lots; on the way to or on the way home from school; or at school sponsored or school-related events, at home or away, including athletic games. The school official in charge shall have the authority to remove from contact with other students official in charge shall have the authority to remove from contact with other students anyone suspected of being under the influence of, or in the presence of alcohol, and thereupon shall immediately contact the parent or legal guardian. In addition, police may be notified and students may be placed in protective custody or arrested.

If it is determined that a student is suspected of being under the influence of alcohol, school administrators have the authority to request the student be tested on an alcoholic detection system.

The introductory APR will apply only during the first 6 billing cycles after your FlexLock line is opened. Thereafter, the APR, including the APR on any existing balance, will convert to the applicable variable "go to" APR. "Go to" APRs on FlexLock lines may vary monthly based on the latest U.S. Prime Rate as published in The Wall Street Journal as of the first business day of the month, plus a margin of 0.74% for lines of $100,000 - $750,000 (now 3.99% APR), a margin of 1.24% for lines of $25,000 - $99,999 (now 4.49% APR) or a margin of 1.49% for lines of $10,000 - $24,999 (now 4.74% APR). There is a $220 termination fee if you close the line within 30 months. An annual fee, if any, will be charged during the Draw Period, and will be $0, $25 or $50, depending on the Sovereign deposit account you maintain, and may change if you change the deposit account. The annual fee will equal $0 as long as you maintain a Sovereign Premier, Business Owner Premier, Premier Partnership, Team Member Private or Team Member Checking Account or Premier Money Market Savings Account. An annual fee of $25 will be charged as long as you maintain a Sovereign Preferred or Preferred Partnership Checking Account or Preferred Money Market Savings Account. An annual fee of $50 will be charged if you do not maintain one of the above deposit accounts. A $175 non-refundable fee will be charged if your property is held in trust. The $50 fixed rate lock fee for each lock-in request is waived through 12/31/10. Property insurance is, and flood insurance may be, required. Maximum line amount is $750,000. Offer not available if you have received an introductory rate on a FlexLock line within 12 months of your application date. APRs and other terms accurate as of 9/18/10 and may change thereafter. Applications subject to approval. Line closing must occur by 1/31/11.

4 In order to qualify for the annual percentage yield (APY) shown above, CD must be opened with a minimum deposit of $500. A penalty will be imposed for early withdrawal from a CD. APY effective as of 9/18/10 and subject to change at any time for new accounts.

Cracked Toilet Tank Is Beyond Repair

Q. After noticing that the floor around the base of my downstairs toilet was constantly damp, I found a very thin crack inside the toilet tank, running out from the opening in the bottom where the water drains (note: the flapper valve). It's not very big, but there is a very slow seepage from it. How can I patch this up? – Geraldine S., Longwood, Fla.

A. Unfortunately, patching a cracked toilet tank will only delay the inevitable. The patch won't hold for long, and the stresses placed on the tank by daily draining and refilling of water, temperature changes, etc. will widen the crack and even cause more cracks to form. You'll need to replace the tank.

Fortunately, tank replacement is not very difficult, nor too expensive. The tanks themselves range in price from $30 to more than $300.

You'll need to get the brand name (such as American Standard) as well as the model name and if possible, the model number. This is usually printed right on the tank or the toilet. Then contact your local home-improvement or plumbing-supply store to see if they carry it. If your model is no longer made, you can measure the width and height of the tank, as well as the diameter of the flush valve (the hole at the bottom of the tank) to find a matching size.

A toilet tank flush valve replacement kit should come with the tank.

To install, turn off the water supply valve to the toilet and flush the toilet to drain the tank. Scoop or sponge out remaining water. Using a wrench, disconnect the water supply pipe from the underside of the tank and lift the flush valve assembly up and out. Then remove the large connector bolts that attach the tank to the toilet bowl.

With a helper, lift the tank up. This may be difficult at first as you get it past the old valve seal. Place the tank safely out of the way, then remove the valve seal, trying not to damage it too much. If your tank replacement kit doesn't have a new seal, take the old one to the home-improvement store to find the correct size replacement.

(By the way, there's a great instructive video by expertvillage on YouTube at http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=66wLbx-W9F8.)

Once the valve seal has been replaced, prepare the new tank by inserting the bolts and washers that came with it into the bolt holes. If the kit has both metal and fiber washers, the fiber washers should be the only ones contacting the tank – the metal washers should be behind them. Lift the tank and carefully lower into position so the bolts go through the holes of the bowl and settle it gently onto the flush valve.

Tighten the nuts on the tank bolts. Do not overtighten, as this could crack the tank. Once the tank is securely placed, test for leaks by pouring some water into the tank; tighten or loosen the bolts until leaking stops.

Finally, reattach the water supply connector to the underside of the tank and the flush valve assembly. Again, don't overtighten. Slowly turn on the water, watching for leaks. If there aren't any, fill the tank and flush.

Selecting Energy-Efficient Lighting Just Got Easier

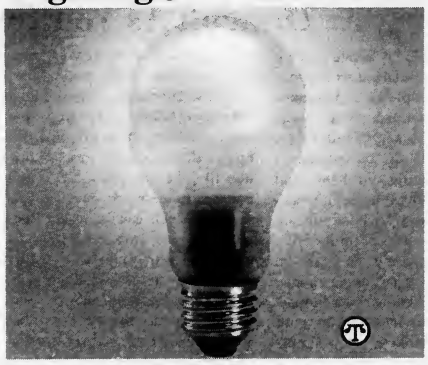
(NAPSA)-With so many lighting choices on the shelf at your local retail store, it's not always easy to decide whether you should replace your burned-out bulb with an incandescent, halogen, LED or other style. One variety that's growing in popularity is energy-efficient compact fluorescent light (CFL) bulbs. Take GE's quick course on CFLs to better understand the facts, myths and more and to learn how smart lighting choices can be one of the easiest ways to save on energy costs.

Lesson One: The Basics

CFL stands for compact fluorescent light, but more importantly, it serves as an energy-efficient bulb that uses two-thirds less energy, produces 70 percent less heat and lasts up to 10 times longer than standard incandescent bulbs. While a standard incandescent bulb uses heat to produce light, a CFL creates light using an entirely different method that is four times more efficient.

This means that you can buy a 15-watt compact fluorescent bulb that produces the same amount of light as a 60-watt regular incandescent bulb.

Unlike the first models, modern CFLs don't produce the same flickering, humming or dim light when initially turned on. CFLs also come in a variety of wattages, shapes and sizes to deliver the same light as a standard bulb and fit almost any fixture in the house.



Lesson Two: The Types

CFLs are ideal for everyday lighting. They can replicate cool, natural light or simulate midday sunlight for warm, comfortable lighting. Most CFLs are available in three-way and dimmable bulbs for adjustable light levels and provide application versatility with a host of bulb options including floodlights, chandelier, ceiling fans, globes, corkscrew-shaped and even outdoor post lights.

One newer CFL option is a covered or incandescent-shaped bulb, such as GE Energy Smart(r) CFL bulbs, where a corkscrew-shaped CFL is covered with glass to give the appearance of a standard incandescent bulb. Covered CFL bulbs can be seen as more aesthetically pleasing and fit in more lamps and fixtures than standard corkscrew-shaped bulbs.

Lesson Three: The Applications

Lighting plays as big a role in home design as furniture, wall paint or appliances. There are three main types of lighting: ambient (general overhead), task and accent (decorative). CFL bulbs can be used for all of these lighting functions to enhance the mood, improve visibility and offer energy savings. Since color is key in home design, select CFLs that filter out dull yellow rays and make colors "pop," such as GE Reveal(r) CFL bulbs, which can help bring out patterns that may go unnoticed under ordinary incandescent light.

CFLS ARE IDEAL for everyday lighting. They can replicate cool, natural light or simulate midday sunlight.

Scammers Add to Bag of Tricks

The scammers who want to separate us from our money never sleep. And they've gotten more creative than ever.

Scammers are targeting those who make purchases on Amazon.com and are raking in millions of dollars. They send out a mass e-mail, complete with a duplicate of the Amazon logo, with a thanks for the most recent purchase. A variation is to send an e-mail saying that the Amazon.com account has been compromised. The purchaser is asked to click a link, which either downloads a virus or brings up a webpage that asks for login and credit-card information. Since so many people buy from Amazon.com, the scammers actually are hitting large numbers of purchasers. With personal information in hand, they go on a spending spree.

Hotels are notorious for lack of security in their computers, and scammers are having a field day with it. It's thought that hotel computers are the No. 1 location for credit-card scammers to attack. And it's not just the mom-and-pop motels – the major chains are getting hit too. There's not much that can be done, except to check your credit-card statements the minute you get them. There's a movement afoot to have credit-card holders check their purchases and balances on a daily basis to stop the frauds faster. However, there is danger in that as well, especially if you use WiFi and check your account from an unprotected location.

There must be money in online auto sales, because scammers have targeted that area, too. To accomplish the fraud, scammers create a website or e-mail address that is only one letter off from a legitimate site. All it would take is a small typo to put purchasers in contact with the scammers instead of the actual dealership. Purchasers would inquire about buying a vehicle, and the scammers would tell them how and where to wire the money ... and of course, the vehicle is never delivered.

Anytime there's a disaster or storm, beware of phony solicitations. With the BP oil spill, it's said that some creative scammers were even taking money to get clean-up jobs for people who applied. Hurricanes, deep snow, floods – they're all perfect for the scammers who prey on our generous spirits.

Saving Energy Might Not Be As Difficult As You Think

(ARA) - While saving energy and lowering your bills during the winter takes some personal sacrifice, it might not be as hard as you think. With a combination of changing your habits and a few simple fixes, it's possible to realize significant savings on your utility bills.

You could be well on your way to saving money and lessening your impact on the environment this winter by making a few simple changes:

• Reduce your home's average temperature by a degree or two. You obviously don't want to make your house too chilly for you or your guests, but this is a case where a little can go a long way. For each degree, you may be able to save 1 percent on your heating bill, according to the U.S. Department of Energy. Over the whole winter, that 1 or 2 percent can amount to quite a bit in actual savings.

• Consider a programmable thermostat. This allows you to set the heat at a lower temperature while you are at work or while you sleep, and then program the thermostat to reach comfortable levels before you arrive home in the evening or get up in the morning. Products like the Schlage LiNK remote home-management system, which can be used with a Trane Remote Energy Management Thermostat, allow you the option of controlling the temperature of your home from most Web-enabled cell phones or a computer no matter where you are. You can also set up the system so when you enter your code in the Schlage wireless keypad lock in your front door, the thermostat will adjust to a temperature that's most comfortable for you. You can even program the thermostat to send text or email alerts if the temperature goes below a preset level, indicating a potential heating system failure. With a system like this, you can save a lot of energy - and money - and always be comfortable when you arrive home.

• Check your HVAC filters and replace them if they are dirty. This should be done at least once a month during times of heavy usage, according to the Department of Energy. Clearing and cleaning any vents in your heating system will also help it run more efficiently. The Schlage LiNK remote home-management system, when used in conjunction with the Trane thermostat mentioned above, will send text alerts when filters need to be replaced.

• Seal places where heat could escape. Some strategic caulking and weather stripping can go a long way toward bringing your heating costs way down; the Department of Energy says properly sealing your home can reduce costs by 20 percent. Using duct sealant to close up any exposed heating or cooling ducts can also offer significant savings.

• Keep curtains open during the day to let in natural heat energy. Keep them closed at night to provide extra insulation around your windows.

13% Decline In Total Volume Of Real Estate Sales Last Quarter

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell has issued a report of real estate activity in Norfolk County for the quarter ending Sept. 30.

The Registry's electronic recording program continues to expand with 798 documents electronically recorded by 69 different accounts in the quarter period from July, 2010 through September, 2010.

Total dollar volume of real estate sales in Norfolk County for the quarter stood at just under $ 1.17 billion. This represents a 13% decrease from the comparable period last year.

The total number of 3,478 deeds recorded during the period also decreased though by a smaller margin of 12%. This number, however, does reflect closings that occurred in the quarter in response to the first time home buyer tax credit which expired on Sept. 30. The bulk of the tax driven closings occurred just before the reported quarter started.

The average sale price of deeds over $1,000 (both residential and commercial properties) showed an increase to $582,635 up 11% over the same quarter in 2009.

Foreclosures continue to have an impact on the market. A total of 215 foreclosure deeds were recorded, 94% more than last year's quarter. This substantial increase could be the result of the 2009 moratorium on foreclosure sales. Total document recordings were up 1% for the quarter.

The mortgage refinance market showed improvement in response to historically low rates by increasing 21% on year to year basis with 10,761 new mortgages being recorded in the quarter. Total mortgage value for the quarter stood at almost $4.1 billion.

"It is important to note," O'Donnell said, "that this total mortgage value amount does not necessarily represent the true increase in indebtedness as some mortgages may be recorded multiple times against different parcels of land, are refinances simply replacing existing debt, or are recorded to secure equity credit lines which may not be drawn to their capacity."

The Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. For more information, call 781-461-6101.

SPOTLIGHT on HEALTH and FITNESS

Bridging The Gap Between Oral And Overall Health

(NAPSA)-Oral health is important at any age, yet we do not always make it a priority. To help, here's advice on maintaining a healthy smile for life.

Regular dental care is critical. A growing body of research indicates that gum disease, which affects as many as three in four Americans, is linked with the incidence of common health issues such as heart disease, diabetes and stroke. Just recently, a study in the British Medical Journal found that poor oral hygiene is associated with higher levels of risk of cardiovascular disease and low-grade inflammation, while researchers at New York University found that gum disease may increase the risk of cognitive dysfunction associated with Alzheimer's disease.

Have your mouth examined twice a year for signs of gum disease or infection.

"Twice-annual visits to the dentist should be just as much of a priority for adults as they are for children," said Dr. Arwinder Judge of Aspen Dental Management, Inc.

Aging affects your mouth, gums and teeth. "Maintaining oral health for life is critical to our overall health and well-being," said Beth Truett, president and CEO of Oral Health America. "As we age, we encounter new issues that affect our mouths, and poor oral health is linked to other significant health problems."

Receding gum tissue, which exposes the roots of the teeth and leaves them vulnerable to decay and infection, is a common problem associated with aging.

Another challenge is dry mouth-a reduction in the flow of saliva that increases the risk for oral disease. More than 400 commonly used medications for health problems ranging from high blood pressure to depression, can cause dry mouth, so tell your dentist about any medications you take, whether prescription or over the counter.

Good oral hygiene habits make a difference. Brush at least twice a day to help remove food and plaque on both natural teeth and dentures and floss to remove plaque between teeth and below the gumline. Denture wearers should clean their gums to avoid plaque buildup that can irritate the tissue under dentures. Thoroughly clean dentures at night to avoid bacteria growth.

Dentures need replacement every five to seven years. The tissues in the mouth change over time, and bone and gum ridges shrink, which can result in ill-fitting dentures that make eating uncomfortable or downright painful. One sign that it might be time for a replacement is the overuse of denture adhesive cream-if you use more than one tube of denture cream every three weeks, your dentures may not fit properly and should be evaluated.

Combat Cold And Flu During Sniffle-Sneeze Season

(NAPSA)-Most households will be hit by at least one bout of respiratory illness in the coming months; in fact, the average child gets six to 10 colds per year and the average adult has two to four. There are many easy and affordable ways to keep your family healthy. Staying ahead of colds and the flu takes a little knowledge and a lot of common sense, say healthcare experts at Target, who offer the following tips for staying healthy this season:

Cold or Flu:

What's the Difference?

The common cold and influenza are both respiratory illnesses, but they differ in severity and are caused by different types of viruses.

"Flu is usually more severe and marked by fever, body aches, extreme tiredness, muscle aches and a dry cough, whereas cold symptoms are generally milder and include a runny or stuffy nose, a sore throat, and sneezing or coughing," says Target Medical Director Dr. Joshua Riff. "While colds generally do not result in serious health problems, influenza can sometimes lead to pneumonia and require hospitalization."

Colds and the flu both spread when an infected person coughs or sneezes, expelling tiny respiratory droplets containing the virus. Direct contact with the person isn't even necessary since droplets can live for hours on tables, doorknobs and other surfaces. You can get sick just by touching the contaminated surface and then touching your face.

COLDS AND FLU are nothing to sneeze at. It pays to be prepared.

Avoid and Prevent

While there is no surefire way to prevent all respiratory illnesses, there are some common- sense practices that reduce your risk.

First, get vaccinated. It's the single best way to stay healthy and protect your loved ones, especially the very young and the elderly. While there is not yet a vaccine against the common cold, a flu shot will significantly reduce the risk of contracting the flu. This year, more than 1,600 Target Pharmacy and 36 Target Clinic locations across the country are offering a vaccine for just $24 that protects against both the seasonal flu and H1N1.

Second, disinfect hands and surroundings. Next to getting a flu shot, the best way to avoid the flu is to wash hands often with warm, soapy water. Dr. Riff endorses the tip of singing "Happy Birthday" twice to be sure you are washing for at least 15 to 20 seconds. Alcohol-based hand wipes and gel sanitizers are also effective. Use a disinfecting wipe to clean doorknobs, tables and other items that can become contaminated.

Finally, practice healthy habits that boost and protect your immune system. Get a good night's sleep and exercise regularly. And don't underestimate the power of fresh fruit and juices rich in vitamin C, such as tangerine, orange, pineapple and strawberry.

Know How to Treat

Despite all the precautions, you might still get sick. If you do come down with a cold or the flu, stay home and rest. Going to work or school is not only hard on you, it will make others sick, too. There are no medicines that will speed the course of a cold, but there are many things you should have on hand to relieve symptoms and help you rest.

Stock up on the following items and you will be well prepared for cold and flu season:

- A pain reliever like ibuprofen or acetaminophen will reduce fever and relieve body aches and headaches. Save by purchasing private-label brands such as up & up from Target ($3.34 for 100-count ibuprofen)-the quality is the same as that of national retail brands, which retail for $7.99-$8.99.
- Saline nasal spray and a nasal decongestant will reduce congestion.
- Cough drops will relieve a scratchy throat.
- A cool-mist humidifier or vaporizer will help to relieve coughing.

ATTAINING BETTER BALANCE

To achieve balance, the body relies on "proprioception," the sense of bodily awareness that relies on key nerves to relay information to the brain, enabling it to make an infinite number of calculations that ensure that the foot lands properly on the ground. However, not only can balance diminish over time, it can be undermined by complications arising from diabetic neuropathy, dementia, multiple sclerosis, and degenerative changes in the spine. Seniors who suffer from these disorders may achieve improvements in proprioception and balance by consulting a chiropractor. By helping to overcome neurological deficits in the very complex system of sensors in the skin, joints, ligaments, tendons, and muscles, chiropractic treatment may help older adults avert falls and their potential consequences.

For many Americans, proprioceptive disorders cause more than a passing problem. Often times, the true miracles in chiropractic are evidenced through subtle improvements in our patients - increased immune system function, reduced irritability, improved sleep, and increased mobility. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we will only accept you as a patient if we sincerely feel we can help you. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we start by listening. For exceptional chiropractic care, call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We offer computerized spinal scans. 10,000 Steps a Day Keep the Doctor Away

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I hear that taking 10,000 steps a day is all that a person needs to stay healthy. Is this so? How much time does that take? Do you count all the steps you take in a day, or are these 10,000 steps in addition to what you normally take? – G.D.

ANSWER: The 10,000-steps-a-day program originated in the Surgeon General's office some years back. It's been shown, more than once, that people who increase their total daily steps to 10,000 (counting the ones they normally take) have less body fat, lower blood sugar and lower blood pressure. There is more to staying fit than taking 10,000 leisurely steps. Strength building is also important.

Ten thousand steps are approximately 5 miles (3.6 to 4.9 miles; 6 to 8 kilometers). How much time does this take? The walking should be brisk. That's defined as taking 90 to 100 steps a minute. For the entire time involved, you can do the math. However, these steps don't all have to be taken in one session. You can amass them throughout the day. A hundred steps a minute is a quick pace. You might not be up to it. It's OK to start more slowly and gradually work your way to the 100-steps-a-minute goal, and not all the 10,000 steps have to be such fast ones. The goal of 10,000 steps is another thing that can take you a while to reach. Don't try to do all this on the first day. Start out by taking an extra 200 steps a day, and gradually work your way to 10,000 over a couple of months.

You can't count these steps without driving yourself crazy. You need a pedometer, a gadget that records your steps. Pedometers range in cost from $17 to $80. They can be worn on a belt, put in a pocket or worn around the leg. They register steps by the movement of the hips or the impact of the foot against the ground.

If you want to be really healthy, you have to add some resistance exercise to your program. Resistance exercise is lifting weights.

The booklet on fitness explains the benefits of walking and other aerobic exercise in clear language. Readers can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue – No. 1301W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Would you kindly advise us on fatty liver? What can be done for it? What does it lead to? – H.C.

ANSWER: The liver should have no fat. Fat infiltrates it for a couple of reasons. One is excessive alcohol. Another is nonalcoholic fatty liver disease, a common occurrence. It doesn't always cause damage, but it can progress to something called NASH, nonalcoholic steatohepatitis – a condition that can further progress to cirrhosis. This stage is best discovered through a liver biopsy. The first treatment for liver fat, including NASH, is weight loss. For many, it's the only treatment needed to correct the situation.

Game Against Quincy High School Set for Saturday at 5 p.m.

Red Raiders Close Week At 1-1-1

By SEAN BRENNAN

The playoffs are well within reach for the North Quincy girls' soccer team; last week's 1-1-1 record kept the Red Raiders on pace for another spot on the postseason dance card.

North Quincy (4-5-2) closed out the week with a hard-fought 0-0 tie against non-league opponent Medford HS. The Raiders had very few scoring opportunities in the first-half against a fast, skilled and physical Medford team, which is one of the better teams in the Greater Boston League (GBL).

Sara Sullivan, the junior keeper for NQ, was unreal in that first-half, standing on her head to keep the Mustangs off the board.

The second half was more of the same for North Quincy. Their one quality scoring chance came when Liz Kelley broke free and had the ball stripped from her foot; the loose ball found its way onto the cleats of senior Jillian Carchedi whose rocket from 12 yards out missed high.

With the offense sputtering (ten goals in 11 games), it was the Raiders' defense; especially Haley McKay, Shannon Coleman, Arianna Viscione, and Delia Devane (freshman) that helped North Quincy earn a huge point.

"Medford is a good team," said head coach Paul Bregoli. "To come out of that game with at least a point keeps us on track to make a run at a postseason berth. Our defense last week, led by Shannon Coleman, was great and we really needed them to be good because we are just not consistent enough on offense."

The Raiders' best game of the week was in a 1-0 victory over non-league Marblehead HS.

Riding the strength of another solid defensive game, North Quincy finally got the game-winner late in the second half when sophomore Liz Kelly scored her first goal of the season off an assist from sophomore Shannon McCleary.

"Marblehead is a strong non-league team and for us to come away from that game with two points was huge," Bregoli added. "Again, our defense and goaltending were great and we finally scored a big goal when we really needed to. Big win for the team."

Sophomore Jaclyn Scuzzarella played her best game of the year on the backend, according to Bregoli, and senior captain Jillian Carchedi controlled the midfield and nearly scored in the first half on a semi-breakaway; Shannon Coleman banged a shot of the crossbar from 35 yards out, just missing out on a beautiful goal.

Junior Sara Sullivan finished with eight saves and earned her fourth shutout of the fall (and her tenth career shutout in goal for NQHS). Senior Sarah Gardiner played well for the Raiders at outside midfield.

The team began last week with a 2-0 loss to Pembroke HS, The Titans took a 1-0 lead late in the first half, and didn't score their second goal until there was ten minutes left in the game.

Again, strong defensive play kept North Quincy in contention. Coleman, freshman sweeper Viscione, Lauren Campo, Caitlin Bulger and Sullivan all played well versus Pembroke. On offense, Kaleen Campo had a great game at midfield and Taylor McKay just missed on a scoring opportunity in the first half.

North Quincy hosted Scituate HS on Tuesday and will play at home today (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m. against Hingham.

The Red Raiders are matched up against Quincy HS on Saturday. The girls' game, which will be followed by the NQHS/QHS boys' game, starts at 5 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

North Quincy Girls Volleyball Rebounds From Loss

By SEAN BRENNAN

Sometimes even the best teams lose a game they probably should have won. How said team responds to that unexpected loss usually is a determining factor in figuring out what that team is made of and if that team has the character and resiliency to push forward and use it as motivation to achieve certain goals.

The North Quincy Red Raiders experienced such a loss last week. The Raiders (10-1), which began last week as the front-runner for the Patriot League crown was upset on Oct. 6 by Hingham HS, 3-1, but, the Raiders, instead of folding and hanging their heads after losing out on their chance for an undefeated league record, responded with a gut-checking, 3-2, victory over Hanover HS on Oct. 8.
